Final report of the Panel of Experts on Libya established pursuant to resolution 1973 (2011)

Summary

The Panel's monitoring of the political transition in Libya has focused on the incomplete implementation of the Libyan Political Agreement in the absence of its endorsement by the House of Representatives. This has undermined the legitimacy of the Government of National Accord, nominated by the Presidency Council. The rival Prime Ministers, Abdallah al-Thinni and Khalifa al-Ghweil, continue to challenge the leadership of the country by the Chair of the Presidency Council, Fayez al-Serraj. The Presidency Council has also had great difficulty in implementing social and economic policies, further strengthening the armed and unarmed opposition to its authority.

To overcome the political stalemate, the United Nations Support Mission in Libya drafted a new road map in October 2016 to amend the Libyan Political Agreement. This led to a regional dialogue initiative sponsored by Algeria, Egypt and Tunisia. However, regional divisions continue to constitute an obstacle to a political solution in Libya.

The political crisis has been further exacerbated by escalating armed conflict. In spite of the liberation of Sirte and segments of Benghazi from Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, the overall security situation in Libya has deteriorated. Indicative of the insecurity is the growing competition in Tripoli between Misratah- and Tripoli-affiliated armed groups, which has undermined the authority of the Presidency Council and threatened the safety of the capital's residents.

Military operations by the Libyan National Army, the Benghazi Defence Brigades and Misratan armed groups in the south and the oil crescent have exposed local populations to increasing violence, including through air strikes. Further threats to security documented by the Panel have included the recruitment of foreign mercenaries by armed groups and the persistent activity of extremist movements.

Armed groups, some of which have received a mandate or at least recognition from the House of Representatives or the Presidency Council, have not been subject to any meaningful judicial control. This has further increased their involvement in violations of human rights, including kidnappings, arbitrary detentions and summary executions. Cases investigated by the Panel include abuses against Libyan residents of Tripoli and Benghazi, prisoners of war and migrants.

The Panel documented several instances in which armed groups were involved in actual or potential violations of the arms embargo. These groups' continuing access to military equipment and related material is also reflected in the escalation of armed conflicts, notably through air strikes. In that respect, the Panel has documented how armed groups from eastern Libya and Misratah have multiplied their air force capacity through transfers of materiel, the refurbishment of previously unserviceable aircraft and the expansion of military airbases. The foreign support for both factions is also highlighted.

Furthermore, the Panel found evidence of several deliveries, in violation of the arms embargo, of what is often described as non-lethal materiel. The deployment and use of such materiel in the Libyan context has significantly increased insecurity and has undoubtedly led to additional casualties. This is notably the case for (armoured) vehicles and electronic interception equipment.

In the absence of arms and ammunition management capacity, the risk of diversion remains a major concern, justifying the need for a robust arms embargo. Libyan armed groups engage in arms trafficking both within the country and across its borders, and Libya remains an important hub for illicit arms flows to neighbouring countries. The Panel has documented arms seizures in the Niger and Tunisia, while the lack of access to seizures in other countries remains a problem.

The Panel finds that the key financial and economic institutions of Libya remain divided and suffer from a lack of oversight and cases of misappropriation. The Presidency Council has been divided over the organization of and appointments in several institutions, and its decisions have been challenged. As a consequence, the loyalty of staff is still divided between the competing authorities, which have each tried to make their own appointments. The divisions continue to threaten the stability of Libya, as shown by the controversy over Central Bank of Libya policies in Tripoli and several unilateral actions taken by its eastern branch.

The Panel has identified rival managements and their political backers, who continue to attempt to strengthen their position through various strategies, including legal action and support from armed groups. In Tripoli, the interference of armed groups with the management and finances of institutions such as the Libyan Investment Authority and the Libyan Post, Telecommunication and Information Technology Company is worrying and untenable.

In contrast to these negative developments, the country's oil sector has stabilized. The warring parties in the oil crescent have largely refrained from damaging oil installations, and they have consistently given authority over the terminals to the National Oil Corporation management, even though control over the region has changed hands repeatedly. Unfortunately, and despite significant efforts by both their managements, the implementation of an agreement to reunite the eastern and western National Oil Corporations failed. Nevertheless, the efforts have resulted in increased oil production.

The continuing division of the National Oil Corporation will likely lead to renewed attempts to illicitly export crude oil. Sanctions under resolution 2146 \(2014\) were successfully implemented on one occasion. Meanwhile, the eastern National Oil Corporation has made a first attempt to smuggle a shipment of oil derivatives out of Libya.

Armed groups and criminal networks continue to exploit different sources of financing, such as the smuggling of migrants and fuel. The Panel has identified networks along the western coastline, which are active in both.

Several investigations on the asset freeze show the complexity of the finances available to some listed individuals, the beneficiary ownership of which is hidden behind numerous front men and front companies. They also show that transactions in favour of listed individuals are sometimes handled through large sums of cash. In addition, the Panel investigated stolen Libyan assets that were under the control of a listed individual, or at risk of misappropriation, or both. The identification and possible recovery of all these funds will require significant resources and a dedicated effort. This will require the empowerment of Libyan investigators through an indisputable mandate from an uncontested authority.

* The annexes are being circulated in the language of submission only and without formal editing. Owing to the word limits on reports of monitoring mechanisms, the Panel has provided further details relating to a number of investigations in the annexes. The table of abbreviations and acronyms can be found in annex 1.

I. Background

1. The present report contains the findings of the Panel of Experts on Libya until April 2017. An overview of the evolution of the Libya sanctions regime can be found in annex 2.

A. Mandate and appointment

2. Details on the mandate and appointment of the Panel can be found in annex 3.

B. Methodology

3. The Panel is determined to ensure compliance with the standards recommended by the Informal Working Group of the Security Council on General Issues of Sanctions in its report (S/2006/997, annex). Those standards call for reliance on verified, genuine documents and concrete evidence and on-site observations by the experts, including taking photographs, wherever possible. When physical inspection is not possible, the Panel will seek to corroborate information using multiple, independent sources to appropriately meet the highest achievable standard, placing a higher value on statements by principal actors and first-hand witnesses to events. While the Panel wishes to be as transparent as possible, in situations in which identifying sources would expose them or others to unacceptable safety risks, the Panel will withhold identifying information and place the relevant evidence in secure United Nations archives.

4. The Panel is committed to impartiality in investigating incidents of non-compliance by any party.

5. The Panel is equally committed to the highest degree of fairness and will endeavour to make available to parties, where appropriate and possible, any information available in the report for which those parties may be cited in relation to incidents of violations or non-compliance, for their review, comment and response within a specified deadline. To further uphold the opportunity to reply and in the interest of accuracy, the Panel will consider annexing to its reports any rebuttals, with an assessment of their credibility.

6. The Panel safeguards the independence of its work against any efforts to undermine its impartiality and any attempts to create a perception of bias.

C. Cooperation with stakeholders and organizations

7. A list of institutions, organizations and individuals consulted can be found in annex 4. A list of outgoing correspondence can be found in annex 5, with the level of responsiveness reflected in annex 6.

1. Member States

8. Since the submission of its previous final report (S/2016/209) in March 2016, the Panel has undertaken formal visits to meet with national authorities and other relevant stakeholders in Austria, Chad, Egypt, Germany, Libya, Malta, the Niger, Qatar, the Sudan, Sweden, Tunisia, Turkey, the United Arab Emirates, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America.

9. In addition, the Panel was able to travel to and hold meetings with interlocutors, including from the Libyan diaspora, in Brussels, N'Djamena, Cairo,

Paris, Rome, Amman, Beirut, Tripoli, Rabat, Johannesburg, South Africa, Geneva, Tunis, Istanbul, Turkey, and London and in Misratah and Tubruq.

10. During the reporting period, the Panel visited all of the neighbouring countries of Libya, except for Algeria. For the fourth consecutive year, Panel requests to visit Algeria have remained unanswered. Furthermore, while holding meetings with Libyan interlocutors in Skhirat, in accordance with its mandate, the Panel was requested by the Permanent Mission of Morocco to the United Nations in New York to stop all movement and leave the country, which the Panel did. The Panel discussed the event with the Permanent Mission to avoid the recurrence of such an incident.

2. Libya

11. The Panel has visited Libya four times since its reappointment in May 2016. Regular flights operated by the United Nations Support Mission in Libya (UNSMIL) into Libya and strong support from and flexibility on the part of UNSMIL have increased the Panel's access. As the security situation remains fragile, United Nations delegations continue to be subject to travel restrictions. Therefore, the Panel's visits were limited to one-day missions, which limits its ability to investigate leads and follow up with contacts within Libya. In addition to travel to Libya, the Panel held interviews with interlocutors in Libya remotely.

12. On 16 June 2016, the Panel visited Tripoli and discussed its work with members of the Presidency Council and the Temporary Security Committee. The meetings were held at Mitiga airport and the Abu Sittah naval base. On 20 July, the Panel travelled to Misratah, where it met with commanders involved in the military operations against Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) in Sirte. On 15 November, the Panel met with a delegation from the House of Representatives in Tubruq. The Panel visited the naval base in Tripoli for the second time on 19 January 2017 to hold meetings with representatives of the Central Bank of Libya and the Minister of Defence, appointed by the Presidency Council. Three additional visits to Libya were cancelled for various reasons, such as the unavailability of the plane, security incidents at the destination and the unavailability of Libyan interlocutors. Although important information was obtained, the one-day missions did not result in the physical inspection of seized materiel or visits to arms and ammunition storage facilities.

13. It remains difficult to identify appropriate Libyan interlocutors who can speak from a position of authority and provide official documentation. The Presidency Council has weak operational capacity, and its control over the administration is very limited. Furthermore, other power centres remain active and receive support from both the population and armed groups.

3. United Nations entities

14. The Panel interacts frequently with UNSMIL. The Panel met with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, Martin Kobler, on several occasions and had repeated exchanges with key sections of UNSMIL, including the Joint Mission Analysis Centre, the Panel's focal point. In addition, the Panel's work has benefited from an increase in information sharing by the Mission, and UNSMIL support in terms of both logistics and information sharing has proved critical to the Panel's effective execution of its mandate. The Panel would benefit further from more frequent sharing of documents.

15. The Panel exchanged views with the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team established pursuant to resolution 1526 \(2004\), the Panel of Experts on the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, the Panel of Experts on the Sudan, the Panel of Experts on South Sudan, the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, the United Nations Interregional Crime and Justice Research Institute and the Mine Action Service of the Department of Peacekeeping Operations.

16. The Panel assisted in the preparation of the report of the Secretary-General on the threat posed to Libya and neighbouring countries, including off the coast of Libya, by foreign terrorist fighters recruited by or joining Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (Da'esh), Al-Qaida and associated individuals, groups, undertakings and entities (S/2016/627), requested by the Security Council in resolution 2292 (2016).

4. Other organizations

17. Following the adoption of resolution 2292 (2016), the Panel met with European Union Naval Force Mediterranean (EUNAVFOR MED) Operation Sophia delegations in Brussels and Rome. The Panel remains in contact with the Operation.

18. In November 2016, the Panel was briefed in N'Djamena by Operation Barkhane, a counter-terrorism operation led by France in collaboration with five Sahel countries. One of the Operation's aims is to prevent illicit flows of weapons and related materiel that would benefit extremist groups. The Panel looks forward to continuing to receive relevant information on weapon seizures or suspicious movements.

19. The Panel also exchanged views with representatives of the International Criminal Court and non-governmental organizations.

D. Administrative support and reporting schedule

20. The dedicated support staff at the Secretariat has significantly reduced time spent by the Panel on administrative and logistical issues. The Panel is grateful for the extension of its mandate from 12 months to 15 months and recommends retaining this mandate duration. These crucial changes to the previous reporting period allowed the Panel to concentrate more effectively on its investigations and organize all the necessary visits to Libya and its neighbours, as reflected in its travel schedule.

21. While the processing time for the Panel's travel has improved, the limitations of current administrative rules and procedures continue to impede the Panel's efficiency. The most pressing problem is that tickets are booked at the fare for the "most economical, most direct route", within certain travel time-related parameters, and only with regard to the start and end dates of meetings, rather than to the most sensible flight and connection times. As a consequence, the average duration of travel has increased significantly, leading to less time spent in the field.

22. Despite the Panel's frequent travel to high-risk environments in which it conducts sensitive investigations under a mandate from the Security Council, its members continue to lack access to appropriate insurance for conflict zones. The mandate requires travelling to some countries where regular health and travel insurance does not provide cover for treatment or evacuation. While experts are covered under the United Nations malicious acts insurance, no cover exists for injury suffered as a result of a non-malicious accident or for sudden illness occurring while in certain high-risk countries (see recommendation 16).

II. Political developments and related criteria

23. Since its arrival in Tripoli on 30 March 2016, the Presidency Council, under the leadership of Fayeze al-Serraj, has not managed to exercise full authority in accordance with the Libyan Political Agreement.

24. So far, the Presidency Council has not been able to convince the House of Representatives to confirm a Government of National Accord or to launch significant social and economic policies. In Tripoli, the Council's continued conflict with hard-line armed groups led by Khalifa al-Ghweil, and its reliance on Tripoli-based armed groups,¹ could weaken the support of powerful allies in Misratah, such as the Misratah Municipal Council.² In an effort to contain the political challenges from both the House of Representatives and Al-Ghweil, Al-Serraj promotes a political dialogue with his opponents under the Council's auspices.³

A. Divisions in the Presidency Council

25. The Presidency Council is faced with persistent internal divisions. Members such as Musa al-Koni and Ammar al-Aswad expressed to the Panel their scepticism over the Council's composition and functioning (see annex 7). The divisions were further exposed when Al-Koni resigned in January 2017, while also acknowledging his own responsibility in the Council's "failure".

26. The Panel understands that Al-Serraj's authority is constantly questioned by all his Deputy Chairs. Eastern Presidency Council members Ali Faraj al-Qatrani and Fathi al-Mejbari have opposed several of Al-Serraj's political initiatives to constrain his political space. The alleged links between the Council-nominated Minister of Defence, Mahdi al-Barghathi, and the Benghazi Defence Brigades seem to have further fragmented the Council into irreconcilable positions.

27. In discussions with the Panel, representatives of southern tribes and former regime constituencies denounced the limited representativeness of the Presidency Council.

B. Two additional Governments

28. The Prime Minister of the National Salvation Government, Khalifa Al-Ghweil, continues to undermine the Libyan Political Agreement. He has been attempting to re-establish the pre-Agreement state of affairs through a series of attacks on ministries and the High State Council's headquarters at Rixos Hotel, over which the National Salvation Government had lost control after the arrival of the Presidency Council.⁴ Al-Ghweil's return obliged the Council to increase its dependence on Tripoli-based armed groups to defend the institutions. The National Salvation

Government was weakened in March 2017, following its ousting from Tripoli and the reported injury of Al-Ghweil.

29. Al-Ghweil challenged the Presidency Council's attempts to constitute a Presidential Guard by creating the National Guard,⁵ composed of "anti-Government of National Accord" armed groups from Misratah and Tripoli. The creation of this unit led to a series of armed clashes in Tripoli. Armed groups supporting Al-Ghweil, such as the National Guard, the Al-Marsa al-Kubra Brigade and groups supported by the former Libyan Islamic Fighting Group, clashed with groups from Tripoli, such as the Special Deterrence Force, the Abu Salim Brigade and the Tripoli Revolutionaries Brigade (see para. 55). The latter groups have shown opportunism in their support of the Council, guaranteeing its security in exchange for recognition and financial support (see recommendation 1).

30. On 13 February 2017, the reopening ceremony of Tripoli International Airport, presided over by Al-Ghweil and Salah Badi, was organized as a show of force. Meanwhile, Al-Ghweil and his eastern counterpart, Abdallah al-Thinni, the Prime Minister of the Interim Government, organized political negotiations challenging the PC.⁶

31. In Bayda', Al-Thinni remains firmly opposed to the Presidency Council, including by trying to stay in control of the diplomatic missions of Libya.⁷

32. Both Al-Thinni and Al-Ghweil have repeatedly criticized the Presidency Council for "allowing Libya to be ruled by foreign powers". In January 2017, Al-Thinni released a communiqué stating that the "Government of National Accord was under the protection of thousands of troops from Italy" (see annex 8). Moreover, according to Al-Thinni, military operations by the Libyan National Army were the only way to resolve the Libyan crisis.⁸

C. Insistence of the House of Representatives on amending the Libyan Political Agreement

33. The President of the House of Representatives, Aguila Saleh, is a strong opponent of the current Presidency Council and its executive functions. In September 2016, Saleh called upon the members of the House to stop collaborating with the ministries responding to the Council.⁹

34. In response to Al-Serraj's calls for a renewal of the political dialogue, Saleh insisted on direct negotiations with the High State Council. The House of Representatives designated a 15-member committee to negotiate an amendment to the Libyan Political Agreement, in accordance with the Cairo declaration.¹⁰ Saleh's main concern is the organization of the armed forces, in particular the appointment and scope of authority granted to the Supreme Commander (art. 8 of the Libyan Political Agreement). It appears that Saleh wants to maximize the power of the Libyan National Army (LNA) and Khalifa Haftar.

35. The House of Representatives is divided, and a significant group opposes the uncompromising positions taken by Saleh. The attack on the oil crescent by the Benghazi Defence Brigades in March 2017 and the subsequent decision of the House to stop any further dialogue with the western side exacerbated these divisions.

36. The Panel met with the House of Representatives in November 2016. Some of the members asserted that the Presidency Council had no constitutional basis and that its members were neither elected nor endorsed by the House. In addition, it was “dominated by participants in Fajr Libya”, allegedly promoting an Islamist agenda. The House also suggested changes to the Libya sanctions regime, including the lifting of the arms embargo for LNA (see annex 9).

D. Military rule of the Libyan National Army

37. A key political development in eastern Libya was the appointment by the House of Representatives of a Military Governor of the Darnah-Bin Jawwad region, leading to the replacement of civil mayors with military staff. Decisions taken by the Military Governor, Abd al-Razzak al-Nadhuri, who is also the Chief of Staff of LNA, included significant restrictions on public liberties in eastern Libya. For instance, he issued a decision to ban the holding of demonstrations in Benghazi without his written permission.

38. LNA detained or intimidated dozens of activists, members of the House of Representatives and justice and security personnel in the region stretching from Tubruq to Bin Jawwad in order to silence political opposition.

39. On 16 February 2017, Abd al-Razzak al-Nadhuri issued a decision to ban unaccompanied women under the age of 60 from travelling.¹¹ In 2013, a similar fatwa was issued by Mufti Al-Gharyani. In addition, an obligation to obtain security clearance from the General Investigations Apparatus (referred to as the Internal Security) before travel was imposed on all Libyans (see annex 10).

40. The rise of Salafi influence and LNA military rule mutually reinforce control over society. In January 2017, the seizure of a shipment of books by the Criminal Investigation Department in Marj was sanctioned by the Committee for Islamic Endowments (awqaf), undermining the authority of the Ministry of Information and Culture. This event showed the influence of Madkhali¹² clerics in eastern Libya over State institutions.¹³ The head of the Committee, Mas’oud al-Nadhuri, was selected by Saudi Sheikh Usama al-Utaibi in 2014 to teach the Salafi-Madkhali creed (see annex 11). This selection was validated by Rabi’ al-Madkhali, a prominent Saudi Salafi scholar.¹⁴

III. Security developments and related criteria

A. Aftermath of events in Sirte and status of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant

41. The final stages of Operation Bunyan Marsus in Sirte was not without challenges. According to military contacts in Misratah, the operations were interrupted from 28 October to 2 November 2016 because of a shortage of ammunition. The Operation pressured the Presidency Council to provide it with 30 million Libyan dinars, which the Operation used to purchase ammunition on the black market in Sabha.

1. Acting for or on behalf of or at the direction of a listed individual or entity

42. ISIL had established a structured administration in Sirte. The Panel collected evidence of propaganda and documents showing its organization of collective banking, arms management and family life (see annex 12). The Panel also obtained a document from Sirte mentioning the purchase by ISIL of ammunition from Usama Jadhraan, Ibrahim Jadhraan's brother. The Panel is investigating whether the ammunition originated from the Petroleum Facilities Guard-Central Region (see para. 76 and annex 22).

2. Acts that threaten peace

Status of ISIL

43. The defeat of ISIL in Sirte enabled Misratah to challenge Haftar's portrayal of LNA as the sole Libyan force combating terrorism. It reinforced the international legitimacy of the Presidency Council, as several foreign Governments congratulated Al-Serraj for removing the threat from the Mediterranean shore.¹⁵

44. ISIL still poses a threat to security in the wider region. The presence of ISIL cells at the outskirts of Sirte, such as Jizh, Ghuraybat, Wadi Zamzam, Suq al-Khamis, Uwaynat and Idrir, is apparent from small incursions of "technicals" equipped with 14.5-mm guns.¹⁶ Operation Bunyan Marsus designated a counter-terrorist force to arrest suspected terrorists and refer them to an ad hoc military court.¹⁷

Tensions within Operation Bunyan Marsus forces

45. Strong tensions exist among the different components of Operation Bunyan Marsus in charge of securing Sirte and assisting in demining operations. This poses a threat to the stability of Sirte.

46. One brigade affiliated with the Operation, composed mainly of Misratan fighters, guards Sirte's main entrances (see annex 13).¹⁸ Another unit, the Salafi "604" battalion, oversees the town centre. Most of the "604" troops hail from Sirte and are leaning towards the Madkhali creed. They have been trained and equipped by the Tripoli-based Special Deterrence Force of Abd al-Raouf Kara. However, they are also in close contact with the LNA General Command through their emir, Abd al-Hamid Ibrahim bin Rajeb al-Ferjani, from Haftar's Ferjan tribe. Representatives of the "604" battalion were reported to have travelled from Tripoli to Bayda' on several occasions.

47. On 16 January 2017, the "604" battalion warned the Muslim Brotherhood and the armed groups affiliated with the former Libyan Islamic Fighting Group against any attempt to open a second front against "forces of the east".¹⁹

B. Fighting in Benghazi

48. Despite the LNA attritional war in Benghazi, extremist armed groups such as Ansar al Charia Benghazi (QDe.146) and the Benghazi Revolutionaries Shura Council have shown resilience. LNA has achieved relative military victories in the areas of Suq al-Hut, Busnayb and Sabri. By March 2017, LNA had succeeded in controlling most of Benghazi, including Qawarshah and Qanfudah. LNA killed one of the last senior Shura Council leaders, Jalal Makhzoum, whose mutilated corpse was dragged through the streets of Benghazi.²⁰

49. LNA operations depend heavily on arms supplies from abroad, as recognized by Saqr al-Jarushi, the air force commander. Al-Jarushi stated that Haftar's son, Saddam Haftar, and LNA envoy Ayoub al-Ferjani were sent on missions abroad to maintain the arms supply.²¹ The supply is closely managed by Haftar's inner circle. Sources from the front explained to the Panel that their continued supply of ammunition was conditional on full commitment to the national ambitions of LNA.

50. There have been repeated accusations against LNA of allowing the escape of ISIL combatants from Benghazi to Bani Walid. In an interview, a high-ranking LNA official did not deny these allegations.²²

51. Recruitment by the Benghazi Revolutionaries Shura Council from Misratah continued until at least January 2017. The Libyan Iron and Steel Company plant is a gathering point for the fighters (see annex 14). Here, they receive their first salary (2,000 dinars) and a weapon. A Misratan businessman, Ashraf ben Ismail, has supervised the medical transport and care of Benghazi fighters, including members of Ansar al Charia Benghazi (QDe.146). In December 2016, the Misratah Municipal Council issued an order to disrupt any military support to the Shura Council. As a response, alternative "supply chains" of fighters were sought, including from the southern Mahamid tribe.

52. In late November 2016, EUNAVFOR MED Operation Sophia inspected a Libyan trawler named Luffy, sailing from Benghazi to Misratah. The Operation told the Panel that the Luffy had been chartered by "forces controlled by the Government of National Accord" for humanitarian purposes and that the vessel enjoyed sovereign immunity. Therefore, it had not been approached under resolution 2292 (2016). Still, upon invitation, the Operation boarded the vessel on several occasions. Each time, wounded fighters and arms were observed. The captain had informed the Operation that the arms were for self-defence purposes. According to local sources, the Luffy is owned by a coastguard officer and member of the Misratah Military Council. They added that the trawler was regularly transporting wounded fighters and wrapped arms (mortars, anti-tank weapons) (see recommendations 1 and 3).

C. Events in Tripoli and western Libya

1. Acts that threaten peace

Competition between Misratah- and Tripoli-affiliated brigades

53. Clashes between Misratah- and Tripoli-affiliated armed groups continue to undermine the authority of the Presidency Council and security in the Libyan capital, causing many civilian casualties. These clashes have several drivers.

54. First, racketeering and kidnappings by groups affiliated with Misratah fuelled tensions. In March 2017, for example, Qurji, Ghawt al-Sha'al and Hay al-Andalus residents blocked roads and attacked buildings protected by Misratah- and Jadu-affiliated brigades. The protests evolved into an armed confrontation between the Tripoli Revolutionaries Brigade and the Abu Salim Brigade on one side and Misratan brigades loyal to Al-Ghweil on the other (see annex 15). The latter were ousted from the Qusur, Fallah and Qarqarish areas.

55. Second, there is an ongoing power struggle over institutions. An example is the takeover by the Tripoli Revolutionaries Brigade of the General Intelligence branch in Hay al-Andalus (where it seized important archives) in August 2016,²³ and the subsequent reaction of Misratah, from where a force led by Salah Badi was sent to recover the positions lost. According to an Operation Bunyan Marsus commander, "Sirte was a trap to weaken us in Tripoli. We lost many men and vehicles during that war. We are trying to address the situation."

56. In the absence of Presidency Council control and authority, this competition is likely to lead to new clashes, notwithstanding the Tripoli Agreement, signed on 15 March 2017 (see annex 16).

High-profile assassinations

57. The assassination of Nader al-Omrani, a prominent Libyan scholar with the Dar al-Ifta', further exacerbated tensions. Several media reports alleged the involvement of Abd al-Hakim Meqdash, a former affiliate of Abd al-Raouf Kara, in the assassination. Such attacks reinforce the division of Tripoli into zones of control under opposing armed groups, limiting the freedom of movement, including of high-profile personalities.

Links with criminal networks

58. Along the coastline between Tripoli and the Tunisian border, many armed groups are involved in trafficking in persons and fuel smuggling, which have allowed them to obtain substantial wealth (see para. 251). Over the past year, these criminal networks clashed repeatedly, directly or through proxies (see annex 17). In Zawiyah, dozens of casualties were reported in 2016 and 2017. Armed groups involved in criminal activities also challenge local authorities, such as the Sabratah Municipal Council, thereby threatening peace (see annex 18).

59. On 17 August 2016, a speedboat attacked a Médecins sans frontières vessel off the Libyan coast. Two coastguard officers from the Dallah coastguard were involved in the attack. The two identified attackers are loyal to Abd al-Rahman Milad (alias Bija), head of the Zawiyah coastguard and involved in smuggling activities.

2. Attacks against any port in Libya or against a State institution or installation

60. On 14 October 2016, a coalition of armed groups helped return Khalifa al-Ghweil to the High State Council seat in the Rixos Hotel in Tripoli.²⁴ On 12 January 2017, the National Salvation Government took control of several ministries, including the Ministries of Defence and Justice. Al-Ghweil made use of the opposition to the Presidency Council of some Tripoli-based armed groups and the ambivalence of other armed groups (including the former Libyan Islamic Fighting Group) towards the Libyan Political Agreement. At the time, the Tripoli Revolutionaries Brigade and the Abu Salim Brigade, supposedly allied with the Presidency Council, refused to oppose Al-Ghweil's return to Tripoli, motivated by financial reward.

61. On 18 March 2017, members of the Buni brigade, in charge of protecting Mitiga airport, attacked the Presidency Council headquarters in Abu Sittah, attempting to evict the Council from Tripoli. The group's leadership is close to Mustafa Nuh and Abd al-Hakim Belhaj.

62. On 10 April 2017, a force of 10 "technicals" attacked the residence of the Central Bank of Libya Governor in Tripoli. According to Central Bank sources, the attack was conducted by the Tripoli Revolutionaries Brigade and the Abu Salim Brigade, with the involvement of Hashim Bishr. Armed groups frequently seek to interfere in the business of financial institutions to promote their political or financial interests, including through intimidation (see paras. 191 ff).

63. On 10 October 2016, an armed group close to Al-Ghweil attacked the Civil Registry Authority and killed the Authority's Director, Sadiq al-Nuhaysi. Armed groups repeatedly attacked the Authority's branches to manipulate its data and be able to produce illegally issued passports.

64. The attack against the Misratah Municipal Council on 13 April 2017 highlights increasing tensions as irreconcilable political trends in the city are turning against each other. Positions diverge with regard to the Libyan Political Agreement, dialogue with eastern constituencies, links with radical movements and the situation in the south of Libya.

3. Acting for or on behalf of or at the direction of a listed individual or entity

65. All Libyan parties, including Ansar al Charia Benghazi (QDe.146) and Ansar al-Shari'ah Sirte, competed to control the Civil Registry Authority and passport administrations. This allowed them to illegally issue passports, including to foreign fighters who subsequently travelled abroad. The Panel has reviewed copies of illegally issued passports and was able to confirm the identity of one Sudanese national, who obtained such a passport in Misratah and travelled to Turkey in May 2015 (see annex 19). In August 2015, Turkish authorities imposed visas on Libyan nationals travelling to Turkey in order to limit security risks posed by the political developments in Libya.²⁵

66. Foreign recruits of Ansar al Charia Benghazi (QDe.146) and Ansar al-Shari'ah Sirte were hosted in several locations, including Tripoli. They have participated in destabilizing operations, such as the attack on the High State Council in Tripoli in October 2016. Foreign fighters were present in Ghabat al-Nasr and Hadabah areas in October 2016, which are controlled, respectively, by Tareq al-Gadban and Khaled al-Sharif, both figures in the former Libyan Islamic Fighting Group.

67. Despite its previous links with local elements from ISIL, the Anas al-Dabbashi Brigade in Sabratalh actively fought against ISIL in 2016 and handed over a senior ISIL commander to the Special Deterrence Force in Tripoli. It is unclear whether any links with United Nations-listed entities have persisted since.

D. Conflict in the south

68. The unprecedented escalation in violence in southern Libya starting in April 2017, including air strikes from rival air forces, is another indication of the ongoing power struggles. The visible involvement of the Presidency Council and its nominated Minister of Defence in ordering an attack against LNA forces moving on Tamanhint has deepened the political divide (see annex 20).

69. Tamanhint is Misratah's last military position in the south. The involvement of the Benghazi Defence Brigades and the South Shield Brigade prevented LNA commander Mohammad ben Nayel from taking Tamanhint during the most recent round of fighting, but the fighting is expected to flare up again. The fact that elements within the Benghazi Defence Brigades and the South Shield Brigade have links with Ansar al Charia Benghazi (QDe.146) and Al-Qaida (QDe.004), respectively, is expected to lead to further destabilization and will direct more international attention on southern Libya (see annex 21).

70. The Tebu community, disappointed by the lack of support from LNA, is increasingly divided. For example, Hassan Mussa and Ali Sidi, influential military commanders from Kufrah, fought on different sides (the Benghazi Defence Brigades and LNA, respectively) in March 2017. Divisions are also deepening among the Awlad Sulayman, which fought alongside both warring parties during the Tamanhint clashes.

71. The situation in Kufrah remains very tense: 10,000 Tebu, most of whom are civilians, are still under siege by Zway brigades.

72. In Awbari, in spite of the ceasefire signed in Doha in November 2015,²⁶ discussions with Tebu and Tuareg leaders revealed persistent tensions, spurred by the national division and the lack of engagement on the part of the Presidency Council in the south.

73. Armed groups that were previously paid and acting as regular forces are at present increasingly involved in illicit activities in order to finance their military presence in southern Libya.

E. Conflict in the oil crescent

1. Threats to peace

74. The struggle to control the oil crescent has reached its most violent stage over the past few months, increasingly taking the shape of a conflict between eastern and western forces. The Benghazi Defence Brigades, which are supported by the Presidency Council-nominated Al-Barghathi, have been joined by fighters from

²⁶ "Ban praises Qatar's role in the agreement among Libyan tribes", Al Jazeera, 11 November 2015. Available from www.aljazeera.net/news/arabic/2015/11/25/ليبيا-قبائل-اتفاق-في-قطر-بدور-يشيد-بان.

Tripoli, Misratah, Khums, Zliten and the South Shield Brigade. This is a critical threat to the stability and territorial integrity of Libya.

75. The series of events in the oil crescent between September 2016 and March 2017 have exposed the local population's vulnerability when confronted with armed groups that are well equipped and financed. The recruitment and mobilization of local populations is leading to further fragmentation, as witnessed during the most recent attack by the Benghazi Defence Brigades against oil terminals in March 2017, when dozens of members of the Magharba tribe, recruited by each of the opposing sides, were first arrested by the Benghazi Defence Brigades and later by LNA. Exposed to the arbitrary behaviour of these groups, local populations risk becoming more receptive to the influence of extremist armed groups.

2. Acting for or on behalf of or at the direction of a listed individual or entity

76. The presence in the oil crescent of organizations linked to Al-Qaida predates 2011, notably in the area of Nawfaliyah. It has grown with the creation of Ansar al-Shari'ah branches in Sirte and Ajdabiya, where they benefited from State resources provided by Khaled al-Sharif and Ibrahim Jadhnan, respectively.²⁷ An ISIL document obtained by the Panel reveals business links between Usama Jadhnan and ISIL commander Abu Usama al-Tunsi. Al-Tunsi was killed in October 2016 by Operation Bunyan Marsus, and his name appears on another ISIL document seized by the Operation (see annex 22).

77. ISIL cells have spread across the oil crescent, notably to the Bani Walid and Nawfaliyah regions, according to sources from the Ministry of Defence in Tripoli. The presence in Nawfaliyah of Ahmad al-Hasnawi (linked to Al-Qaida) during the most recent attack by the Benghazi Defence Brigades in March 2017 raises a number of questions concerning Al-Qaida links with ISIL cells. Opposition between ISIL and Al-Qaida is less pronounced in Libya, which could facilitate the absorption of ISIL elements fleeing Sirte by groups linked to Al-Qaida (see annex 21).

78. The Panel received reports of movements of extremist armed groups in the mountainous region stretching from Lut to Abu Nujaym, at the southern edge of the oil crescent.

3. Attacks against any port in Libya or against a State institution or installation

79. Foreign armed groups from Chad and the Sudan have been involved in looting cars owned by oil companies, which were then sold on the Sudanese market, in the city of Tinah.

80. The current state of insecurity, in addition to the closure of oil terminals by the Petroleum Facilities Guard of Ibrahim Jadhnan for over two years, until LNA took control in September 2016, have led to a general deterioration of the infrastructure due to a lack of maintenance.

IV. Regional political and security developments

81. To overcome the political stalemate, in October 2016 UNSMIL submitted a new road map, which inspired the tripartite initiative spearheaded by Algeria, Egypt and Tunisia. The subsequent Cairo declaration adopted in February 2017 did not produce immediate progress.²⁸ While the countries in the region that the Panel visited expressed the view that the Libyan crisis was a priority for them and that they unanimously supported the Libyan Political Agreement, there are significant differences in views and opinions. Some countries in the region have also provided support to alternative political processes.²⁹

82. Regional divisions constitute an obstacle to a political solution in Libya. Two regional alliances have coalesced around Libya. Chad, Egypt and the United Arab Emirates have broadly aligned positions, as do Qatar, the Sudan and Turkey.

A. Involvement of mercenaries

83. Foreign interference in Libya has taken a more direct form with the increasing involvement of Chadian and Sudanese mercenaries. Their actions in the oil crescent are a direct threat to the security and economic stability of Libya (see annex 23). The mercenaries are involved in criminal activities, including trafficking in persons and drugs. In addition, repeated attacks against individuals and property by foreign armed groups in the south of Libya have increased communities' sense of vulnerability and distrust towards LNA and the Misratah Third Force.

84. Former commanders of the Sudan Liberation Army/Minni Minawi confirmed to the Panel that Arab intermediaries and former regime operatives had assisted in, and cash transfers had facilitated, the rapprochement between major Darfuri commanders and the LNA General Command. The Panel also received reports that commanders of the Sudan Liberation Army/Minni Minawi were received in Marj in mid-October 2016.

85. Chadian groups were also hosted in Misratah-controlled bases in Ahjar al-Sawda' and in Sabha. They founded the armed group Front pour l'alternance et la concorde au Tchad in April 2016, after they received important financial and military support in exchange for their mobilization in Libya.³⁰ According to sources from that group, the movement participated in anti-ISIL operations only. The sources added that all parties, including LNA, offered to recruit them. However, the Panel's investigations revealed that the group participated in an attack led by the Benghazi Defence Brigades in March 2017, when it lost one of its main commanders.

B. Regional impact of mercenary armed groups

86. The Sudan expressed its concern to the Panel that Sudanese armed groups involved in Libya would undermine peace efforts in Darfur. The Chadian authorities, in a meeting with the Panel, minimized the impact of Chadian rebels in Libya. However, on 6 January 2017, Chad announced the closure of its borders with Libya to prevent the infiltration of Chadian rebel fighters, after the LNA air force had struck the positions of the Front pour l'alternance et la concorde au Tchad in Jufrah in December 2016. On 19 January 2017, the French authorities imposed financial sanctions on Mahamat Nuri and Mahdi Ali Mahamat, the founders of the group, for a six-month period. France has not clarified to the Panel whether this is related to their mercenary activities in Libya (see annex 23).

C. Military advisers in Tripoli

87. The Panel confirmed the presence of Palestinian military experts in Tripoli. Interviewed by the Panel, a Palestinian official denied any activity in Libya. However, he confirmed that eight members of his faction, who were members of the Palestinian diaspora in Libya, had been arrested in Tripoli in the course of 2016. The Panel is still investigating the case.

V. Acts that violate applicable international human rights law or international humanitarian law or acts that constitute human rights abuses

88. The Panel continues to receive frequent reports of serious human rights violations. The absence of the rule of law and institutional control over armed groups, some of which continue to operate under official mandates, have led to a deterioration of the human rights situation (see recommendation 13).

A. Kidnappings, arbitrary detention and torture

89. Detention conditions continue to be inhumane throughout Libya, and formal and informal detention centres are under the control of armed groups. Arrests and detentions by armed groups do not respect due process. The Panel received numerous reports of kidnappings and arbitrary detentions used by armed groups for political or material benefit. Politicians, activists, bank employees and journalists are frequent targets.

1. Eastern Libya

90. The Panel received testimonies indicating the existence of “a secret section of the Qarnadah prison” in Shahhat. Victims said that they had been kidnapped by a local armed group headed by Ahmad al-Gharour (killed in Ajdabiya in March 2017). They were later handed over to LNA and imprisoned in a secret section in Qarnadah. Denial of access to sanitation, psychological torture and the “savagely beating of some prisoners” were reported. According to testimonies, Munir Belaz and Rabi al-Sharif (from the Salafi al-Tawhid brigade) supervise the secret section. Belaz was officially mandated by the LNA Chief of Staff, Abd al-Razzak al-Nadhuri, to guard the perimeter of the prison. Secret LNA detention centres also exist in the rural areas of Benghazi and are run by Salah al-Huweidi and Mahmud al-Warfalli. In many cases, no prisoners’ lists were made available to human rights organizations and families of detainees.

91. The Panel also documented cases of torture and a case of sexual assault in the Internal Security Apparatus section in Kuwayfiah, under the command of Colonel Mohammad Idriss al-Seaiti (see annex 24).

2. Western Libya

92. The Panel received evidence of mistreatment, torture and denial of access to medical care in the Hadbah prison in Tripoli. Khaled al-Sharif, in charge of the prison, used the detention of key former regime figures in Hadbah to obtain political leverage over former regime constituencies during the national reconciliation talks held in Doha in April 2016. Several individuals in charge of the prison are directly involved in human rights abuses (see annex 25).

Armed groups affiliated with the National Salvation Government

93. Armed groups affiliated with the National Salvation Government were involved in several cases of kidnapping and torture. The Presidential Security, headed by Mohammad Salem Dimona, used detention centres in the Felah area (the detention centre of the Department for Combating Illegal Migration) and in the Rixos Hotel area (see annex 26). Dimona, who moved to Tripoli International Airport in March 2017, was directly responsible for the kidnapping of several individuals, including high-profile figures.

Armed groups affiliated with the Presidency Council

94. The Panel received testimonies of kidnappings, arbitrary detention and torture of journalists and activists involving Haytham al-Tajuri, the commander of the Tripoli Revolutionaries Brigade, currently known as the First Security Division of the Central General Security Administration after it received an official mandate from the National Salvation Government and, later, the Government of National Accord (see annexes 27 and 28 and recommendation 1).

95. The Special Deterrence Force, headed by Abd al-Raouf Kara, runs a detention centre in Mitiga, where, in a separate section, 300 to 500 individuals are held because of suspected affiliation with “terrorist organizations”. The list of those prisoners was not made available to human rights organizations, which could not visit the separate “political” section. The Panel received reports of torture and mistreatment but could not verify these allegations.

96. In Warshafanah, kidnappings for ransom continue to be widespread. In early 2016, the head of a Warshafanah brigade, Nasr al-Din Bu Omayed, executed a Libyan official detained in his informal detention centres. Kidnappings by the Warshafanah were also motivated by vengeance or to organize an exchange for “their” people who were kidnapped by armed groups in Tripoli.

B. Mass killings

97. On 22 July and 28 October 2016, 14 and 10 bodies, respectively, were found in Benghazi. They showed bullet wounds and signs of torture, indicating that the victims had been executed. The Panel understands that at least 10 victims were identified and that some of them had previously gone missing in areas under LNA control. LNA officials interviewed by the Panel stated that the investigation fell under the authority of the Military Governor of the Darnah-Bin Jawwad region.

98. On 11 June 2016, the bodies of 11 former regime loyalists were found in Tripoli. They had previously been held at the Ruwaymi detention centre, and a Tripoli court had ordered their release on 8 June 2016. It was reported that the prison administration had deliberately delayed their release and handed them over to an armed group, which executed them. On 8 June 2016, the Dar al-Ifta’ had rejected the release of former regime prisoners, ruling that it violated Islamic law.³¹

C. Summary executions of prisoners

99. In Sirte and Benghazi, armed groups conducted summary executions of prisoners of war, in clear violation of the Geneva Conventions.³²

100. Two videos posted on social networks reveal the summary execution of four Benghazi Revolutionaries Shura Council prisoners by LNA personnel, including Colonel Mahmud al-Warfalli. LNA said to the Panel that Al-Warfalli had been placed under arrest. However, as at 9 April 2017, Al-Warfalli appeared to still operate as the front-line commander of the LNA special forces. In June 2016, the Panel had already received reports that Al-Warfalli conducted summary executions (see annex 29). LNA Salafi commanders have publicly called for the execution of “apostates”.³³

101. Operation Bunyan Marsus brigades also conducted summary executions in Sirte. There have been dozens, according to a field commander of the Operation. The Panel is still investigating those cases.

D. Indiscriminate attacks

102. ISIL and the Benghazi Revolutionaries Shura Council repeatedly shelled the civilian neighbourhoods of Benghazi under the control of LNA. They also frequently used improvised explosive devices in residential areas, causing the death and injury of many civilians.³⁴

103. In parallel, the LNA leadership showed disregard for civilians trapped in the areas of Qanfudah and Darnah, causing several civilian deaths. Negotiations to allow for a safe evacuation of civilians trapped in Qanfudah were unsuccessful, owing to the lack of real commitment on the part of LNA and the Benghazi Revolutionaries Shura Council.

E. Human rights violations against migrants

104. Abuses against migrants were widely reported, including executions, torture and deprivation of food, water and access to sanitation. The International Organization for Migration (IOM) also reported enslavement of sub-Saharan migrants.³⁵ Smugglers, as well as the Department to Counter Illegal Migration and the coastguard, are directly involved in such grave human rights violations (see also para. 245).

105. Abd al-Rahman Milad (alias Bija), and other coastguard members, are directly involved in the sinking of migrant boats using firearms. In Zawiyah, Mohammad Koshlaf opened a rudimentary detention centre for migrants in the Zawiyah refinery. The Panel collected information on abuses against migrants by several individuals (see annex 30). In addition, the Panel collected reports of poor conditions in migrant detention centres in Khums, Misratah and Tripoli (see para. 93 and annex 31).

VI. Implementation of the arms embargo

A. Overview

106. Arms have continued to be illicitly transferred to and from Libya on a regular basis. While outflows have continued to be moderate, consisting mainly of small arms and light weapons, materiel entering Libya has been of an increasingly sophisticated nature. External assistance to armed groups in terms of direct support, training and technical assistance has also increased. At least two of the armed groups operating in Libya have expanding air forces, which have been used in attacks against other armed groups and each other. The Panel has reviewed commercial satellite imagery of relevant Libyan airports and airfields in order to investigate the development of air capabilities.

107. The political process that the exceptions to the arms embargo were designed to support has not developed in the manner anticipated, as the relationship between armed groups and political entities remains transactional and transitional. The Government of National Accord has not provided information on the structures of security forces under its control, nor has there been any demonstration of such control.

108. Such issues highlight the need for the continuance of the arms embargo with a clear identification of those armed and security forces that can legitimately benefit from exceptions and exemption requests.

B. Transfers of materiel to Libya during the revolution (February-September 2011)

109. The Panel has continued to investigate deliveries of weapons and ammunition made during the revolution.

1. Tunisia

110. Insurgents on the western front depended on transfers from Benghazi over the sea route to Tunisia and onward to the Nafusa Mountains.³⁶ After a meeting between the late General Abd al-Fattah Younis and foreign representatives in mid-April 2011, it was decided to organize a major delivery to the western front.³⁷

111. The Panel has collected over eight accounts of a delivery by sea, paid for by Qatar, of about 40 tons of military equipment to Zarzis, allegedly escorted by the Tunisian armed forces to the Dhehiba-Wazin border post with Libya.³⁸ The Panel found that one maritime delivery had been made to the port of Zarzis by the end of April 2011. Furthermore, in an interview with the television channel Al-Arabiya, the former Prime Minister of the transitional Government of Tunisia, Beji Caïd Essebsi, confirmed that Qatar had received permission to transfer military equipment to

Libya through Tunisia using the Remada military airbase³⁹ around 52 km from the Dhehiba-Wazin border post.⁴⁰

112. Between May and June 2011, the dirt airstrip south of Zintan was graded to allow military cargo planes such as the C-17 to land safely. Since then, most transfers to the western front have been conducted by air, bypassing Tunisia (see S/2012/163, para. 94, and S/2013/99, paras. 70-91).

2. Turi

113. The Panel previously reported on Marc Turi and the Turi Defense Group (see S/2016/209, para. 112 and annex 23), concerning attempts to export weapons to Libya during 2011.

114. A United States Department of Justice prosecution of Turi was due to have commenced on 8 November 2016 in Phoenix, Arizona. The case was dropped in October 2016, with prosecutors quoted as saying that “‘discovery rulings’ from [the] U.S. District Court Judge ... contributed to the decision to drop the case”.⁴¹ The joint motion to dismiss is shown in annex 32. The Panel notes that the document states, “While the parties disagree on the facts of this case and the defendants deny any criminal conduct, the defendants acknowledge that the charges obtained in this case were based in fact”, indicating the existence of networks whose purpose was the import of weapons into Libya.

115. Panel enquiries with the United States requesting further information on the case have not elicited any additional details, and attempts to contact Turi’s legal representatives have not received a response.

3. Italian network

116. Italian police arrested three Italian nationals in January 2017. They are accused of smuggling helicopters and weapons, including surface-to-air missiles, assault rifles and anti-tank missiles, to Libya (and the Islamic Republic of Iran) between 2011 and 2015.⁴²

117. The case is still the subject of an ongoing legal process in Italy, and the Panel continues to investigate.

118. The Panel previously reported on arms transfers from Italy in 2011 (see S/2015/128, annex 17). Potentially related to the alleged transfer of arms from the island of Santo Stefano to Benghazi, the Panel confirmed with a former revolutionary that he had received an arms delivery from Italy “that had originated from the Balkans”.

C. Transfers of materiel after the revolution (September 2011-August 2014)

119. The Panel previously expressed its concern about the impact of transfers of military equipment in the absence of transparent and traceable procurement practices. Several deals concluded with end-user certificates being signed by the then Deputy Minister of Defence, Khaled al-Sharif, including such that were notified to the Committee, have been discussed in a previous report (S/2015/128, paras. 112-117 and 134). At present, such materiel continues to be diverted (see annex 33).

120. In this vein, the Panel is currently investigating the alleged purchase of military equipment by two private Libyan companies for the Benghazi Joint Security Room, which was created in 2013, bringing together the special forces of Benghazi, Libya Shield and several extremist armed groups. The deal was brokered by a Jordanian company, and the transport was facilitated through a Libyan subsidiary of a company registered in the United States. No exemption notification was made to the Committee for the military equipment that had been ordered. The Panel continues its investigation. Additional information is provided to the Committee separately.

D. Transfers or potential transfers of materiel, provision of training and technical assistance to Libya since the strengthening of the arms embargo in August 2014

121. Arms and ammunition continue to be transferred to various parties in Libya with the involvement of Member States and brokers. There has also been an increase in direct support from Member States and foreign armed actors, including in the establishment of military facilities.

1. Development of LNA air force

Mi-24p helicopters

122. The Panel received information that attack helicopters had been delivered to LNA in April 2015. It also received related pictures showing an Mi-24p with tail No. 785 and serial No. 21785 on a military base in eastern Libya. The Panel traced the origin of the helicopter to Belarus. Belarus has confirmed to the Panel that an Mi-24p helicopter with such markings had been transferred to the United Arab Emirates in 2014 as part of a delivery of four Mi-24p. Belarus had issued an end-user certificate and registered the transfer in the United Nations Register of Conventional Arms of 2015 (A/70/168, p. 6).

123. The Committee did not receive an exemption request for the transfer of this helicopter, nor has Belarus received any request by the United Arab Emirates for authorization of re-export of helicopters. The Panel has sent a letter to the United Arab Emirates asking for detailed information on the transfer of the attack helicopter to Libya but has not received a response.

AT-802i fixed-wing aircraft

126. The Panel has received photographic evidence of an AT-802i fixed-wing aircraft based in LNA in eastern Libya. Iomax USA Inc. has developed and modified a commercial agricultural/fire aircraft for counter-insurgency and border protection, purposed and currently marketed under the brand “Archangel”. The Panel could confirm that until February 2017 the only client of Iomax was the United Arab Emirates, for which it had produced and sold 48 units.

127. The first generation of Archangels was based on the AT-802i, a single-engine aircraft built by the United States company Air Tractor. The plane shown in the photograph below was part of a delivery to the United Arab Emirates in March 2011.

129. Information on transport aircraft sighted at Khadim can be found in annex 35. The aircraft are believed to be connected to reports that several airlines registered in the Republic of Moldova have been transporting officers and commanders of armed groups allied to Haftar's LNA (see recommendation 5).

130. Details of developments at Al-Abraq airbase can be found in annex 36, and developments at Zintan airbase in annex 37.

Additional attempts

131. The Panel is concerned about retransfers used to conceal LNA as the real end user. The Panel is investigating an ongoing case involving Mi-24v attack helicopters that have been offered to the air force of Haftar's LNA without the submission of an exemption request to the Committee (see annex 38).

International support for LNA

United Arab Emirates

132. The United Arab Emirates have been providing both material support (see paras. 122 ff) and direct support to LNA (see paras. 124 ff), which have significantly increased the air support available to LNA. The Panel has received no response from the United Arab Emirates to its enquiries.

France

133. The presence of French military personnel in Libya was publicly acknowledged by the Ministry of Defence of France,⁴⁵ following the deaths of three operatives in an LNA helicopter crash near the city of Benghazi. The three soldiers were reported to have been on an intelligence-gathering mission in the east of Libya. France has stated to the Panel that its military activities in Libya conform to international law.

Other support

134. The recent air strikes against targets in the oil crescent to support the recapture by LNA of a number of oil terminals demonstrated a capability for night bombing missions that are believed to be outside the capabilities of the integral air force of LNA. Confidential sources suggest that a regional State was responsible. The Panel's investigations are ongoing.

2. Development of the Misratah air force

Investigations relating to aviation capability and mercenaries

135. Aerial attacks from the Misratah airbase have continued since 2016. Two Mirage F1 fighter jets were operational and were flown by at least three foreign pilots acting as mercenaries. They reportedly flew from March until the third week of July 2016. One of them died after his plane crashed on 2 June 2016, having carried out a raid against ISIL in Sirte. Since the crash, only one Mirage F1 in Misratah has remained operational.

136. While the Panel was able to identify the deceased pilot as a national of Portugal and a permanent resident of Germany, the latter State has not provided information that could have helped to disclose relevant leads on the entities that had contracted him and had paid for his services in Libya.

137. A team of engineers from Ecuador has been in charge of the maintenance of the Mirage F1. When contacted by the Panel, Ecuador stated that it had no knowledge of such activities. While a bank account related to the payment of the engineers has been identified, Ecuador has not responded to a Panel request for further details.

138. The company that recruited the engineers is "Gateway to MENA for Logistics Services", registered in Jordan (see annex 39). The representative of the company in the contract is a Moldovan citizen, Sergiu Banari. The Republic of Moldova confirmed that Banari had a connection with the arms broker Rami Ghanem, who holds both United States and Jordanian citizenship. Ghanem had also been involved in the recruitment of the Ecuadorian crews. Ghanem was arrested in Greece⁴⁶ on 8 December 2015, after he allegedly tried to ship weapons illegally to Hizbullah.

139. The company has admitted to having "provided some services to the Government of National Accord" and has mentioned that it had an altercation with "a former employee" who was mentioned in the Panel's final report for 2016 and identified as one of the pilots flying the Mirage F1 from Misratah (see S/2016/209, para. 169).

140. Regular money transfers from the Latvijas Pasta Bank (Latvia) were carried out by companies registered in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (annex 39, para. 4) to the benefit of several Ecuadorian citizens who had been members of the Ecuadorian Air Force. Regular payments to these individuals were detected between June and December 2015. Engineers received almost $10,000 per month, while pilots received $20,000. The Panel requested further bank details from Ecuador and the United Kingdom but has not received the requested information.

141. The Panel has learned that after the arrest of Ghanem, individuals from Misratah have contracted the Ecuadorian team directly. Some individuals involved have been identified (annex 39, para. 7). Several sources have confirmed that Abdul Salam Fakroum, a well-known Misratan businessman, has also been involved on the logistical side of hosting some crew members outside the airbase in the city of Misratah. He has also been providing the pilots of the Mirage F1 with the coordinates of the targets to be attacked, at least until the operations against ISIL in Sirte started.

Misratah airbase

142. The Misratah airbase has seen an increase in infrastructure and a concentration of air assets since 2014. The images in figure 15 below show the development that has taken place to the north of the main aircraft apron of the airfield since 2014.

Figure 15
Satellite imagery of Misratah airbase, area to the north of main apron, February 2014 (top)
and March 2017 (bottom)

Source: DigitalGlobe, GeoEye-1, 15 February 2014, and WorldView-3, 4 March 2017.

143. With the new hardened taxiways and bermed parking locations, the Misratans have concentrated G2-Galeb and L-39 fixed-wing aircraft in this location. An Mi-24/Mi-35 attack helicopter and two Mi-2 helicopters can also be seen. The Panel has not been able to confirm whether the build-up of aircraft is related to transfers within Libya. It is the Panel's assessment that incoming transfers of new aircraft are unlikely to have occurred; it is more likely that previously unserviceable aircraft have been restored. This is an indicator of the transfer of spare parts and provision of technical assistance.

Source: DigitalGlobe, GeoEye-1, 15 February 2014, and WorldView-3, 4 March 2017.

144. The images of the main apron (see figure 16) also show increased use by military aircraft since 2014, including Mi-24/35 and probable Mi-8 helicopters. A MiG-25 fighter aircraft has also been moved to the main apron (bottom right corner).

Source: DigitalGlobe, GeoEye-1, 15 February 2014, and WorldView-3, 4 March 2017.

145. While the aircraft parked along the north-eastern edge of the southern apron (see figure 17) are probably unserviceable, the two MiG-23 parked more centrally (one with retracted wings) are assessed to be functioning. A new concrete hard standing can be seen on the upper left side.

International support for Operation Bunyan Marsus

Air strikes

146. At the conclusion of Operation Odyssey Lightning, the United States military stated on 20 December 2016⁴⁷ that it had conducted 495 air strikes in Libya as part of the Operation, which began on 1 August 2016. These air strikes were reported to have targeted ISIL command and control assets, fighting positions, vehicle-borne improvised explosive devices, engineering equipment, tanks, heavy weapons and vehicles. The large majority of the air strikes conducted as part of the Operation were conducted in the area of Sirte. The United States repeatedly stated that its air strikes had been conducted “at the request of, and in coordination with, the Government of National Accord”.⁴⁸

Special forces

147. The Panel has received consistent reports of Italian, United Kingdom and United States special forces personnel operating in support of the operations of Operation Bunyan Marsus, providing both technical assistance and direct support. None of the countries involved have commented on Panel inquiries into the presence of their special forces within Libya.⁴⁹

E. International support for Libya

148. Paragraph 10 of resolution 2095 \(2013\) provides an exception to the arms embargo for “supplies of non-lethal military equipment, and the provision of any technical assistance, training or financial assistance, when intended solely for security or disarmament assistance to the Libyan Government”. This is further clarified in the twelfth preambular paragraph of resolution 2292 \(2016\) which specifies: “when intended solely for security or disarmament assistance to the Government of National Accord and the national security forces under its control”. Resolution 2292 \(2016\) also reiterates the Council’s request for a focal point in the Government of National Accord to “provide information relevant to the Committee’s work on the structure of the security forces under its control”, in accordance with paragraph 6 of resolution 2278 \(2016\). At the time of writing, no such information had been provided.

149. The resolutions provide no other mechanism for identifying national security forces under the control of the Government of National Accord. Given the issues concerning the political process and the transactional and transitional nature of the allegiances of armed groups, including those currently providing support to the Presidency Council, the Panel does not view any grouping as benefiting from this exception at this time. In view of this, the Panel believes that any supplies of non-lethal military equipment, technical assistance, training or financial assistance to an armed group, without the approval of the Committee, contravenes the arms embargo.

1. Training activities

Coastguard

150. EUNAVFOR MED delivered an initial training package, beginning in October 2016, reportedly for 78 Libyans on board two EUNAVFOR MED vessels. The initial training package was stated⁵⁰ to have included basic seamanship and more advanced specialist skills. It was stated in the same document that training was being delivered to both the Libyan coastguard and the Libyan navy. A subsequent statement indicated that 89 individuals had received training in the first training package.⁵¹

151. A second package of training was started on 30 January 2017 for 20 Libyan coastguard and navy trainees.⁵² The statement released by the European Union providing these details again stated that only 78 individuals had been trained in the first package. It also states that the original memorandum of understanding had been signed with the “Libyan navy coastguard” rather than with the navy and the coastguard as separate entities, as the European Union refers to them elsewhere in the same statement and in its other public announcements. In the eighteenth preambular paragraph of resolution 2312 (2016), the Council took note of the decision of the Council of the European Union to expand the EUNAVFOR MED mandate to the training of the Libyan coastguard and navy in law enforcement at sea. However, the anticipated briefing by EUNAVFOR MED to the Committee regarding their activities, as highlighted in the Chair’s report of 6 December 2016 (see S/PV.7827), had not taken place.

152. Neither the coastguard nor the navy has been notified to the Committee as part of the security forces under the control of the Government of National Accord, and the issue of control is further highlighted by multiple reports of criminal activities involving the coastguard (see para. 104), most notably by UNSMIL: “Migrants, as well as representatives of international non-governmental organizations that carry out search and rescue operations, have also recounted dangerous, life-threatening interceptions by armed men believed to be from the Libyan coastguard. After interception, migrants are often beaten, robbed and taken to detention centres or private houses and farms, where they are subjected to forced labour, rape and other sexual violence”.⁵³

153. These reports highlight further concerns raised with the Panel over the level of vetting to which trainees have been subject.

Presidential Guard

154. Close protection training has been delivered by France to a unit of the Presidential Guard in Tripoli. The Panel understands that the training is being delivered in batches, with a total of approximately 80 personnel to be trained by mid-2017.

Conclusion

155. The European Union and France have indicated to the Panel that the training was undertaken upon the request of the Presidency Council and Al-Serraj, respectively. Both used paragraph 10 of resolution 2095 (2013) as the authority for their training, without reference to the later resolutions. In the Panel’s opinion, it remains unclear as to who can benefit from the exception, with diverging interpretations of the resolutions (see recommendations 1, 2, 3 and 15).

2. Italian military personnel

156. The deployment of an Italian military hospital to Misratah airport came with a simultaneous reported deployment of at least 100 armed military personnel.⁵⁴ The presence of armed military personnel as a protective measure for the hospital was confirmed in official communications with the Panel. No exemption request or notification was submitted to the Committee.

F. Further transfers of materiel into Libya

1. Guided artillery munitions

157. The photograph of the artillery projectile below was taken by the Benghazi Revolutionaries Shura Council and released on 30 October 2016 through social media. The Shura Council initially reported the projectile as a United States-made rocket. The image was subsequently analysed and reported on by IHS Jane’s.⁵⁵ The projectile was identified as a Krasnopol made by the KBP Instrument Design Bureau. No exemption request or notification was submitted to the Committee.

Markings on the projectile:

1/121 (indicating lot number)

2014 (year of manufacture)

A-IX-I (indicating explosive fill)

158. In response to Panel enquiries, the Russian Federation indicated that Krasnopol guided artillery projectiles were designed by AO Shipunov KBP Instrument Design Bureau in Tula and manufactured by AO Kalashnikov Concern in Izhevsk. However, in 2014 AO Kalashnikov Concern did not manufacture Krasnopol projectiles or export them to foreign customers. The Russian Federation also indicated that the explosive fill shown was not the one used in that type of projectile and that AO Kalashnikov Concern as the manufacturer did not use markings like the lot number shown.

159. The Panel has also investigated the potential for the projectile to be a GP-1 or a GP-6, manufactured by China North Industries Corporation, which have the same external features as the Krasnopol; however, no response has been received from China. Investigations continue.

2. Deliveries of armoured personnel carriers and other vehicles

160. The Panel has confirmed new reports⁵⁶ of deliveries of armoured vehicles to LNA in Tubruq on 17 April 2016. According to the bill of lading, the delivery consisted of 93 armoured personnel carriers and 549 armoured and non-armoured vehicles. The 93 carriers likely included 75 Panther T6, produced by Minerva Special Purpose Vehicles, and 18 Tygra models, produced by Mezcal (a spin-off from the former), both based in the United Arab Emirates.

161. The armoured personnel carriers were part of the same contracts on which the Panel reported previously (S/2016/209, annexes 29 and 30) and that were brokered by the United Arab Emirates-based company Ard el Theqa General Trading⁵⁷ and designating the Ministry of the Interior of Libya as the end user. ⁵⁷ The same company name has been used by another broker, Mohammed Tag, working on behalf of LNA.

Mezcal confirmed to the Panel in 2015 that it had previously shipped 10 Tygras to Tubruq.

162. The Panel's investigations indicated that the vessel Bahri Abha (IMO 9620944) had shipped the vehicles from the United Arab Emirates. The Bahri Abha is registered in Saudi Arabia and belongs to a Saudi State-owned shipping line. The Panel contacted the Saudi authorities, which confirmed the shipment and shared the bills of lading (see annex 40). The ship left Jebel Ali port (United Arab Emirates) on 24 March 2016 and docked in Tubruq on 17 April 2016.

163. Of the 549 vehicles, 195 Toyota Land Cruiser pickup trucks were loaded in Jeddah Islamic Port, Saudi Arabia. The pictures below show the delivery of the armoured personnel carriers, as well as workshops where weapons are fitted to the vehicles.

164. For armed groups in Libya, Toyota pickup trucks (primarily single-cabin HZJ 79) seem to be even more important than armoured vehicles, because of the ease in mounting various infantry support weapons, notably 12.7-mm and 14.5-mm machine guns and 106-mm recoilless rifles. The Panel's assessment is that when such vehicles have armed and security units as end users, they should be viewed as military materiel (see recommendation 2).

165. Furthermore, the Panel has received Member State reports indicating that Libyan armed groups also use pickup trucks as barter items in exchange for weapons and ammunition and as payment to mercenaries.

166. During the reporting period, the Panel received information on large deliveries of Toyota pickup trucks and armoured 4x4 cars to Tubruq on 16 January and 4 April 2017 (see annex 41).

167. Additional information on a potential shipment of pickup trucks to a western armed group is being separately submitted to the Committee.

3. Interception equipment

168. The Panel received confirmation of reports that deliveries of interception and jamming equipment had been made to Tripoli since the adoption of resolution 2174 (2014) in August 2014. The Panel obtained a letter of complaint from the Libyan Post, Telecommunication and Information Technology Company to one of the suppliers of the materiel (see annex 42). The Panel also interviewed a Libyan buyer who travelled to Marbella, Spain, on multiple occasions to procure such equipment.

169. This equipment was deployed in several areas of Tripoli, under the control of different armed groups, including the National Mobile Force, the Special Deterrence Force, the National Guard and the Abu Salim Brigade. These groups have been involved in serious human rights violations and criminal activities. The capability to listen into mobile phone conversations and read private messages increases their operational effectiveness and provides a significant tactical advantage over rival armed groups. More importantly, in a city where bank robberies, abductions and killings frequently occur, the ease of access to materiel capable of tracking the movements of civilians is a significant threat to peace and security. The Panel has received information that such equipment has been used for blackmailing and to plan kidnappings (see recommendation 4).

4. Private security companies

170. The Panel is currently looking into reports on the presence of private security companies in Libya, notably the precise details of the contracting of the Russian company RSB Group for the demining of the facilities of the Libyan Cement Company in Benghazi (see annex 43).

G. Transfers of materiel from Libya

1. Tunisia

171. On 7 March 2016, ISIL elements launched a major attack on police and national guard stations, as well as a military camp, in the southern Tunisian town of Ben Gardane, located 20 km from the Libyan border. The Tunisian security forces seized a considerable number of weapons and, as a result of the ensuing investigations, located over six arms caches in the wider region of Ben Gardane near the Libyan border. The Security Council condemned “in the strongest terms the 7 March terrorist attack ..., which resulted in the deaths of 12 members of Tunisia’s security forces and 7 civilians, as well as over 17 injured”.⁵⁸ In April 2017, the Tunisian authorities closed the investigations and indicted 77 people.

172. The Tunisian Armed Forces have granted the Panel access to materiel seized by the security forces in March and April 2016 in the wider Ben Gardane area, following the attack (see annex 44).

Torun shotguns

173. With the support of the Tunisian authorities, the Panel identified a series of over-under shotguns produced by Torun Silah Sanayi and seized in March 2016 from an arms cache discovered after the attack in Ben Gardane and smuggled into the country from Libya.

174. Following the Panel’s enquiry with Turkish authorities, Torun Silah Sanayi claims to have sold the shotguns to the “Yassine Middle East Company”, a shotgun reseller in Beirut. According to the Turkish authorities, the customs declaration states that these shotguns were loaded onto the vessel Haddad I, which was intercepted by the Hellenic coastguard in September 2015. The materiel on board the Haddad I was seized by Greece (see also S/2016/209, para. 153).

175. However, the serial numbers documented by the Panel in Tunisia do not seem to match the packing lists provided by Torun Silah Sanayi through the Turkish authorities. The Panel also found inconsistencies between the preliminary investigations of the Greek police and the documentation previously provided by the Turkish authorities (see S/2016/209, annex 34). It seems unlikely that the shotguns were transferred to Libya after they had been seized by Greece on board the Haddad I.

The Panel has requested clarifications from both the Turkish and the Greek authorities.

176. Another item of interest recovered was a Night Owl model NONB2FF night vision device, serial No. 50003063, which is marked as having been manufactured in Belarus.

177. Research by the Panel indicates that Night Owl Optics operates from a company address in Texas, United States. The United States has not responded to the Panel’s request for information.

178. Further examples of items recovered are shown in annex 44.

2. Egypt

179. Egyptian authorities provided a list of weapons, sorted by type and quantity, that were seized in the course of being smuggled from Libya to Egypt between 1 January and 11 November 2016. The most significant number of weapons recovered was 1,395 shotguns. No further details were provided, and the Panel continues to engage with the Egyptian authorities in order to gain further details so as to establish the original supplier of these weapons. The full list is shown in annex 45.

3. Niger

180. Officials of the Niger reported a reduction in the scale of weapons trafficking from Libya in 2017; however, they raised issues such as migrants being used as “mules” to transport weapons and the Tebu community providing links between ISIL in Libya and Boko Haram. Details of transfers to the Niger are shown in annex 46.

4. Mali

181. From within the Tuareg community, the Panel received repeated reports regarding arms transfers from Ansar el Haqq, headed by Mohammed Ingtallah and based in Awbari, to Ansar Eddine (QDe.135) in Mali. The deliveries are allegedly composed of light weapons, such as Zastava M80 assault rifles, anti-tank weapons and explosives. The operations are supposedly coordinated by Ingtallah’s son.

5. Algeria

182. The Panel reviewed reports of seizures by Algerian authorities but could not physically inspect the materiel (see annex 47).

VII. Prevention of illicit crude oil exports under resolution 2146 (2014)

183. On 27 April 2016,⁵⁹ the vessel Distya Ameya (IMO 9077343) became the first vessel to be added to the sanctions list, for violating the measures relating to attempts to illicitly export crude oil from Libya, pursuant to paragraph 10 of resolution 2146 (2014). Following its designation, the tanker returned to Libya to offload its cargo in Zawiyah, completing the operation on 6 May 2016. Upon a request by the flag State, India, and an indication of no objection by Libya, the Committee delisted the vessel on 16 May 2016 (see annex 48).

184. It is noteworthy that, at the time of the export attempt, the Presidency Council had not yet appointed its focal point pursuant to resolution 2146 (2014). Instead, the case was presented to the Committee by the Permanent Representative of Libya to the United Nations.

185. On 4 November 2016, the Committee, through the Permanent Mission of Libya, received a communication from Abdallah Ateiga, who presented himself as the focal point appointed by the Presidency Council, without providing contact details, and warned about a possible attempt to illegally sell crude oil. The Committee requested his contact details; however, the Permanent Mission of Libya informed the Panel that no relevant information had been received from Tripoli (see annex 49).

186. The shipment that Ateiga had warned about was acknowledged by the eastern National Oil Corporation. It explained to the Panel that it had given the order to the Arabian Gulf Oil Company, a subsidiary of the National Oil Corporation, to prepare the amount of 2 million barrels to be shipped to Egypt on 11 November 2016. The Panel had access to some documents regarding the vessel that was to load the shipment, but its name and IMO number had been redacted in the documents (see annex 49).

187. Sources from within the eastern National Oil Corporation stated that the shipment had been “proposed by Egypt” in accordance with a memorandum of understanding signed on 29 December 2015, one day before the endorsement of the Libyan Political Agreement. Egypt denied that such a shipment had been agreed upon, but acknowledged the existence of this memorandum. However, it had not taken any action to implement it or any other contract.

188. The name of a vessel was not disclosed by Ateiga to the Committee, and to the Panel’s knowledge the shipment was never carried out.

189. Another attempt by the eastern National Oil Corporation to export crude oil is related to a contract that it signed with the company Europa Shipping SA. It states that a shipment of crude oil from Marsa al-Hariqah was due to be carried out between 25 and 30 November 2016 (see annex 50). The amount of crude oil to be exported, as mentioned in the agreement, was 3 million barrels of the Sarir/Mesla blend. The export has not taken place to date.

190. The western National Oil Corporation is aware of these attempts and sent a public warning to the companies that are trying to gain access to the Libyan oil trade.⁶⁰ The eastern authorities issued a counterstatement on 27 March 2017 (see annex 51).

VIII. Unity of State institutions and misappropriation of State funds

191. The Panel finds that the key financial institutions of Libya remain more divided than ever. With the possible exception of the National Oil Corporation, control over their infrastructure, assets and personnel has further fragmented. This has reduced the possibility for oversight and increased the risk of misappropriation.

⁶⁰ National Oil Corporation, “National Oil Corporation warns oil market against illegal contracts”, statement, 26 March 2017. Available from <http://noc.ly/index.php/en/new-4/2148-national-oil-corporation-warns-oil-market-against-illegal-contracts>.

192. The Presidency Council has been divided over the organization of and appointments in key institutions. For example, Fathi al-Mejbari has tried to replace Mustafa Sanallah at the helm of the National Oil Corporation, and Ahmed Maetig has repeatedly advocated removing Faisal Gergab from the Libyan Post, Telecommunication and Information Technology Company. In addition, in those cases where the Presidency Council did reach a decision, the decision has been further contested externally and the Council mandate questioned.

193. As a consequence, the loyalty of some staff is still divided between the competing authorities, which have each tried to make their own appointments. Rival managements and their political backers continue to attempt to strengthen their position through various strategies, including legal action and support from armed groups, often with a destabilizing impact (see recommendation 14).

194. Sources consulted by the Panel are in agreement that the interference of armed groups in Tripoli has increased. Rival managements of institutions sometimes actively seek the services of armed groups to strengthen their claims. Sometimes, armed groups make themselves indispensable. In some cases, armed group affiliates are included in the staff or management of institutions.

195. Important concerns over the budgetary implications of the persistent division have been voiced by the Audit Bureau of Libya. The Bureau pointed out to the Panel that State expenditure was still too high, especially in terms of the exaggerated number of employees on government payroll. In addition, the Al-Ghweil and Al-Thinni Governments continue to enter into contracts in the name of the Libyan State. The Presidency Council itself is also responsible for misspending, as shown by its transfer of $42 million to Ibrahim Jadhran in mid-2016. Other concerns raised included the weakened position of Libyan institutions in numerous multimillion-dollar court cases, often initiated with the assistance of Libyan nationals seeking to make a profit out of them. Finally, frequent attempts are made to sell assets of Libyan institutions and companies to obtain liquidity. Without unity and stability, these issues cannot be addressed.

196. The Panel received many allegations of misappropriation of State funds from dozens of interviewees, many of whom were insiders. Given the complexity of these cases, the limited access to Libya and the resources available to the Panel, it cannot possibly investigate all of these allegations conclusively and in detail.

A. National Oil Corporation

1. The institution

197. Attempts to unify the National Oil Corporation under the Presidency Council's "patronage" made some progress, although tangible results remained scant after an initial agreement was signed in Vienna on 16 May 2016. Eventually, the eastern National Oil Corporation withdrew from the agreement on 13 March 2017.

198. The political agreement between the two rival institutions signed in Vienna⁶¹ (see annex 52) and the subsequent technical agreement signed in Istanbul⁶² represented a significant achievement for a divided Libya. However, the agreement received insufficient support. First, there was a lack of clear commitment on the part of the House of Representatives (see para. 202). Second, internal disputes within the Presidency Council hindered the allocation of financial resources required by the National Oil Corporation⁶³ to meet the running costs of oil production. Disagreement between the National Oil Corporation and the Council featured throughout the entire reporting period.⁶⁴

199. Sources within the rival boards of directors confirmed to the Panel that contacts between the two competing Chairs, Mustafa Sanallah and Naji al-Maghrebi, had commenced before the Presidency Council was established in Tripoli. There were several setbacks during the negotiations, most notably when the tanker Distya Ameya entered the port of Marsa al-Hariqah to load crude oil under a contract signed with the eastern National Oil Corporation. The loaded tanker left on 26 April 2016, only 20 days before the signing of the Vienna agreement and after negotiations between the Chairs had already been held in Malta, Tunisia and Turkey. Until May 2016, the eastern National Oil Corporation would continue attempts to strike similar deals,⁶⁵ while the western National Oil Corporation tried to prevent oil companies from negotiating with its eastern counterpart (see annex 53).

200. As a reaction to the listing of the Distya Ameya, eastern authorities retaliated by preventing the tanker Seachance from loading crude oil in Marsa al-Hariqah on 3 May 2016 under a contract signed by the western National Oil Corporation.⁶⁶

201. According to the eastern National Oil Corporation, the Distya Ameya incident had not been intended to derail the negotiations; it was an ongoing development that had been initiated months before. It might also indicate a lack of communication within the eastern National Oil Corporation or unilateral action by members of the eastern board of directors (see para. 250).

202. When the Vienna agreement was presented to the Energy Committee of the House of Representatives by the eastern National Oil Corporation, it was poorly received. The Committee showed concern on two issues: the sharing of revenues and the fact that Al-Maghrebi would be the only representative of the eastern National Oil Corporation on the unified board of directors. The House continued to make several negative statements on the agreement (see annex 54). Both Sanallah and Al-Maghrebi were under great pressure from different stakeholders throughout the process.

203. The frustration of the eastern National Oil Corporation over the reluctance of its western counterpart to move the headquarters to Benghazi, and the lack of progress regarding the implementation of other aspects of the Vienna agreement, led to a “suspension” of the unification in late 2016. On 13 March 2017, the eastern National Oil Corporation issued a statement announcing its withdrawal from the agreement (see annex 55). Moreover, on 27 March 2017, the Deputy Prime Minister of the Al-Thinni Government issued a statement to oil industry stakeholders, claiming that the National Oil Corporation based in Benghazi was the only institution in Libya entitled to strike oil deals (see annex 51). The previous day, the western National Oil Corporation had sent the opposite message to companies willing to deal with its eastern counterpart.⁶⁷

204. In October 2016, the eastern National Oil Corporation had already restarted parallel activities, and the Committee was warned of a new attempt to ship oil (see paras. 185 ff).

205. Although both boards of directors still exist, the western National Oil Corporation seems to play the leading role, both institutionally and technically. Despite the signature of the Vienna agreement and a short rapprochement between both institutions, a good opportunity to set an example for other relevant duplicated Libyan institutions was lost. In addition, the fact that both institutions continue to operate increases the likelihood of illicit deals.

2. Installations

206. After LNA took control of the terminals and oil wells in the central region in September 2016 (see para. 80), control over the facilities was “given” to the (by then) unified National Oil Corporation, which restarted the export of crude oil. After the offensive of the Benghazi Defence Brigades in early March 2017, the control of the terminals remained with the unified National Oil Corporation.⁶⁸ After LNA regained control over the terminals on 14 March 2017, the Sidrah oil port resumed activity under the western National Oil Corporation.⁶⁹

207. It is remarkable that, on all three occasions, warring camps transferred the control of the oil installations to the National Oil Corporation led by Sanallah, including after the cancellation of the Vienna agreement by the eastern National Oil Corporation.

208. Oil production was irregular during the reporting period but has increased in the past months, mainly because the Rayayinah valve was reopened on 20 December 2016, after long negotiations, allowing the oil fields of Shararah and Fil to resume production and to send crude oil to the refinery in Zawiyah and to the Mellitah complex, respectively.⁷⁰ However, this situation is not stable, and further interruptions are to be expected.⁷¹

B. Central Bank of Libya

209. The division of the Central Bank of Libya has continued since the issuance of the Panel’s previous final report (see S/2016/209, paras. 217-226). Two individuals continue to claim the position of Central Bank Governor. The Bank’s duties are exercised mainly from Tripoli, where Sadiq al-Kebir heads the organization. In Bayda', Ali al-Hibri heads the Bank's eastern branch while also maintaining a claim to the governorship.

210. Al-Kebir, who manages the Bank's accounts and the majority of its staff, de facto controls the financing of the Presidency Council. His support to the Council has been slow and limited, leading to a series of public accusations by Al-Serraj, including a claim that Al-Kebir was a spoiler.⁷² Al-Kebir and Central Bank Board member Tarik Yousef al-Magariaf told the Panel that, in their view, the Council itself was responsible for the delays in financing. They stated that they could accept payment orders only from the Ministry of Finance and not directly from Council members. They added that the emergency budget prepared by the Council was of poor quality and lacked the necessary detail.

211. The Presidency Council and the western Central Bank of Libya have argued over other issues as well, most notably on the devaluation of the Libyan dinar.⁷³ Whereas the Council has insisted on devaluation, making it a central issue during talks in Rome and London, the western Central Bank has refused. Al-Magariaf explained to the Panel that the Central Bank was, in principle, in favour but that the Council needed to have a number of reinforcing policies in place first.

212. Al-Hibri is considered the Governor of the Central Bank by the Al-Thinni Government and the House of Representatives. Although he has control over neither the Central Bank's seat in Tripoli nor its income from oil exports, he has a significant impact on public finances, highlighting the division of the institution.

213. First, following persistent complaints of insufficient cash deliveries from Tripoli (see S/2016/209, para. 219), the eastern Central Bank had its own money printed. The notes were printed by a separate company, different from the usual Central Bank provider. Although a clear effort was made to produce nearly identical notes, important differences remain (see annex 56). Because it was facing its own cash shortage in the capital, the Presidency Council approved its circulation and, thereby, the eastern Central Bank's initiative.⁷⁴ However, the western Central Bank has blocked its distribution in the capital.

214. Second, eastern administrators claimed to the Panel that a significant percentage of salaries in the east had not been paid by the western Central Bank. They stated that, by the end of 2016, Al-Hibri had disbursed over 3 billion dinars from commercial loans to resolve the problem. These loans increase the State debt and will need to be repaid by a future unified Government.

215. Attempts to unify the two competing branches made some progress throughout 2016 but ultimately failed. Al-Kebir and Al-Hibri met twice in Tunisia midyear, but a third meeting in Libya was cancelled. A solution in the short term is unlikely. On the one hand, the eastern Central Bank insists on a number of considerable concessions: an agreement on the distribution of cash (both prints); an increase in Central Bank approval of letters of credit for the east, which it reports to be currently limited to 17 per cent of the nationwide total; the restoration of eastern access to the Central Bank's information technology system; and full Central Bank coverage of certain eastern expenses. On the other hand, reunification and compromise do not appear to be a priority at the western Central Bank, which is clearly in a stronger position.

C. Libyan Investment Authority

216. Authority over the Libyan Investment Authority has remained contested since the arrival of the Presidency Council in Tripoli, and the contestation has involved the use of force on several occasions.

217. Initially, the Presidency Council maintained lines of communication with the two rival Chief Executive Officers: Hassan Bouhadi, operating from the Authority's office in Malta, and Abdulmagid Breish, in Tripoli.

218. In a first incident, the Al-Thinni Government forced Bouhadi to approve the appointment of a new Chief Executive Officer, Ali Shamekh. On 25 July 2016, Bouhadi was arrested by the Benghazi Criminal Investigation Department, intimidated and prevented from travelling until he organized a board meeting that voted in Shamekh (see annex 57). Reportedly, the Al-Thinni Government dispatched the "envoy" and armed group leader Abd al-Majid Mlektah to add pressure. It appears that the sidelining of Bouhadi was related to his outreach to the Presidency Council. Eastern resistance against a possible integration of the Authority under the Council was publicly spearheaded by boycotting Council member and House of Representative member Al-Qatrani (see annex 58).

219. Following these events, the Presidency Council appointed a new "Interim Steering Committee" that would serve as both Chief Executive Officer and board of directors until it managed to transfer the governance structure of the Authority to Tripoli through the correct formal procedure. The Steering Committee was headed by Ali Mahmoud, a former member of the Authority's board of directors.

220. The appointment of the Steering Committee led to subsequent incidents: Mahmoud was refused access to the Authority's offices in Tripoli, where Breish was not ready to step down. In a letter to the Panel, Breish asserted that the decision of the Presidency Council to appoint the Steering Committee was invalid because it was not compliant with Libyan law. He took his case to the Tripoli Administrative Court.

221. The Steering Committee forced Breish out of the Authority's offices with assistance from personnel whom it identified as belonging to the "Office for the Security and Safety of the Tripoli Tower" and who are generally armed. The wider area around the Tripoli Tower was at that time under the control of Kara's Special Deterrence Force.

222. On 5 February 2017, Breish regained control over the Authority's offices after a ruling by the Tripoli Administrative Court rejecting the appointment by the Presidency Council of the Steering Committee. He was assisted in his return by a small group of men who also appeared to respond to Kara. The Steering Committee and the Council declared that the men were armed, a report that was denied by Breish. In any case, it is clear to the Panel that the security personnel in control of the Tripoli Tower has the final say as to who occupies the Authority's head office, a situation that is not tenable.

223. Following the Tripoli Administrative Court ruling, the Presidency Council replaced the "Interim Steering Committee" with an "Interim Management Committee", in an exact replication of the previous decree. The Council reached out to all high-ranking civil servants and, referring to Breish, stated that "all dealings with persons or bodies that do not have lawful and legitimate capacity are prohibited, in accordance with the relevant decisions of the Presidency Council" (see annex 62).

224. Meanwhile, the Management Committee moved out of the Tripoli Tower into an area under the protection of an armed group commanded by Abd al-Gadir Rweyati.

225. The continuing division of the Libyan Investment Authority led to increasing uncertainty among its staff facing pressure from all sides. This resulted in a strike at the Tripoli offices on 8 February.⁷⁵ The division of the Authority is one of the main inhibiting factors to tackling persistent reports of (attempted) cases of misappropriation.

226. Meanwhile, all of the Authority's direct assets held outside Libya prior to 16 September 2011 remain frozen under relevant Security Council resolutions. Both Bouhadi and Breish confirmed to the Panel that the frozen status of the assets caused banks and fund managers to ignore the Authority's directives, an attitude that appears to be further reinforced by the uncertainty as to who legitimately represents the sovereign wealth fund.

227. The Panel has previously reported on the rigidity of the current sanctions regime and how the Authority's assets lose value after investments have matured because they cannot be reinvested (see S/2016/209, paras. 252 ff). This situation remains unchanged, to the frustration of the Authority's managers. However, it will be difficult to modify the sanctions regime and resolve such management issues while the fund remains divided. The freezing of the assets was not contested by any of the parties involved.

D. Libyan Post, Telecommunication and Information Technology Company

228. The Libyan Post, Telecommunication and Information Technology Company is another key strategic Libyan institution at risk of duplication and misappropriation of funds. It represents a total value of over $20 billion, $7 billion of which constitute cash assets in banks in Tripoli. In 2015 and 2016, the entity's revenue represented over 10 per cent of the Libyan budget. It is also a major employer paying over 17,000 salaries.

229. The control over the Company lies mainly with its 2013 management, which has operated from Bayda' and Malta since August 2014. That management, headed by the Chair, Faisal Gergab, is also recognized by the Presidency Council (see annex 59) and can travel relatively freely throughout the country, including Tripoli. Nevertheless, its authority has been challenged in both the east and the west, and not all subsidiaries respond to it. Furthermore, it has no access to the head office in Tripoli.

230. The strongest challenge to the authority of the 2013 management originates from individuals affiliated with the National Salvation Government. In October 2014, the National Salvation Government appointed a temporary "Steering Committee" led by Majdi al-Shibani in an attempt to replace the Company's traditional governance structure. Both Al-Shibani and his replacement, Adel Markows, respond to the former Minister of Telecommunication of the National Salvation Government, Sami al-Fantazi, who is a commander of an armed group, the National Mobile Force (see para. 169). Al-Fantazi remains in charge of the Ministry of Telecommunication, and his forces control the Company's head office on Zawiyah Street.

231. The Panel has received information that Al-Fantazi and the “Steering Committee” have been funnelling Company assets to the National Salvation Government since 2014. The Panel is investigating documentation and the allegation that they provided direct financial assistance to the National Salvation Government on at least two separate occasions (see annex 60).

232. The Al-Thinni Government has also attempted to strengthen its control over the corporate governance structure of the Company, similar to its actions regarding the Libyan Investment Authority. It appears, however, that these attempts were unsuccessful.

E. Libya Africa Investment Portfolio

233. The Libya Africa Investment Portfolio is a subsidiary of the Libyan Investment Authority and separately listed on the sanctions list. It is an investment fund valued at over $3 billion. Because of its institutional link with the Authority, it has been affected by the same divisions, albeit to a lesser extent.

234. During Operation Fajr, in 2014, the Managing Director of the incumbent management, Ahmed Kashadah, moved to the fund’s office in Malta. The National Salvation Government appointed an alternative management, leading to parallel institutions. Although control over the Investment Portfolio appears to be mostly concentrated with Kashadah, it has repeatedly been challenged, and at times some subsidiaries appear to have taken instructions from the rival management. Furthermore, Kashadah is also refused access to the head office in Tripoli Tower by the Special Deterrence Force, under the command of Kara.

235. In contrast to the Steering Committee of the Libyan Investment Authority, Kashadah has won a court case against his rivals in Tripoli. However, this has so far not helped him to gain access to the Tripoli Tower.

236. The situation of the Investment Portfolio is indicative of armed group actions and interests. There have been several episodes of reported interference by armed groups. Similar to the Libyan Post, Telecommunication and Information Technology Company, the Portfolio and its subsidiaries have access to significant cash and resources within Libya. This has allowed them, for example, to “facilitate” the travel and working expenses of the Presidency Council. However, this also makes them an obvious target for armed groups and politicians looking for funding themselves. An overview of incidents, including supporting documentation, is provided in annex 61.

F. Libyan Foreign Investment Company

237. The Libyan Foreign Investment Company, operating under the acronym LAFICO, is the largest subsidiary of the Libyan Investment Authority in terms of number of entities. However, it does not have many assets within Libya itself and has only limited liquid assets in general. This makes it a less obvious candidate for attempts of misappropriation. Indeed, the Investment Company continues to operate from Tripoli Tower in relatively stable circumstances. The position of the Chief Executive Officer, Khaled Algonsel, is uncontested.

238. While the acronym LAFICO is not currently listed on the sanctions list, the company’s full name is included as an alias of the Libyan Investment Authority (LYe.001), together with the acronym LFIC.⁷⁶ Its listing as an alias is incorrect. As previously reported (see S/2013/99, para. 225), it is actually a subsidiary of, and predecessor to, the Authority. The potential confusion arising from this has not affected its operations. Apart from a few of its subsidiaries in the United Kingdom (Baroque Investments Limited and Ashton Global Investments Limited), whose assets were frozen under a separate European Union listing, the Investment Company has full access to its assets. However, several Member States have sought clarification from the Committee on its subsidiaries (see recommendation 7).

IX. Financing of armed groups

239. A variety of sources of funding are available to armed groups, most of which have been highlighted in previous Panel reports. During the reporting period, the Panel specifically investigated four important sources of funding: fuel smuggling, trafficking in persons, interference with institutions and the local arms trade. Previous findings on income from other criminal activities and State financing remain relevant.

A. Fuel smuggling

1. By sea

240. The National Oil Corporation decided to work actively against fuel smuggling. Brega Petroleum, a subsidiary of the Corporation, established an “Oil and Oil Derivatives Oversight Committee” to investigate the problem. Its findings led the Corporation to take action against some companies and individuals⁷⁷ in early 2017. In fact, the Corporation has accused the Petroleum Facilities Guard in the refinery in Zawiyah of participating in fuel smuggling operations (see recommendation 11).⁷⁸

241. The Panel continues to observe vessels showing suspicious navigational patterns in the vicinity of the coastal town of Zuwarah. Individuals and companies mentioned in previous reports are still operational (see S/2016/209, paras. 205-206). In 2016, the Libyan coastguard impounded several ships in the same area in incidents related to fuel smuggling (see annex 63):

242. Criminal networks tip off the coastguard to prevent rival gangs from carrying out successful smuggling operations. The coastguard in Zawiyah is also involved in the smuggling business.⁷⁹

243. Other vessels of interest during the reporting period are:

Name	IMO No.	Flag	Annex 64 section
Sukran C	9280196	Turkey	A
Selay	8870865	Turkey	B

244. The Economy, Trade and Investment Committee of the House of Representatives⁸⁰ issued a statement on 17 July 2016, addressed to the Maltese authorities, recalling that subsidized products are not eligible for export (see annex 65). On 25 October 2016, the western National Oil Corporation addressed a letter to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs requesting it to send reminders to neighbouring countries that the Corporation is the sole entity authorized by law to import or export crude oil and its derivatives (see annex 66).

245. As mentioned in paragraph 240, the leader of the Petroleum Facilities Guard in Zawiyah, Mohamed Koshlaf, also known as Kasib or Gsab (see paras. 105 and 258), is involved in the procurement of fuel for smugglers. He also commands the so-called militia Nasr.⁸¹ His brother, Walid Koshlaf, also known as Walid al-Hadi al-Arbi Koshlaf, runs the financial side of the business. The head of the coastguard in Zawiyah, Abd al-Rahman Milad (alias Bija) (see also paras. 59, 105 and 258), is an important collaborator of Koshlaf in the fuel business.

246. Another significant smuggler operating from Zawiyah is Ibrahim Hneish, who leads his own armed group.⁸²

247. On the other side of the fuel business, brokering companies reach out to vessel owners through established channels to buy fuel from Libya (see annex 67). The western National Oil Corporation, when made aware of those offers, contacted the companies involved to remind them of the illegal nature of the proposed deals.

248. Fuel smugglers provide the captains of the vessels with official-looking documents. Some of them, when contacted after the impounding of one of their vessels, refer to such documents to claim the legality of the shipment.

249. The case of the Sichem Singapore (see annex 64, sect. H) constitutes the first attempt known to the Panel to sell a product extracted and refined within Libya (into heavy oil). It is also the first attempt known to the Panel that was made from the eastern shoreline. It shows that fuel smuggling can quickly expand when no credible deterrence exists (see recommendation 10).

250. The eastern National Oil Corporation has denied its involvement in the case, although at least one member of its board seems to have been involved. It might indicate internal divisions within the board, resulting in unilateral actions being taken by some of its members (see para. 201).

251. Figure 31 attempts to explain how fuel smuggling damages the wealth of Libya, affecting both crude oil production and the fuel subsidy system.

2. By land

252. Fuel is transported from Zawiyah to Zuwarah, Ujaylat, Riqdalin and Jumayl and then smuggled by land onward to Tunisia.

253. The “Oil and Oil Derivatives Oversight Committee” carried out a field visit to Ras Ajdir and Zuwarah in July 2016. Its report was delivered to the Presidency Council through the National Oil Corporation and addresses smuggling by land and sea (see annex 68). This trade has also become a concern for the Tunisian authorities.

254. Recently, it was reported that measures had been taken to reduce illegal flows.⁸³

B. Migrant smuggling and trafficking in persons

255. Migrant smuggling and trafficking in persons is integrated with other smuggling activities, such as smuggling of arms, drugs and gold. Armed groups actively participate in the smuggling or take a cut of the profits. Smuggling occurs virtually uncontested because of the lack of reliable security forces.

1. Western Libya

256. Arriving from Agadez in the Niger, migrants are gathered in warehouses located in Qatrun, Awbari, Sabha and Murzuq, where several groups make a profit from facilitation. Tebu and Tuareg smugglers “facilitate” migrant crossings of the southern border. Tebu leaders, such as Adamu Tchéké and Abu Bakr al-Suqi, collect tolls in cash for travel from the border to Sabha. Tuareg leaders, such as Cherif Aberdine,⁸⁴ control the route to Murzuq.

257. In Sabha, members of the Awlad Suleiman tribe are reportedly organizing the smuggling. From Ghadamis to Bani Walid and Nalut, the Zintanis Mohamed Maatoug and Ali Salek are frequently mentioned as major transporters of migrants (and cannabis).

258. On the coast, the main facilitators are based in Zawiyah, Zuwarah and Sabratah. They include the armed group commanders Mohamed Koshlaf and Ahmed Dabbashi (alias Amu). Coastguard commander Abd al-Rahman Milad (alias Bija) collaborates with Koshlaf (see paras. 59, 105 and 245).⁸⁵ The main departure site appears to be Talil Beach, in the resort complex in Sabratah.

2. Eastern Libya

259. The eastern route is managed by “fixers” from Eritrea, Ethiopia and Somalia, who identify candidates for departure and handle the finances. Libyans organize transportation within their territory. Migrants who have taken this route systematically report that uniformed men were overseeing their movements.

260. The coordination in the border region of Kufrah is supposedly organized among the Tebus, Zways and elements of the Rapid Support Forces in the Sudan deployed along the border with the Sudan.⁸⁶

261. Up until 2016, most of the migrants were taken from Kufrah to Ajdabiya, where they were kept under the authority of the commander of the Petroleum Facilities Guard, Ibrahim Jadhnan. One Eritrean, detained for a year in Ajdabiya, told the Panel that migrants were used by the Petroleum Facilities Guard for demining operations without any military training or protective gear. The Petroleum Facilities Guard finally transferred him to another armed group in Sabratah.

262. The Panel is investigating a number of bank transfers from relatives of migrants located in Sweden. These deposits are being made to Swedish bank accounts of the migrant smugglers for onward transfers through hawala systems located in the Sudan and in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, where the money is laundered.

C. Armed group interference with State institutions

263. The interference of armed groups in State institutions has increased. The Panel's findings related to this topic are covered under section VIII.

D. Financing from the local arms trade

264. The arms trade within Libya is an important source of income for various armed groups. The Panel received reports of active arms trading at markets in Zintan, Misratah, Ajdabiya and Waw. The materiel offered includes heavier and more sophisticated systems. A functioning Milan anti-tank system including four missiles, for example, is available for $9,000. In some cases, fighters and arms are offered together.

265. Local arms trading is also organized through virtual markets. The Panel continues to observe weapons being offered for sale on Libyan Facebook sites. The Small Arms Survey has recently highlighted their use by armed groups and their members (see annex 33).⁸⁷

266. Finally, armed groups are also involved in the business of modifying non-lethal equipment, such as pickup trucks, blank firing guns or ammunition, for military use (see para. 164 and annex 46).

X. Implementation of the asset freeze

A. Frozen assets

1. Mutassim Qadhafi

267. The Panel is analysing the bank accounts of three suspected, interlinked, front companies for the late Mutassim Qadhafi (LYi.014), based in Malta. The first, Mezen International Limited, was no longer active upon the imposition of the asset freeze on Qadhafi, and its relevance lies solely in the fact that it shows pre-existing relations and linkages. When its main account was closed in June 2010, the remaining balance of over €55 million was transferred to a second company, Capital Resources Limited. The company's accounts in Malta were frozen under the sanctions.

268. However, the main source of funding for the Mezen account in 2010 was a third company, Moncada International Limited, which transferred over €40 million that year in three instalments. In addition, Moncada received €3 million from Mezen two weeks before the latter closed its account. The Maltese authorities explained to the Panel that Moncada was struck off the companies register in September 2013.

⁸⁷ N.R. Jenzen-Jones and Ian McCollum, "Web trafficking: analysing the online trade of small arms and light weapons in Libya", Working Paper No. 26 (Small Arms Survey, April 2017).

Nevertheless, company accounts show transfers of significant amounts of money after 26 February 2011, when Qadhafi was listed. Between 26 February and 14 July 2011, €10 million was transferred out of the Moncada account, which was never frozen. The Panel has recently written to Malta to underscore that it is crucial to trace that money and investigate its origin.

269. The Panel has also enquired with Italy about the status of an expensive flat allegedly owned by Mutassim Qadhafi. The €5.5 million flat appears to have been bought by a front company, Diamond VIP Service SRL. One of the partners of that company, Saleh R. KH. Drah, was a director at Moncada International Limited. The title deed is in the name of Ali Ahmed Beinen, another partner in Diamond VIP. Beinen is suspected by Libyan litigators of having been a close associate of Qadhafi. In the month running up to the purchase of the flat, Beinen also received €91,000 worth of consultancy fees from Moncada. The temporary tenant of the flat, Vanessa Hessler, has publicly declared having had a relationship with Qadhafi. She also initiated a case at a court in Rome against Beinen, claiming that she received the flat as a gift from Qadhafi, who was the real owner (see annex 69). Italy replied to the Panel that there were currently no grounds to connect the property to Qadhafi and that it could therefore not be frozen.

2. Saadi Qadhafi

270. The Panel continues its investigation into the sources of an account in the name of the Ugandan company Aurelius Holdings, where funds were held on behalf of Saadi Qadhafi (see S/2016/209, paras. 268-270) with the intention to move him from the Niger to Uganda. The account held over $1 million, the large majority of which originated from four sources: three bank transfers and one cash deposit. All transfers to this account constituted violations of the asset freeze.

271. The depositor of the cash transfer was identified as Ugandan Paul Nkangi, personal assistant to Habib Kagimu, who was co-director of Aurelius and one of the two signatories of its bank account. There are conflicting statements on how this cash was obtained, none of which the Panel could confirm. The Panel is aware that Qadhafi had access to funds of at least $2 million while residing in the Niger (see annex 70), including large amounts of cash.

272. The Panel has identified a company that made one of the transfers to Aurelius, Al-Firdaws International Trading Company, based in Tunisia. The Tunisian authorities confirmed the involvement of Al-Firdaws to the Panel and reported that the company accounts were frozen on suspicion of money-laundering. Importantly, Al-Firdaws received a cash deposit of $600,000 on the same day it transferred $400,000 to Aurelius.

273. The Panel also identified a second company that made a transfer to Aurelius, Adena Way General Trading. Adena Way is a company based in the United Arab Emirates, where it is managed by a Libyan national, Adel Abdalla Omar Deyab. Its company accounts in the United Arab Emirates did not show any transfer to Aurelius and were closed in August 2014. However, it also holds an account in Tunisia, and it is from this account that the transfer to Aurelius was made under the pretext of paying for a shipment of tea. The United Arab Emirates accounts show systematic incoming and outgoing transfers of large and relatively round sums, typical for money-laundering operations. They also show a connection with the Tunisian account for Adena Way. The payment from the Tunisian account of Adena Way to Aurelius was preceded by a payment from a Libyan company to Adena Way. The Panel is investigating this transfer.

274. The origin of the third transfer could not be verified. The Panel has twice requested the assistance of Uganda in providing copies of all relevant banking documents and setting up a meeting with Nkangi and Kagimu. These requests have remained unanswered.

275. The variety of sources feeding into the Aurelius account opened in support of Saadi Qadhafi's potential move to Uganda show the complexity of the organization of the finances of former regime members. It also shows that many of these transactions are handled in large sums of cash. The tracing of these funds will require significant resources and a dedicated effort. In the Panel's view, this is impossible until stability in Libya is restored and Libyan investigators are empowered by an indisputable mandate from an uncontested authority (see recommendations 8 and 9).

3. Hannibal Qadhafi

276. Information received by the Panel shows that Hannibal Qadhafi received large and systematic payments from a group of at least four companies for years before the revolution in 2011: Mariner for Maritime Transport, Golden Delta Mariner Shipping, Diamond Delta Mariner Shipping and Um al Houqol. These four companies are closely connected in terms of their shareholders, management and location.

277. In the case of Mariner for Maritime Transport, documentation is available (see annex 71) that shows that Qadhafi was recognized as a board member of the company. However, Libyan sources suspect that he was in fact the owner of the company.

278. The income of Mariner appears to have originated mainly from the oil and gas sector of Libya: the National Oil Corporation, Mabruk Oil Operations, Zawiyah oil and gas refinery, the Brega Marketing Company and several others. Monthly payments of over several hundred thousands of euros and United States dollars were further transferred from these company accounts to various destinations. Some of these transactions were identified as direct payments into a personal bank account of Hannibal Qadhafi, mentioning unlikely descriptions such as "personal loan". It is not clear to the Panel which services, if any, Mariner would have provided to the above-mentioned companies to justify these payments.

279. After 26 February 2011, the transfers of funds into the various Mariner accounts stopped.⁸⁸ However, the business executives continued to be involved in numerous international companies with accounts or activities abroad, including in Cyprus, Italy and Tunisia. The real activities of these companies, many of which have similar names, are not clear. Nevertheless, very large amounts of money — millions in hard currency — continued to move through these accounts during the years following the revolution. Some of these movements appear suspicious, including large payments of dividends or transfers from a company that was dissolved on 21 October 2009.

280. The suspicious movements described above indicate that the entities involved could be, or have been, front companies. Taking into account the established previous relationship between the business executives, their companies and Hannibal Qadhafi, this raises the possibility that these individuals continue to manage funds for the listed individual, which would be a violation of the asset freeze. The Panel is pursuing its investigations with the relevant Member States.

⁸⁸ With the exception of one transfer from the Mellitah gas and oil refinery of €1,137,000 in April 2011.

4. United Kingdom

281. The Panel has made enquiries with the United Kingdom regarding an ongoing investigation into the assets of individuals close to the former regime, but no response has so far been received.

B. Stolen assets

282. The Panel is investigating several reported cases of stolen Libyan assets that are under the control of a listed individual (or entity), or at risk of misappropriation, or both. The presence of such assets has been reported in several countries on the African continent. In cases where those funds are under the control of a listed individual, they need to be frozen. In cases where one of the competing political factions in Libya is attempting to obtain them, it needs to be ensured that they are not misappropriated or used to fund any actions that threaten the country's peace and security. Either way, full transparency on the alleged cases is required (see recommendation 6).

283. The urgent need to identify and secure such assets was an important driver of the reinstatement of a Stolen Assets Recovery Unit within the Central Bank in August 2016. The Unit reports directly to the Central Bank Governor in Tripoli and is also reliant on cooperation with the Litigation Department of the Ministry of Justice of Libya and the Attorney General's office. The Panel is not convinced that all three parties involved are fully committed to the Unit's efforts. The Unit has actively reached out to various stakeholders. It does not appear that the Presidency Council has been involved in creating or directing the Unit (see recommendation 8).

284. The Panel's investigations into stolen assets, all of which are also being considered by the new Stolen Assets Recovery Unit in Libya, are detailed in annex 72.

XI. Implementation of the travel ban

285. The Panel made the following observations regarding the current location and movements of listed individuals.

286. Safia Farkash Al-Barassi (LYi.019) confirmed that she is currently residing in Egypt, while requesting an exemption for travel to Oman for humanitarian reasons. The Committee approved this request.

287. The Panel confirmed the presence of Hannibal Qadhafi (LYi.010) in Lebanon. Lebanon provided information that Qadhafi had been residing "in [the Syrian Arab Republic] as a political refugee", after which he was "abducted by an armed group and was brought into Lebanon illegally on 6 December 2015". After being released by his kidnappers, Qadhafi was detained by the Intelligence Branch of the Directorate General of the Lebanese Internal Security Forces.

288. Other sources confirmed that Hannibal Qadhafi had previously spent time in the Syrian Arab Republic, in Damascus. The latter State has not replied to the Panel's request for clarification. According to Lebanon, and as supported by other sources, the travel of Qadhafi to Lebanon took place without its knowledge or permission, and is therefore not a violation but an instance of non-compliance.

289. From the available information, it appears that the travel to the Syrian Arab Republic of Hannibal Qadhafi constituted a violation of the travel ban.

XII. Recommendations

290. The Panel recommends:

Arms embargo

To the Security Council

- Recommendation 1. To clarify, for the benefit of the wider membership, the mechanism to which Member States can refer to identify the national security forces under the control of the Government of National Accord that can benefit from the exception for any technical assistance, training or financial assistance, as outlined in paragraph 10 of resolution 2095 \(2013\). [see paras. 29, 52, 94 and 155]
- Recommendation 2. While maintaining the exception for technical assistance, training or financial assistance, as outlined in paragraph 10 of resolution 2095 \(2013\), to suspend the exception for supplies of non-lethal military equipment, when intended solely for security or disarmament assistance to the Government of Libya, as outlined in the same paragraph, by reverting to the procedure outlined in paragraph 13 (a) of resolution 2009 \(2011\) for non-lethal military equipment. [see paras. 155 and 164]

To the Committee

- Recommendation 3. Annex 2 Overview of the evolution of the Libyan sanctions regime

1. By resolution 1970 (2011), the Security Council expressed grave concern at the situation in Libya, condemned the violence and use of force against civilians and deplored the gross and systematic violation of human rights. Within that context, the Council imposed specific measures on Libya, under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations, including the arms embargo, which relates to arms and related materiel of all types, including weapons and ammunition, military vehicles and equipment, paramilitary equipment, and spare parts for the aforementioned, in addition to the provision of armed mercenary personnel. The arms embargo covers both arms entering and leaving Libya. The Council also imposed a travel ban and/or an asset freeze on the individuals listed in the resolution. Furthermore, the Council decided that the travel ban and the asset freeze were to apply to the individuals and entities designated by the Committee established pursuant to resolution 1970 (2011) concerning Libya involved in or complicit in ordering, controlling or otherwise directing the commission of serious human rights abuses against persons in Libya.
2. By resolution 1973 (2011), the Security Council strengthened the enforcement of the arms embargo and expanded the scope of the asset freeze to include the exercise of vigilance when doing business with Libyan entities, if States had information that provided reasonable grounds to believe that such business could contribute to violence and use of force against civilians. Additional individuals subject to the travel ban and asset freeze were listed in the resolution, in addition to five entities subject to the freeze. The Council decided that both measures were to apply also to individuals and entities determined to have violated the provisions of the previous resolution, in particular the provisions concerning the arms embargo. The resolution also included the authorization to protect civilians and civilian populated areas under threat of attack in Libya. In addition, it included a no-fly zone in the airspace of Libya and a ban on flights of Libyan aircraft.
3. On 24 June 2011, the Committee designated two additional individuals and one additional entity subject to the targeted measures. By resolution 2009 (2011), the Security Council introduced additional exceptions to the arms embargo and removed two listed entities subject to the asset freeze, while allowing the four remaining listed entities to be subjected to a partial asset freeze. It also lifted the ban on flights of Libyan aircraft.
4. By resolution 2016 (2011), the Security Council terminated the authorization related to the protection of civilians and the no-fly zone. On 16 December 2011, the Committee removed the names of two entities previously subject to the asset freeze.
5. In resolution 2040 (2012), the Council directed the Committee, in consultation with the Libyan authorities, to review continuously the remaining measures with regard to the two listed entities – the Libyan Investment Authority and the Libyan Africa Investment Portfolio – and decided that the Committee was, in consultation with the Libyan authorities, to lift the designation of those entities as soon as practical.
6. In resolution 2095 (2013), the Council further eased the arms embargo in relation to Libya concerning non-lethal military equipment.

7. By resolution 2144 (2014), the Council stressed that Member States notifying to the Committee the supply, sale or transfer to Libya of arms and related materiel, including related ammunition and spare parts, should ensure such notifications contain all relevant information, and should not be resold to, transferred to, or made available for use by parties other than the designated end user.
8. By resolution 2146 (2014), the Council decided to impose measures, on vessels to be designated by the Committee, in relation to attempts to illicitly export crude oil from Libya and authorized Member States to undertake inspections of such designated vessels.
9. By resolution 2174 (2014), the Council introduced additional designation criteria and requested the Panel to provide information on individuals or entities engaging or providing support for acts that threaten the peace, stability or security of Libya or obstructing the completion of the political transition. The resolution strengthened the arms embargo, by requiring prior approval of the Committee for the supply, sale or transfer of arms and related materiel, including related ammunition and spare parts, to Libya intended for security or disarmament assistance to the Libyan government, with the exception of non-lethal military equipment intended solely for the Libyan government. The Council also renewed its call upon Member States to undertake inspections related to the arms embargo, and required them to report on such inspections.
10. By resolution 2213 (2015), the Council extended the authorizations and measures in relation to attempts to illicitly export crude oil from Libya until 31 March 2016. The resolution further elaborated the designation criteria listed in resolution 2174 (2014).
11. By resolution 2214 (2015), the Council called on the 1970 Committee on Libya to consider expeditiously arms embargo exemption requests by the Libyan government for the use by its official armed forces to combat specific terrorist groups named in that resolution.
12. By resolution 2259 (2015), the Council confirmed that individuals and entities providing support for acts that threaten the peace, stability or security of Libya or that obstruct or undermine the successful completion of the political transition must be held accountable, and recalled the travel ban and assets freeze in this regard.
13. By resolution 2278 (2016) the Council extended the authorizations and measures in relation to attempts to illicitly export crude oil, while calling on the Libyan Government of National Accord (GNA) to improve oversight and control over its oil sector, financial institutions and security forces.
14. On 27 April 2016, the Committee designated a vessel illicitly exporting crude oil. The designation was lifted on 12 May 2016.
15. By resolution 2292 (2016), the Council authorized, for a period of twelve months, inspections on the high seas off the coast of Libya, of vessels that are believed to be carrying arms or related materiel to or from Libya, in violation of the arms embargo.

16. To date the Committee has published four implementation assistance notices which are available on the Committee's website.¹

Annex 3 Mandate and appointment

1. By resolution 2278 (2016), the Council extended the mandate of the Panel of Experts established pursuant to resolution 1973 (2011) for a period of 15 months, to carry out the following tasks: to assist the Committee in carrying out its mandate as specified in paragraph 24 of resolution 1970 (2011); to gather, examine and analyse information from States, relevant United Nations bodies, regional organizations and other interested parties regarding the implementation of the measures decided upon in resolution 1970 (2011), 1973 (2011) and modified in resolutions 2009 (2011), 2040 (2012), 2095 (2013), 2144 (2014), 2146 (2014), 2174 (2014) and 2213 (2015) in particular incidents of non-compliance; to make recommendations on actions that the Council, the Committee, the Libyan government or other States may consider to improve implementation of the relevant measures; and to provide to the Council an interim report on its work no later than 180 days after its appointment and a final report no later than 15 June 2017 with its findings and recommendations.
2. In resolution 2095 (2013) the Council also encouraged the Panel, while mindful of the responsibility of the United Nations Support Mission in Libya (UNSMIL), to assist the Libyan authorities to counter illicit proliferation of all arms and related materiel of all types, in particular heavy and light weapons, small arms and man-portable surface-to-air missiles (MANPADS), and to secure and manage Libya's borders, to continue to expedite its investigations regarding sanctions non-compliance, including illicit transfers of arms and related materiel to and from Libya, and the assets of individuals subject to the assets freeze established in resolutions 1970 (2011) and 1973 (2011) and modified in resolution 2009 (2011), 2040 (2012) and 2095 (2013) and encouraged UNSMIL and the Libyan government to support Panel investigatory work inside Libya, including by sharing information, facilitating transport and granting access to weapons storage facilities, as appropriate.
3. In resolution 2146 (2014), the Council expanded the Panel's mandate to the measures imposed by that resolution and directed the Panel to monitor the implementation of these measures.
4. In resolution 2174 (2014) the Council requested the Panel to provide information on individuals and entities who meet additional designation criteria related to acts that threaten the peace, stability or security of Libya, or obstruct or undermine the successful completion of its political transition.
5. Following the adoption of resolution 2278 (2016), five of the Panel's experts were appointed on 12 May 2016 and the sixth on 31 May 2016.

Annex 7 Umar al-Aswad criticizing the PC and the CBL

1. For the LPA's first anniversary, Umar al-Aswad, a boycotting member of the Presidency Council, drafted an open letter in which he asserts that the PC is weak and paralysed. He points out a lack of transparency within the Libyan executive bodies and the financial institutions.
2. In addition, al-Aswad threatens to sue the Governor of the CBL in Tripoli, Sadiq al-Kebir, because of his alleged use of frozen assets from the Libyan Investment Authority. He also calls on the President of the Audit Bureau to issue an order to stop the members of the GNA from using public funds as they have not been endorsed by the HoR.

المجلس الرئاسي

أن تعيشوا وهم الشرعية الخارجية لا يفيد ، إنما الشرعية تأتي من الداخل . ألم تسألوا أنفسكم ماذا قدم المجلس الرئاسي للشعب الليبي طوال عام كامل ؟ وماذا قدمت هذه الحكومة المفوضة - على حد تعبيركم - ، و الحديث يطول في هذا المجال فلا تضيقوا البلد وتضيقوا أنفسكم .

لقد عقدنا اجتماعا على هامش اجتماع لجنة الحوار يوم 2016/9/6 بتونس ، بعد رفض مجلس النواب الحكومة في جلسته يوم 2016/8/22 ولم يستمر سوا ساعتين ، ولم تعقد اجتماعا إلا بعد 31 يوما استغرقت في السفر خارج ليبيا أي في يوم 2016/10/7 ، اتفقا فيه على أن تعرض القرارات المتخذة للإطلاع عليها ، كما طلبنا الإطلاع على المصروفات المالية للمجلس ، وعلى أن أستطلع كل من مدينتي جادو وغدامس ليختار المجلس المدينة الأنسب لاحتضان مشاورات تشكيل الحكومة الثالثة ونفذت ما طلب مني ، إلا أن القرارات و المصروفات لم تعرض علينا حتى يومنا هذا .

يبدو أنكم استحسنتم هذا الوضع لكن نتاجه القانونية بالتأكيد ستكون وخيمة عليكم عاجلاً أم أجلاً منتعافي ليبيا بأذن الله وميسال كل شخص عن أفعاله.

2- السادة الذين يتصرفون باسم وزراء كل فيما يخصه ، إنما يقوم بذلك انتحالاً للشخصية دون سند من القانون (أي دون اعتماد من مجلس النواب ، ودون حلف اليمين) الأمر الذي يجعل من تصرفاتكم معدومة فضلا عن التهم الجنائية المترتبة على الأفعال المسندة إليكم .

3- السادة رئيس و أعضاء المجلس الأعلى للقضاء سند العدالة وجوهرها (إن التأخير في الفصل في القضايا التي تتعلق بمصير الأمة وثرواتها لا يُرضي الله إذا تأخر لحين فوات الأوان ، وقد اتفق شرّاح القانون على أن العدل البطيء هو نوع من الظلم ، مع تقديرونا الكامل لجهازنا القضائي .

4- السيد محافظ مصرف ليبيا المركزي بحكم عمك ومركزك القانوني وتاريخك الوظيفي ، أنت أول من يعلم ماهو صندوق الاستثمار الليبي ، وماهي الأموال المجمدة ، وأن سماحك باستخدامها أو الوصول إليها أمر بالغ الخطورة ومسئول عنه لا محاله عاجلاً أم أجلاً ، ولن ينفك أحد إذا تهاونت وفي التاريخ الحديث عبرة لمن يعتبر ، فقد سبق إلى المحاكمة رؤساء دول و أركان حكم ، وهذا الأمر بلا شك ينطبق على الجميع .

5- السيد رئيس ديوان المحاسبة : تحمل مسئوليتك القانونية و الرقابية فيما يخص المساس بالأموال المجمدة وصندوق الاستثمار، ولن يغفر التاريخ ولا القانون لك أو لغيرك من الجهات ذات العلاقة السكوت عن هذا الخطر الماحق . لا تسمح لحكومة لم تنل ثقة السلطة التشريعية وهو البرلمان ولم تؤدي القسم أن تتصرف في أي مبلغ كان ، إن الصرف يجب أن يكون من خلال ميزانية معتمدة و الصرف من خارج الميزانية أمر مجرم ، سيكون المتاح و المتلقي كلاهما

إلى السادة : الجهات الداخلية والخارجية الميمنة في هذا الخطاب .

بات من اللازم والضروري أمام تصاعد حمى العيث بمستقبل ليبيا و المساس بكيانها ومستقبلها، وأمام هذا الكم الهائل من الظلم والظلال و الجهالات ، مساساً بسيادة ليبيا وتصرفاً عشوائياً بأموالها الثابتة والمنقولة تصرفاً معيباً وباطلاً ومشوهاً في آن ، بات لزاماً أن أتوجه بها الخطاب المفتوح إلى جهات داخل ليبيا و أخرى خارجها لكي يتبين في حقها تماماً عصري العلم و الإرادة وهي تقوم بهذه التصرفات ، و أنها إنما تقوم بها عن سابق تصور وتصميم ، تحقيفاً لمصالحها الخاصة و استغلالاً لوظيفتها بالنسبة للجهات في الداخل ، وبالنسبة للجهات في الخارج إنما تعمل لصالح شركاتها ومؤسساتها ، ضاربين جميعاً بعرض الحائط سيادة ليبيا على أموالها وحق الشعب الليبي في صون أمواله و مذكراته من الأموال المعجدة بموجب قرارات مجلس الأمن ذات العلاقة التي اتخذت في العام 2011 ، وواقع الحال أن الشعب الليبي أوحج اليوم قبل أي وقت مضى لاستمرار الإبقاء علي تجميدها حيث الأوضاع الداخلية ليست بخافية علي أحد متدهورة للغاية.

وإنما ننقل هذا بكل وضوح إلى هذه الجهات التي سيرد ذكرها ، حتى نؤسس لمقاضاتها بأفضل بناء قانوني ، إن لزم الأمر .

أولاً : الجهات الداخلية :

1- السادة الزملاء رئيس و أعضاء المجلس الرئاسي .

القرارات التي تصدرونها تأتي بالمخالفة للاتفاق السياسي وبنوده ، وبالتالي فجميع قراراتكم باطلة . وجود أعضاء خارج المجلس الرئاسي لم يوقعوا على هذه القرارات ، هو فيتو علي هذه القرارات يبطلها ، حكومتكم غير شرعية لم توقع عليها ، لأنها تمت بالمخالفة للاتفاق السياسي م1 ف2 ، من ان يتم اختيار مجلس الوزراء علي أساس الكفاءة ومبدأ تكافؤ الفرص ، و الجميع يعلم كيف تم اختيار الحكومة عندما أوضحنا ذلك للشعب الليبي تحت قبة البرلمان بحضوركم وبأدلة لا تقبل اثبات العكس ، لا يصح وضع الحكومة قانوناً إضافة كلمة المفوض علي الإطلاق ، وضعها منعدم وقراراتها معدومة قانوناً بلا أدنى شك ، دليل ذلك إلغاء قرارات صدرت عنكم بأحكام من القضاء وأول الغيث قطرة . الحكومة لم تعتمد من مجلس النواب ولم تؤدى اليمين القانونية ، وبالتالي لا شرعية لها وهذا الأمر من البديهيات .

اللجنة المالية أيضا غير قانونية بالمطلق ، وقد صدر حكم قضائي أيضا بعدم شرعيتها ، وكل مشارك في هذه الأفعال سيكون مسؤول أمام القانون . الهروب الى الامام لا يفيد في شيء ،

مسئول عن هذا الفعل ، وكذلك من يقف متفرجاً متى كان واقع على كاهله رفض ومنع هذه التجاوزات .

لا ينكر أحد أنك أصدرت تقارير ومراسلات تتعلق ببعض الموضوعات و التجاوزات المالية وهو أمر جيد ، لكنني أصارحك بأنه ألمني كثيراً أن أراك تجلس خارج ليبيا تتناقش أموراً المالية و السيادية ومصروفاتها و أموالاً تمثل جزءاً من ميزانيتها و أنت رئيساً لجهاز رقابي في سابقة هي الأولى عبر التاريخ القديم و الحديث. لكن موقفك الذي يجب أن يكون في موضوع الأموال المجمدة و التهافت في السيطرة على صندوق الاستثمار أمر ملح وحيوي و هام ، فأنت عين الرقابة و أدواتها.

6- السيد النائب العام : أنتم ممثل الدعوى العمومية في المجتمع و النائب عنه في مباشرة الدعوى بحسب القانون ، اضطلعوا بدوركم في حماية الشعب الليبي من الأفعال التي تهدد مصالحه القومية و الاقتصادية لأن المساس بها تهديد لأمنه القومي . الصندوق السيادي الليبي رابع أكبر صندوق استثماري في العالم ، رصيد الأجيال القادمة ، لا تسمحوا لأحد أن يتلاعب به و اللاعبون كثر . لا تتفرجوا على جرائم مالية ترتكب ، افتحوا تحقيقات موسعة و استفاجنون و تصدمون بما يجري .

7- السادة الموظفون السامون العاملون بصندوق الاستثمار و محفظة ليبيا و شركات الاستثمار الداخلية و الخارجية و المصارف الداخلية و الخارجية التي لديها أموال ليبية بجميع مسمياتها و دائع أو أسهم أو سندات أو قروض دائنة . تحسسوا مواقعكم و مراكزكم القانونية ، فإن أي مساس بالأموال أو ما شابهها من أموال ليبيا و الليبيين ستسألون عنها ولن تمر دون عقاب . ولن ينفع أحد منكم من يستقوى بالخارج ، اعلموا أن ليس هناك دولة واحدة تضحي بمصالحها مع دولة أخرى من أجل شخص باع وطنه و شعبه و ضميره و ساهم في خراب اقتصاد بلده ، فلا احترام لمن باعوا مصالح أوطانهم بأي ثمن .

ثانياً: الجهات الخارجية :

- السيد معالي الأمين العام للأمم المتحدة .
- السيد الممثل الخاص للأمين العام للأمم المتحدة رئيس بعثة الدعم في ليبيا .
- السادة سفراء الدول دائمة العضوية في مجلس الأمن .
- السيد معالي الأمين العام في الجامعة العربية .
- السيد معالي الأمين العام للاتحاد الأفريقي .
- السيدة ممثل الإدعاء بمحكمة الجنايات الدولية .
- السادة لجنة العقوبات .
- السادة سفراء الإتحاد الأوربي .

2. According to several contacts in Misrata, the LISCO plant is a key hub for the military support provided to the BRSC.
3. The same sources report that one of the BRSC supply routes from Misrata to Benghazi originates from the Hun arms storage (Juffra region). The ammunition is transported by land from Hun to the LISCO plant in Misrata. The equipment is then stored in containers in the LISCO military compound.
4. From there, arms and ammunition are loaded onto a trawler or a fishing vessel at the LISCO port terminal. The trawlers sail to Benghazi, remaining most of the time inside territorial waters. Sometimes, while underway, shipments are loaded on a Misrata coast guard speedboat to continue the journey to Benghazi. Lately, many such speedboats have been intercepted by LNA airstrikes. On their way back to Misrata, the speedboats transport injured fighters.

Annex 15 List of armed groups that supported Khalifa al-Ghweil

1. The National Guard (created in February 2017) is mostly composed of Misratan brigades. It also includes a number of Ex-LIFG and militant Islamist groups in Tripoli. Its composition seems to be different from the National Guard created in 2013, under the leadership of Khaled al-Sharif and deployed in al-Hadba. Either way, both groups support the NSG.

Annex 17 Links between armed groups, criminal groups and the Coast guard in Zawiya

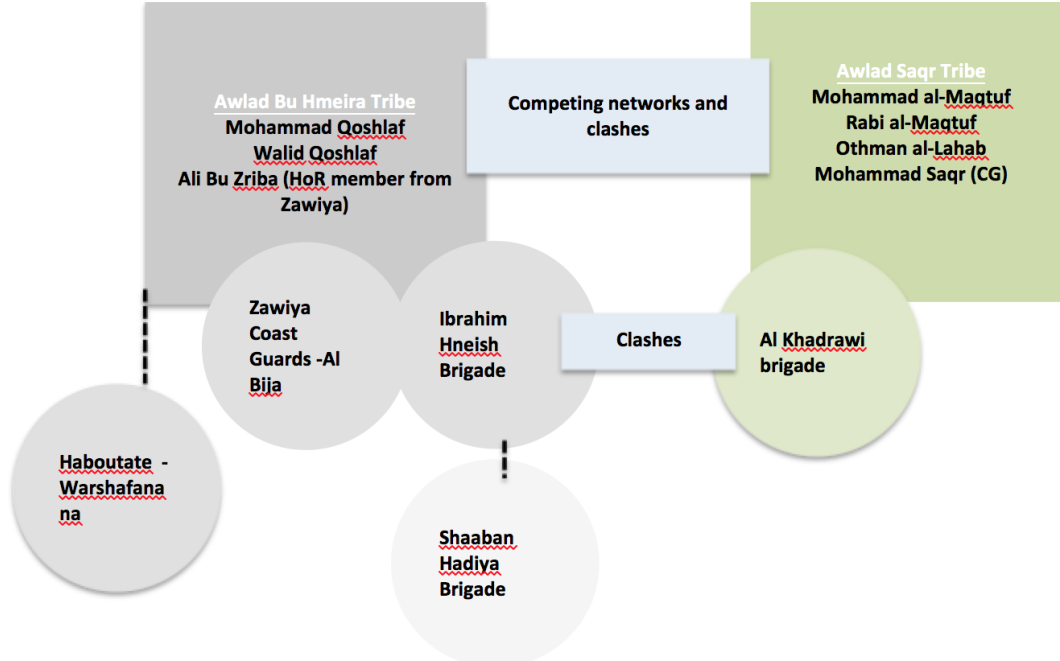

1. Sources provided the Panel with a detailed description of the modus operandi of smuggling networks in Zawiya.
2. Competition over the control of the fuel smuggling business in Zawiya has deepened historic tribal divisions between Awlad Bu Hmeira and Awlad Saqr in Zawiya. Since 2012, the Nasr Brigade, under the command of Mohammad Koshlaf from the Awlad Bu Hmeira tribe, has been in control of the Zawiya refinery. Koshlaf's monopoly over the refinery has since been disputed by Awlad Saqr and the allied armed groups of Othman al-Lahab and al-Khadrawi.
3. In late 2014, the expansion of the migrant smuggling and human trafficking business in Zawiya further increased the competition. The commander of the al-Nasr brigade opened a detention centre in Zawiya. The Panel received information that the detention centre, commanded by a former army Colonel, Fathi al-Far, is used to 'sell' migrants to other smugglers. Meanwhile, Koshlaf also became active in migrant smuggling.
4. Since 2014, Koshlaf's network gained influence over the coast guard operations in Zawiya, notably through the officer Abd al-Rahman Milad (also from the Awlad Bu Hmeira tribe). In 2015, The Zawiya coast guard's patrol boat (see photograph below), operated by Abd al-Rahman Milad (alias al-Bija), was involved in intercepting migrants and transferring them to the al-Nasr detention centre. An armed group from Awlad Saqr, also involved in the migrant smuggling business, attempted to take over control of the boat in March 2016.
5. Repeated violent clashes in Zawiya in 2016 and 2017, between armed groups controlled by Ibrahim Hneish and Mohammad Koshlaf on one side and al-Khadrawi and al-Lahab on the other, show how strong the competition over the criminal business is.
6. According to several sources, competing groups have regularly targeted migrants under the custody of their rivals, provoking death and injury of several migrants.
7. Shaaban Hadiya's armed group involvement in the smuggling business, if any, is unclear. However, a commander of Hadiya's group was seen by Panel's sources fighting alongside Ibrahim Hneish, which might indicate links between Shaaban Hadiya and the Koshlaf clan.
8. Koshlaf's al-Nasr brigade in Zawiya collaborates with the al-Haboutate brigade of Warshafana, in organizing the migrant smuggling. Reportedly, this has led to the opening of the coastal road between Zawiya and Tripoli over the last few weeks.

بيان المجلس البلدي صبراتة رقم (4) لسنة 2017م
 بشأن عمليات تهريب الوقود (البنزين والناظفة)

يعرب المجلس البلدي صبراتة عن استيائه الشديد من كثرة عمليات تهريب الوقود (البنزين والناظفة) وعبورها من بلدية صبراتة وانتشارها بشكل كبير خلال الفترة الأخيرة إلى أن أصبحت تجارة رانجة يمارسها تجار الأزمات والمهربين بشكل يومي .

وفي الوقت الذي أتخذ فيه المجلس كافة التدابير والاجراءات التي من شأنها مكافحة ومحاربة هذه الظاهرة في نطاق صلاحياته وبحسب الامكانيات المتاحة لديه إلا أنها لم تفي بالغرض ولم تساهم في إيقاف هذه الظاهرة التي أثقلت كاهل الاقتصاد الليبي وتسببت في نقص وانقطاع الوقود بأنواعه وغلاء سعره في بلدية صبراتة و تسببت أيضا في غلق أغلب محطات الوقود الرسمية في البلدية وكثيرة طوابير السيارات على المحطات التي تعمل بصورة متقطعة .

وفي ذات السياق فقد لوحظ ازدياد هذه العمليات في الأونة الأخيرة وخاصة في الفترة الليلية وفي الصباح الباكر وبمحاكاة من مجموعات مسلحة في ظل عجز الجهات الأمنية على مكافحتها ومحاسبة ومعاقبة المتورطين فيها .

و إذ نقدم هذا البيان لنعلم الجميع أسفين عن عجزنا وعدم قدرتنا على إيجاد حل لإيقاف عمليات تهريب الوقود خصوصا وأنها تمس قوت المواطن اليومي وما استطعنا علاجه من توفير أسطوانات الغاز وتوزيعها بشكل عادل بين المواطنين وغيرها من الخدمات الأخرى هو من صميم عملنا ولن نقصر في ما استطعنا عليه خدمة للمواطن .

وأخيرا ندعو كافة الجهات الأمنية في المدينة والمنطقة بشكل عام لوضع حل جذري لهذه الظاهرة ومعالجتها من مصدرها الرئيسي كما ندعو أولياء الأمور والفاعلين في المنطقة لمناصرة أبنائهم وحثهم على الابتعاد عن إهدار مقدرات البلد وسرقة أموال الليبيين .

Annex 19 Illegally issued passports delivered in Misrata in May 2015

1. Civil Register Agency sources confirmed to the Panel that they do not have a Libyan national under the same name figuring in the passport below and born in Benghazi on 1 January 1987 in their register. They also confirmed that the passport was issued illegally in Misrata. The beneficiary of the passport (a Sudanese national) used this passport to travel to Turkey between May and September 2015. This is not an isolated incident. In January 2015, AAS Sirte had taken control of the Passport Administration in order to facilitate international travels of its foreign fighters. In Benghazi, AAS Benghazi had also taken control of the Passport Administration before they lost it to the LNA in 2015.

Ahmad al-Hasnawi links with al-Qaida affiliated movements and ISIL

1. Ahmad al-Hasnawi is known for providing logistical support to Jihadist networks operating in the Sahel region, including AQIM (QDe.014), al-Mourabitoun and Ansar al-Dine (QDe.135), as confirmed by several sources, including amongst his allies in the south. The Panel also received reports of business links between al-Hasnawi and ISIL. During the BDB offensive against oil terminals in March 2017, the presence of al-Hasnawi in al-Nowfliya, where ISIL elements are still active according to the ministry of Defence sources in Tripoli, raises a number of questions concerning the extent of his relations with ISIL.

Potential links between the BDB, AAS Benghazi and ISIL elements in Sirte

2. In 2015, ISIL and the BRSC (including AAS Benghazi), had been fighting side by side in several locations in Benghazi, including al-Saberi and al-Qwarsha. By early 2016, the BRSC and ISIL in Benghazi stopped joint efforts. Both movements made their disagreements public. During the same period, a series of victories by the LNA forced many BRSC commanders, including Ismail al-Sallabi, Ziad Balam and Wissam Bin Hmeid to move to Misrata.

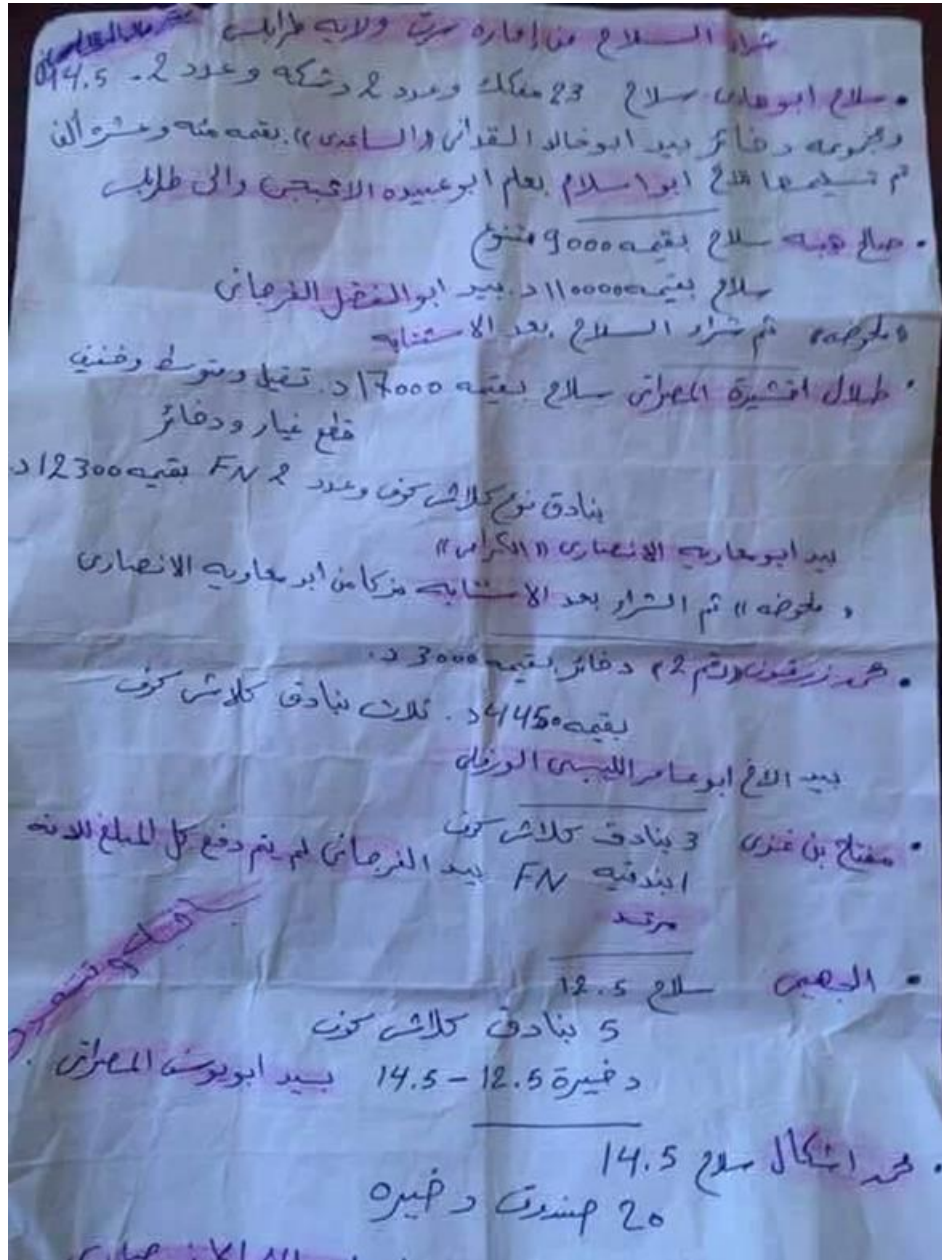

3. However, relations have continued between some BRSC commanders (who later founded the BDB) and some ISIL figures in Sirte. Several sources in Misrata indicated that Wissam Bin Hmeid tried to mediate for the safety of some of ISIL's leaders in Sirte in 2015, in spite of repeated attacks against Misrata-controlled checkpoints. The sense of a common cause, and in certain cases, family and tribal links, play a role in preserving those alliances. In May 2016, during preparations to launch

ABAM operation, Wissam Bin Hmeid was put under house arrest due to his suspected links with ISIL elements in Sirte.

4. Moreover, the launching of Operation ABAM has further divided Misrata, between those who are suspicious of BRSC commanders based in Misrata, and those who are 'ready to tolerate the BDB's undesirable links with ISIL and AAS Benghazi for the sake of the cause'. Military sources in Misrata emphasized that 'the leadership of the BDB has no links with listed organizations, but some commanders from Benghazi have links with AAS Benghazi'. During Operation ABAM, the BDB was not part of the attacking forces in Sirte. However, they were put in charge of guarding of the strategic al-Lud checkpoint between Bu Njeim and Wadan, a region that has witnessed extremist activity since 2015. Reports indicated that some ISIL leaders in Sirte were allowed to pass through this checkpoint, shortly before and during Operation ABAM. The BDB was also put in charge of protecting the southern flank of Misratan forces from the LNA position in Zela.

Annex 23 Presence of foreign armed groups in Libya since 2013

Sudanese Groups

Sudanese Liberation Army/ Minni Minawi (SLA/MM)

1. The deployment of Sudanese armed groups, with the approval of their hierarchy, started in March 2015, notably with the presence of SLA/MM in Ubari, al-Waw and al-Wig areas. At first, SLA/MM fighters joined Tebu-led brigades in the South of Libya, and in later phases in Benghazi. By March 2016, they had gained autonomy and played a key role in the capture and protection of oil installations by the LNA.
2. In early 2017, according to internal sources, some SLA/MM field commanders decided to withdraw from Libya due to insufficient levels of remuneration and fears of political repercussions. In fact, they blamed the movement's leaders for 'keeping the money for themselves'. A field commander interviewed by the Panel in February 2017 confirmed that mid-ranking commanders and the rank and file had been looking to go back to Sudan. He added that he himself was waiting to gather enough fuel and money to leave Libya.

Sudanese Liberation Army/ Al-Nur and Ex-JEM commanders

3. In addition to SLA/MM forces, SLA/Al-Nur is engaged in Libya, alongside the LNA. According to sources within the movement, they had 1,500 fighters in Libya by mid-2016. They had been approached by Arab intermediaries to facilitate their contacts with the LNA.
4. Ex-JEM commanders have also joined the Libyan armed conflicts. Abdallah Jana is such an Ex-JEM commander. He entered Libya with 13 vehicles in 2016, but increased his assets to 70 vehicles by February 2017. He is reported to visit Sudan every two to three months to recruit new fighters.
5. Abdallah Banda, an Ex-JEM commander and Justice and Liberation Movement's deputy chief, is familiar with Libya's former regime networks. According to Justice and Liberation Movement (JLM) sources, he facilitated contacts between Libyan and Darfuri armed group commanders. He regularly moves between Libya and Darfur.

Justice and Equality Movement

6. JEM officials interviewed in 2016 confirmed that the JEM had been approached by several Libyan parties, including Islamist figures and the LNA, but they denied any actual involvement in Libya. However, interviews with JEM and Ex-JEM officials revealed that there was at least one attempt to join Libya from South Sudan, in late 2015. Yehya Omda, Artillery Chief of Staff of the movement, was able to leave South Sudan and deployed along the Chadian-Libyan border. Ex-JEM sources also reported that Omda is recruiting amongst Sudanese refugees in the region of Um Nabaq in Chad.

Chadian groups

Le Front pour l'alternance et la concorde au Tchad (FACT)

7. The FACT was founded in April 2016 by Mahamat Nuri and Mahdi Ali Mahamat. The two men broke ties and Mahdi is now heading the movement and coordinating its activities in Libya. The presence of Chadian groups in the Fezzan dates back to late 2014. They were unable to operate on the Chadian side of the Libyan-Chadian border and were hosted in Sabha by the Third Force on the condition of ceasing their military actions against the Chadian regime, according to Third Force sources. However, the security developments in Libya and the spread of fighting to Sirte, Sabha, al-Jufra and Braq al-Shate' led to FACT's recruitment by Misrata-allied forces. They are deployed at the al-Hjara al Sawda base in al-Jufra and in Sabha. According to FACT sources, they had 700 fighters deployed in Libya by the end of 2016. However, other sources mentioned a force composed of 1,000 to 1,500 fighters.

Conseil de Commandement Militaire Pour le Salut de la Republique (CCMSR)

8. Created in July 2016 by former UFDD spokesperson, Mahamat Hassan Boulemaye, the CCMSR has split from the FACT. On 14 April 2016, a CCMSR base in Doualki, near Sabha, was bombed by LNA forces resulting in six dead. This was confirmed by Boulemaye who blamed President Deby for the attack.

Rassemblement des forces democratiques (RFC)

9. The group had started operating in the southeast of Libya by the end of 2015. It was allegedly involved in attacks against convoys of drug traffickers. Allegedly, it was deployed in the Oil Crescent, alongside the LNA. The Panel could not reach out to sources within the movement. Two of the checkpoints (between Rebiana and Sabha) run by the group were allegedly attacked by ISIL cells early 2016.

Annex 25 The list of al-Hadba prison supervisors involved in torture and other abuses against prisoners

1. Some of the al-Hadba personnel were selected from among relatives of victims from the Abu Selim prison massacre, committed by Qadhafi's security services and resulting in the death of more than 1,200 prisoners. Armed groups in Libya have often recruited relatives of victims of the former regime, some of whom have sought vengeance. The prison manager Saleh al-Deaiki, who was seen in a video footage beating Saadi al-Qadhafi, is a former prisoner of Abu Selim.

Annex 26 Presidential Security

1. The ‘Presidential Security’ is run by the Dimona clan (Mohammad, Bassem and Ali Dimona). It has been involved in attacks against individuals and commercial entities, including banks, in Hay al-Andalus in Tripoli in March 2017. The clan has also been involved in several kidnappings, as reported by former detainees interviewed by the Panel. Until recently, the ‘Presidential Security’ was in control of the al-Felah Department to Counter Illegal Migration (DCIM) centre, which was also used as an informal detention centre for Libyans. The Dimona clan also organised other informal detention facilities, including at Tripoli International Airport, to where it retreated following its ousting from al-Felah and al-Qusur areas in March 2017.
2. A document signed by Sergeant Mohammad Salem Dimona, in charge of the ‘Presidential Security’, denying his responsibility in attacking the HSC. However, according to several sources, Dimona’s group was indeed responsible for the attack.

The case of Mohammad Imheisen (March 2016)

1. Misratan journalist Mohammad Imheisen was kidnapped at a checkpoint where al-Tajuri was present, in central Tripoli on 30 March 2016. Imheisen was detained and tortured in a prison in Mitiga, controlled by al-Tajuri, before being transferred to another prison under the control of Abd al-Ghani al-Kikli. Al-Tajuri and al-Kikli were reported to be present during at least one of the torture sessions.

The case of Jamal Zubia, former NSG Media Office Director (August-December 2016)

2. Jamal Zubia was kidnapped during a rally on 29 July 2016 held on Martyrs' Square in Tripoli. He was first kidnapped by a group affiliated with the ASB of Abd al-Ghani al-Kikli, before being handed over to Haytham al-Tajuri personally. Zubia and other detainees were later transferred to a detention facility in Mitiga base, under the control of al-Tajuri. On 9 October 2016, following the ousting of Haytham al-Tajuri from Mitiga, Zubia was transferred to a detention center under the nominal control of the Diplomatic Police. Zubia reported scenes of torture in that detention facility. He was finally released in December 2016, as a result of tribal mediation.

Annex 30 Human rights violations against migrants in Zawiya

1. Abd al-Rahman Milad (alias al-Bija) is the head of the Zawiya branch of the coast guard. He obtained this position thanks to the support of Mohammad Koshlaf and Walid Koshlaf. Both had leverage over the coast guard hierarchy, according to internal sources in the coast guard.
2. Fathi al-Far, a former army colonel, is the head of al-Nasr detention centre. The centre is under the de facto control of al-Nasr Brigade of Mohammad Koshlaf. The Panel collected testimonies of the inhumane detention conditions at al-Nasr, which is not suitably equipped to hold migrants. Women and children live in critical conditions.
3. In addition, many migrants are frequently beaten, while others, notably women from sub-Saharan countries and Morocco, were sold on the local market as 'sex slaves'.
4. Tareq al-Hengari is also a member of the coast guard. He shot at migrants' boats at sea, causing the death of an unknown number of migrants, in an attempt to undermine the smuggling business of Koshlaf's competitors.

 14 FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

15 United States of America,
 16 Plaintiff,
 17 vs.
 18 1. Marc Turi, and
 19 2. Turi Defense Group,
 20 Defendants.

CR-14-00191-PHX-DGC

JOINT MOTION TO DISMISS WITH PREJUDICE

21 The United States of America, by and through undersigned counsel, and Marc Turi
 22 and Turi Defense Group, by and through their respective counsel, move this Court under
 23 Rule 48(a) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure for an order dismissing all counts
 24 with prejudice in the above-captioned matter for the reasons stated herein.

25 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

26 The issue of discovery has been extensively litigated in this matter. On October 3, 27 2014, Defendants filed a motion seeking in part "documents or other evidence relating to
 28 instances in which the United States assisted or considered assisting in the covert

1 transportation, provision, acquisition, transfer, or transport of 'Defense Articles' to or
2 from any person, entity, group of people, quasi-governmental entity, or government within
3 the territory of Libya from 2010 to the date of the request." (Dkt. No. 63 at 3) (citing Dkt.
4 No. 55 at 5).

5 On October 22, 2014, the Court found Defendants' request was "overly broad" and 6 required the government to produce "a narrower category of information: documents which
7 relate to efforts by the United States to arrange for arms brokers to arrange covert transfers
8 of weapons to the NTC in Libya between the beginning of 2010 and the end of 2011"
9 ("Category 2 documents"). (Dkt. No. 63 at 4).

10 The government searched for records as required by the October 22, 2014 order.
11 The government apprised the Court of the results of its search for such documents through 12 a motion under Section 4 of the Classified Information Procedures Act, 18 U.S.C. App. 3 §
13 4. Subsequently, the Government apprised counsel for Defendant Turi of the results in a 14 classified document.

15 On June 16, 2015, Defendants filed a motion seeking an order requiring the 16 government to show cause why it should not be sanctioned for failing to produce Category
17 2 documents relating to the Court's October 22, 2014 Order. (Dkt. No. 171). The motion
18 was briefed and the Court conducted a status conference on August 11, 2015, during which 19 there was an extensive discussion of the meaning of the terms "efforts" versus
20 "contemplation," and that the government's disclosure obligations were limited to "efforts."
21 During the hearing, the Court noted that, by its October 22, 2014 Order, it intended to order
22 the disclosure of a document "if it relates to an effort to arm rebels, something that actually
23 occurred, then it should be disclosed," but it also pointed out that "there is a difference
24 between actively contemplating and doing it." (RT 8/11/15 at 7, 9). On October 2, 2015,
25 the Court denied the Defendants' motion and again reiterated that "Category 2 does not call 26 for documents relating to 'possible efforts' or 'contemplated efforts' to arm Libyan rebels."
27 (Dkt. No. 249 at 4).

28 Defendants again filed a motion seeking to compel additional information. On March 25, 2016, the Court issued an order reversing its prior rulings and ordered more

Case 2:14-cr-00191-DGC Document 438 Filed 10/03/16 Page 3 of 4

1 extensive discovery. As a result, government counsel consulted various government entities
2 in accordance with the order.

3 While the latest discovery order was pending, Defendants negotiated with the

Annex 33 Zastava M93 on the black market

1. Monitoring of social media by the Panel indicates that arms dealers within Libya continue to use online markets to sell and/or acquire material such as rocket propelled grenade (RPG) launchers, recoilless rifles, anti-tank guided missile systems, heavy machine guns (12.7mm and 14.5mm), and man-portable air-defence systems (MANPADS).⁵ Among the weapons for sale on a Libyan Facebook page were two Zastava Arms M-93 ‘Black Arrow’ anti-materiel rifles.⁶ In 2015, Serbia had already confirmed to the Panel the delivery of 25 M93 to the Libyan Ministry of Defence for the amount of USD 126,250 (see delivery certificate below), after a successful exemption notification to the Committee. In all likelihood, they were diverted. In April 2016, Facebook closed six accounts that had been used for arms sales in Libya.⁷

Annex 34 Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAVs)

Wing Loong and Schiebel Camcopters

1. As the satellite imagery in the arms embargo section of the report shows, two Wing Loong UAVs have been operating from al-Khadim airbase since June 2016. In September 2016, the Benghazi Revolutionaries' Shura Council (BRSC) claimed that the United Arab Emirates and Italy were operating MQ 9 Reaper, Predator, and Schiebel Camcopter S 100 UAVs over Benghazi. However, BRSC mistakenly identified the Wing Loong UAV as a MQ 9 Reaper. Later BRSC claimed that the Wing Loong UAVs used missiles to hit specific targets in BRSC-controlled areas in Benghazi.

Picture: Wing Loong UAV, the description "MQ-9 Reaper" is false. The Wing Loong has a dihedral (upward) V-tails in contrast to the Reapers anhedral (downward) V-tails.

Source: BRSC information channel reposted on social media⁸

2. The Wing Loong must be operated by a foreign country, most probably the United Arab Emirates from al-Khadim airbase. The UAV was developed by the Chengdu Aircraft Industry Group in the People's Republic of China and the Panel can confirm that the United Arab Emirates was one of the first foreign customers. Saudi Arabia and later Egypt are the two other countries in the region to have purchased first generation Wing Loong, which have only one pod for guided weaponry with a maximum load of 100kg.

3. The Khamis Brigade had purchased four Schiebel Camcopter S 100 in 2009⁹ and armed groups have been operating at least two of them. One was shot down by Fajr Libya in 2015 near the al-Watya airbase in the west of Libya.¹⁰

4. It is possible that a foreign country is operating these UAVs over Benghazi. The Camcopter was developed by the Austrian company Schiebel in cooperation with the United Arab Emirates's Abu Dhabi Autonomous Systems Investments Company (ADASI).¹¹

Annex 35 Transport aircraft at al-Khadim airbase

1. On 27 June 2016 satellite imagery analysed by IHS¹⁴ captured next to the two Wing Loong two Il-76 cargo planes and an Il-18 turboprop airliner. The presence of these specific aircraft provides evidence for the Panel's assessment that a series of Il-76TD and one IL-18D owned by a network of Moldovan companies, are operating in Libya, with at least two of them operated without registration. The Panel has received information that the planes are chartered by Haftar's LNA and the United Arab Emirates to transport personnel, equipment and cash.

2. The IHS's analysis identified the Il-18 on 27 June 2016 noting that "the only known operators of the type are North Korea's air force and Air Koyo airline and the Russian aerospace research and development company NPP Mir." Only three Il-18 are still registered world-wide. However, the Panel's investigation on a series of Moldovan aircraft operating regularly in Libya shows that one IL-18 with tail number ER-ICS is flying although it is not registered. The same Il-18 as well as an Il-76 was documented on satellite imagery on 30 December 2016.

3. Recent reports have highlighted that several airlines registered in Moldova were sighted transporting officers and commanders of armed groups allied to Haftar's LNA. The IL-18D with tail-number ER-ICS was documented on 15 September 2016 at the Zintan airport (see photograph). According to information received by the Panel, the plane was chartered by an United Arab Emirates-based entity to fly tribal elders from the east to a reconciliation conference in Nalut in the Nafusa mountains. The Panel had further received information that the same plane was regularly chartered to transport cash and military equipment to forces allied to Haftar's LNA.¹⁵ The plane was also documented in Benina on 25 November 2016, unloading materiel for the LNA, and in Zintan on 1 January 2017, with military officers allegedly returning from their graduation in another Member State.¹⁶ As mentioned above, the Panel documented through satellite imagery an IL-18 on 30 December 2016 and IHS on 27 June 2016 on the al-Khadim air base mentioned above.

4. The IL-18D was owned by Grixona since 2007. The company was renamed Sky Prim Air in 2013. The Panel requested the log information for the flights mentioned above, but the Moldovan authorities explained that the airplane has been de-registered from their Aviation register since 8 July 2015. It has not been re-registered since in any other country, i.e. this plane currently operates in Libya without proper registration and thus with no aviation authority to report to.

5. Grixona and Sky Prim Air are private companies owned by Griogore Ghilian. Based on flight data the Panel has received from Libyan airport administration, Sky Prim Air has been operating four IL-76TD cargo planes in Libya in 2014-15. Flights were regularly conducted from the United Arab Emirates and from Sudan.

6. Sky Prim Air was flying four different IL-76TDs:

- 1) ER-IAM
- 2) ER-IAH
- 3) ER-IAK
- 4) ER-IAN

7. The planes have since been re-registered with other Moldovan companies. Two (ER-IAM and ER-IAH) are registered under ER-IBI and ER-IBU with Air Stork, a company that has the same address as Aerotranscargo (the Panel has reported on suspicious flights from Ostend, Belgium, to Libya (see S/2015/128, paragraphs 130 and 174). Aerotranscargo aircraft have previously been chartered by the Libyan company Global Aviation and Services Group (GASG) owned by Libyan businessman Abd al-Salam Aradi. Aerotranscargo had operated cargo flights for GASG in the same time period.

8. Another Il-76TD (ER-IAK) is now registered under ER-IAZ with Oscar Jet – a Moldovan company allegedly owned by Valdimir Ghilan, the son of Griogore Ghilian.¹⁹ It was previously purchased by Grixona/Sky Prim Air purchased in March 2013 from Veteran Avia, an Armenian company that figured prominently in previous Panel reports in connection with arms transfers (see S/2015/128, paragraph 173 and S/2016/209, paragraph 141).

9. Further, the IL-76TD with tail number ER-IAN was documented as being operated by Sky Prim Air on 22 February 2015 from Khartoum to al-Hamada airstrip and on 8 February from Sharjah, United Arab Emirates, to Tobruk. Yet, according to aircraft databases, this plane was registered with Aerotranscargo until 23 December 2014. Again, the Moldovan authorities confirmed that the plane was definitively de-registered. The aircraft has since not been registered with any other aviation authority.

¹⁹ see 'Ghilan Family Gives Khalifa Haftar Air Support', Maghreb Confidential n°1232, Paris, 19 January 2017, p.1.

10. Finally, as mentioned above the Panel has noted several flights conducted in Libya by the IL-76TD cargo plane with the tail number ER-AIX owned by Oscar Jet.

11. On 11 December 2016, a few days after the 12th Brigade allied to the LNA had taken the Brak al-Shati military air base, Brig. Gen. Mohammed Bin Nayel flew on board of an IL-76TD cargo airplane with the tail number ER-IAX operated by OscarJet.²⁰

Annex 38 Czech Mi-24v

1. After receiving information on a potential re-transfer of Mi-24v rotary wing aircraft sold by the Czech state-owned company LOM Praha s.p. to the United Arab Emirates, the Panel contacted the Czech authorities, who confirmed that seven Mi-24v were sold to the United Arab Emirates and the export license granted in September 2015. The contract contained, according to the Czech authorities, a standard anti-retransfer clause. As of October 2016 the overhauled airframes and gearboxes had been delivered to the United Arab Emirates, yet not the engines and auxiliary units.
2. By the end of January 2017, the Panel received a confidential copy of a contract signed by Gen. Saqr Jerushi, the head of the LNA's Air Force for the purchase of eleven Mi-24v helicopters as well as armament to be fitted, such as 9K114 anti-tank guided missiles, GSH-23L twin-barrel auto-cannon with their container, 12.7mm machine guns, PKM machine guns (7.62x54mm), self-loading rifles (7.62x39mm), and 9mm handguns with suppressors. The technical descriptions of seven of the eleven helicopters as well as serial numbers are identical to the information provided to the Panel by the Czech authorities. Pending the progress of ongoing investigations by national law enforcement agencies, the Panel should be able to provide more details its next report.

3. There are nine different individuals involved. The amounts transferred indicate that the pilots received almost USD 20,000 per month and the engineers USD 10,000. The discontinuous payments suggest that other salaries were paid from and deposited to different accounts. All of the destination accounts but one (Individual 9, actually one pilot), belong to Ecuadorian banks.

Annex 41 Vehicles Delivered to Tobruk for LNA Affiliated Armed Groups

1. The Panel received from several sources information on a delivery of over 300 Toyota pickups and armoured Landcruisers to Tobruk on 16 January 2017. A verification of maritime data showed that the only vessel appropriate to carrying vehicles and docked in Tobruk is the SHAM 1.
2. The SHAM 1 (IMO 7920857) is a vehicle carrier. It called at Tobruk port on 16 Jan 2017, mooring for 36 hours.

4. The Panel had further received confidential information that another delivery to Tobruk was conducted on 4 April 2017. Again, maritime data showed the SHAM 1 docked at the port.

5. The owner of the SHAM 1, Med Wave Shipping SA, is registered in Amman, Jordan. The Panel continues to investigate who chartered the vessel. However, the IHS data also shows that the vessel is listed by the Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) of the U.S. Department of Finance since January 2015, when it was still registered under the name of CITY OF MISURATA. The listing seems to be linked to the former owner of the vessel, Merhi Ali Abou Merhi, a Lebanese businessman linked to Hizbollah through a ring of companies (money laundering according to the OFAC).²² Abou Merhi led the Joumaa criminal organization.²³ It should be noted that the SHAM 1 still flies the Lebanese flag and that the ownership of the vessel changed to a new company at the moment the vessel was listed.

URGENT EXPLANATION REQUIRED FROM ZTE CORPORATION

ZTE CORPORATION IS DIRECTLY INVOLVED IN THE ILLEGAL AND UNLAWFUL SUPPLY AND INSTALLATION OF INTERCEPTION EQUIPMENT ON THE LIBYANA TELEPHONE NETWORK IN LIBYA

I write to you in my capacity as Chairman of the Libya Post and Telecommunications, Information Technology Company ("LPTIC"). As you will be aware, LPTIC is the owner of all mobile and other telecommunications assets in Libya. LPTIC is owned and controlled by the State of Libya, reporting directly to the Government of Libya and its Prime Minister, H.E. Abdulla al-Thani.

I have very recently been made aware of some very disturbing news involving ZTE. I have been informed that ZTE has illegally and unlawfully supplied and installed cellular interception equipment on the mobile network of Libyana in Libya. The equipment is designed to intercept and record telephone conversations made on the Libyana network. Neither LPTIC nor its management team in Libyana has commissioned ZTE to install this equipment. It would seem that ZTE has installed the relevant equipment in collusion with rogue militia acting outside of the legal framework of LPTIC and the authority of the recognised Government of Libya. Given the political context of Libya, ZTE would seem to be directly involving itself in supporting illegal and non-state participants acting to undermine the legitimate and internationally recognised Government of Libya and its efforts to bring peace and stability to Libya.

1. The Russian RSB-group has confirmed that it was contracted to clear an industrial facility from mines and IEDs in Benghazi.²⁴ Oleg Krinistyn, founder, of RSB-group, had already mentioned in an interview on 28 September 2016 that 86 of his employees were involved in demining, but did not disclose the contractor's name.²⁵ A commander of the Libyan Air Force denied that Libya had contracted any private military company and later the spokesman of the LNA, Col. al-Mesmari, insisted that the RSB-group had been contracted by the Libyan Cement Company.²⁶

4 PKM machine guns

2 Dragunov SVD designated marksman rifles

2 DShK 12.7mm heavy infantry machine guns

Over 240 7.62×39mm box magazines (steel and plastic)

AK 103-2

2. In previous years, the Panel regularly documented AK 103-2 seized from terrorist groups in Tunisia (see S/2013/99 para 122) and other neighbouring countries (S/2014/106 para 118 and 138). Those were usually limited to two to three rifles and in most cases, the Russian Federation could confirm their deliveries to Libya between 2005 and 2008. The Tunisian authorities secured at least ten AK 103-2 during or in the aftermath of the Ben Guerdane attack. The Panel continues to observe AK 103-2 originating from Libya used in neighbouring countries by extremist groups. Libya remains an important source of armament for extremist armed groups in the region.

Type 56-1

3. The Panel noticed that one of the Type 56-1 rifles used during the attack by ISIL elements showed peculiar signs of an attempt to obscure the original factory markings. The technique applied seems superficial and odd as it does not remove the serial number.

Photograph: Type 56-1 self-loading rifle 1 with Serial Number 4846797, Factory 313, sanded and blackened markings

4. The Panel's investigations highlighted that a similar technique was applied to other Type 56-1 rifles previously documented in the wider region (Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire, S/2016/254, Annexes 13c and 13d; S/2013/228, Annex 16). In April 2011 the Small Arms Survey documented in South Sudan a Type 56-1 rifle seized by the SLPA from Athor's SSDM/A.²⁷ The Panel continues to investigate the source of these modified markings of rifles.

Annex 46 Transfers to Niger

1. Nigerien officials informed the Panel that overall they had seen a reduction in the scale of arms trafficking from Libya with a number of smaller seizures having been identified as having occurred in 2017. This is also confirmed by two recent studies by Conflict Armament Research and the Small Arms Survey.²⁸

2. The first of these, termed the Abalak Seizure, saw the attempted movement of weapons from Libya to West African gangs. Two migrants being used as ‘mules’ to transport weapons were intercepted and a quantity of munitions recovered. Most of the arms recovered were modified blank firing pistols with the ammunition consisting of blank rounds converted to fire steel ball bearings.

3. 369 cartridges were seized between Agadez and Zender on 27 February 2017 in the possession of Ahmed Ali Sallah, a Tebu from Chad. Sallah was hired by his community in Libya to transport the ammunition. The Nigerien authorities commented that some Tebu groups are a link between ISIL and Boko Haram, controlling most of the supply route to Diffa.

4. Nigerien Gendarmerie provided additional reporting detailing seizures of small arms, predominantly assault rifles, and ammunition. The Panel is continuing to follow up on specific serial numbers of weapons seized.

Annex 47 Weapons seized in Algeria allegedly from Libya

1. The Algerian Ministry of Defence provides regular news and general figures on arms seizures and counter-terrorist operations.²⁹ The likelihood that some of the material seized was smuggled from Libya is high and would offer options to trace the material's origin. Below some example of such seizures:

²⁹ See, for example, 'Lutte contre le terrorisme et le crime organisé: bilan, janvier-mai 2016', La revue El-Djeich, n° 635, Algiers June 2016, pp. 48-49.

2. The 'Distya Ameya' (IMO 9077343) approached Libyan territorial waters from the Suez Canal. The western NOC sent an e-mail on 21 April 2016 to the operator of the vessel among others when they had verified its intentions, in the following terms:

Dear Sir/Ma'am

Good Morning

With reference to the series of clear resolutions and statements of the United Nations, including UN Security Council Resolution 2259, that it strongly opposes activities which could damage integrity and unity of the NOC, UNSCR 2213 which implement sanctions against individuals or entities that support criminal networks through the illicit exploitation of crude oil or any other natural resources in Libya.

Moreover, it came to our attention that a vessel called "Distya Ameya" is illegally nominated to load from Libya, and your respectful club is the P & I club for this vessel.

Therefore, you're kindly requested to interfere and stop this illegal nomination, to prevent any kind of unwanted legal action and/or subsequences that may damage the vessel.

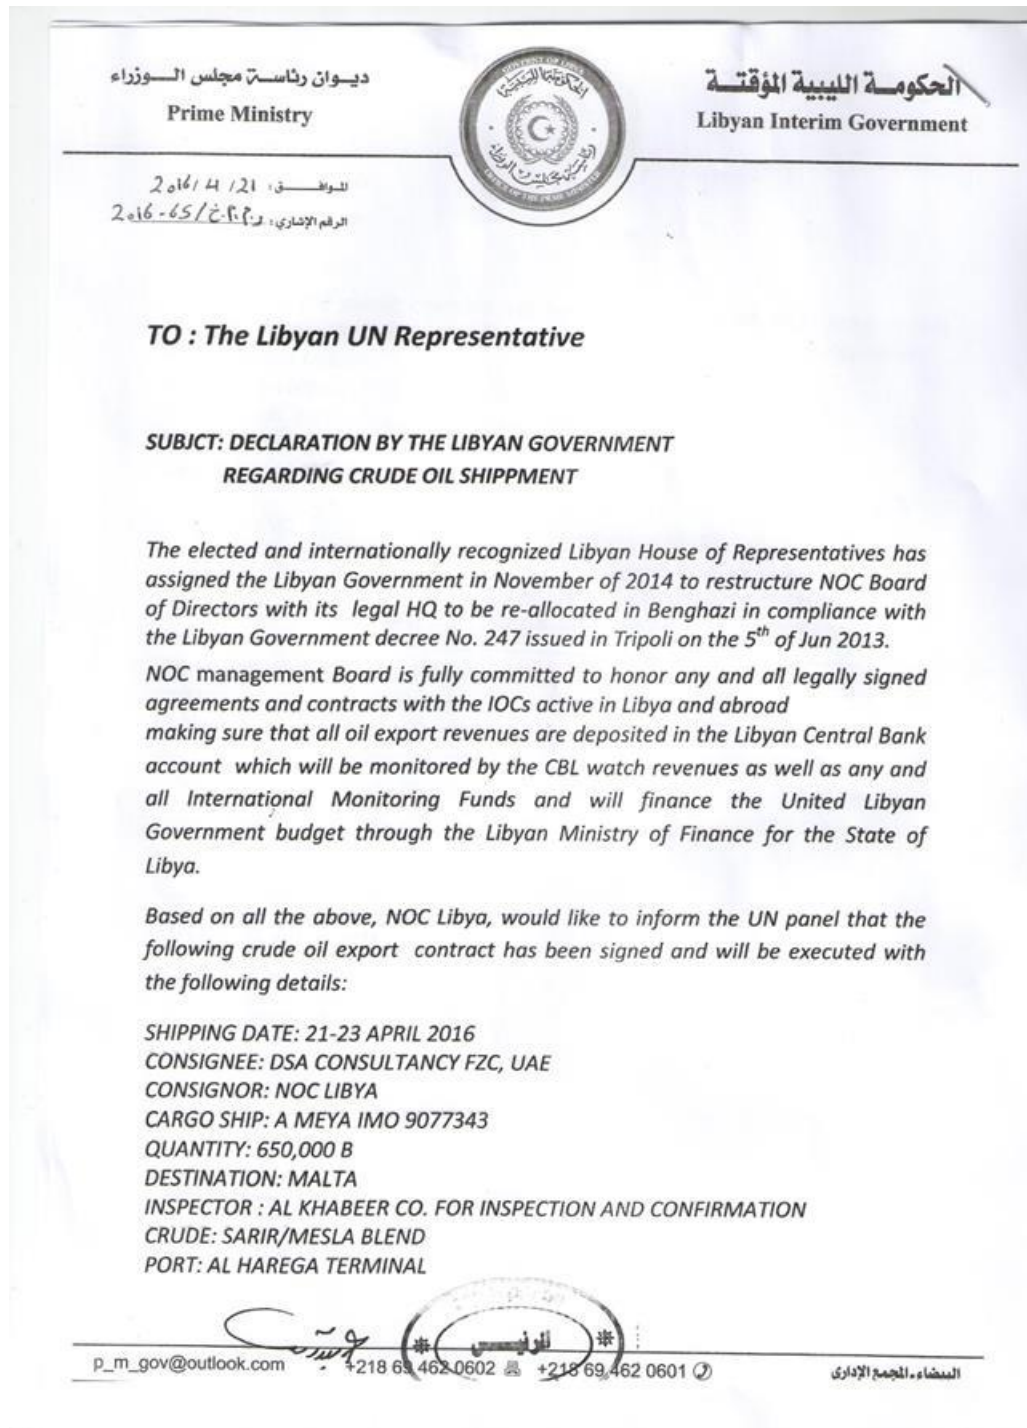

On behalf of Mr. Ahmed Shawki , General Manager of International Marketing Department-NOC Libya

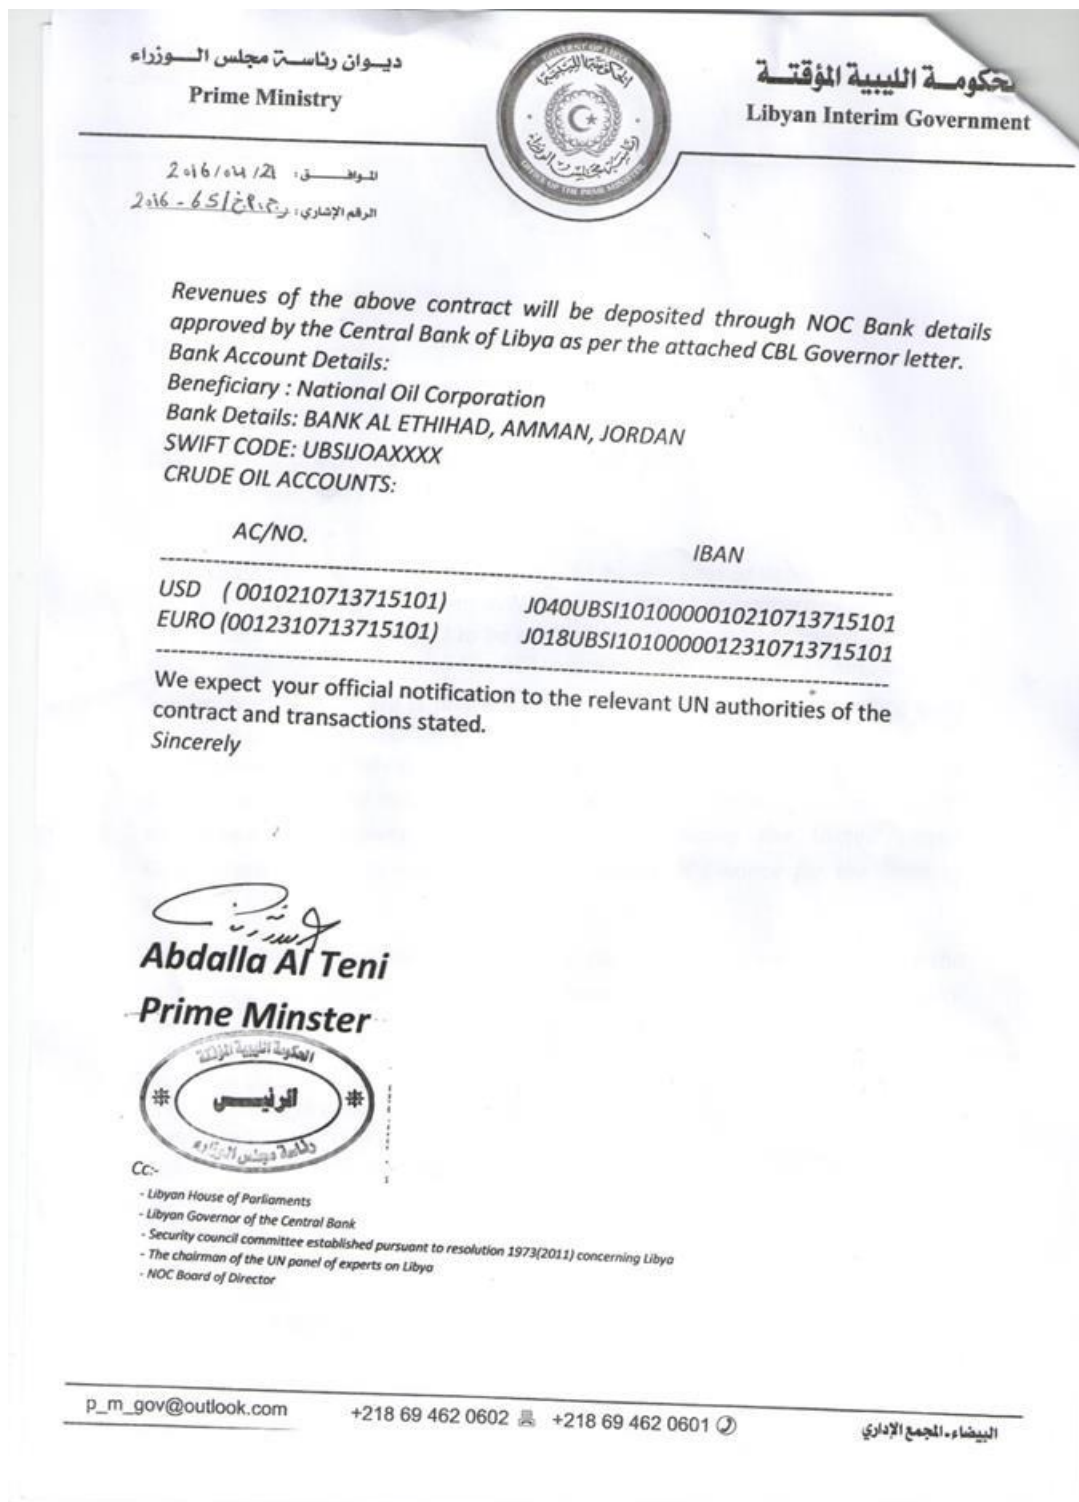

3. The details of the vessel are:

IMO Ship No.	Name of Ship	Callsign	Deadweight	Flag
9077343	DISTYA AMEYA	AWPM	95420	India

4. The owner of the crude oil to be loaded in Tobruk is the company DSA Consultancy FZE, based in the United Arab Emirates.

5. The western NOC informed the PC about the case on 21 April 2016, while a letter signed by Abdallah al-Thinni was sent to the Permanent Representative of Libya to the UN:

Source: Confidential

6. On 21 April, the Permanent Representative of Libya to the United Nations requested the Committee to take action under resolution 2146 (2014). According to public data, the tanker was heading to Limassol (Cyprus), but on 22 April 2016 was in the vicinity of Tobruk. However, the vessel did not enter port immediately. The eastern NOC board of directors held discussions about the loading. Finally, the board took the decision to load the vessel, although the decision was not unanimous. The vessel started to load on 24 April 2016 at 20:00 hours (local time).

7. On 23 April 2016, the western NOC sent a deterrent e-mail to the captain of the tanker:

To: distyaameya@amosconnect.com

Dear sir

Please be informed that The seller of the cargo you are planning to load is not the internationally recognized government of Libya. Loading the cargo will contravene UN Security Council resolutions 2146, 2259 and 2278 and may result in your vessel being impounded.

The Libyan government has notified the United Nations Security Council of your intention to load Libyan oil illicitly and the council is taking measures. We request that you weigh anchor and leave Libyan waters immediately.

8. The ship set sail in the early hours of 26 April 2016, heading to Malta. The Automatic Identification System (AIS) was interrupted several times during the journey.

The AIS was on for a period of time while the vessel sailed by Derna on 26 April 2016

9. The Panel is aware of discussions within the PC, which focused on the payment system that had been reported in al-Thinni's letter (see above paragraph 5).

10. In the meantime, the Maltese authorities warned the ship not to enter Maltese territorial waters. Therefore, the vessel remained adrift 50 nautical miles off Malta, waiting for instructions.
11. On 27 April 2016, the Committee added the vessel to the Libya Sanctions List.
12. The western NOC told the 'Distya Ameya' to head to Zawiya, to discharge the crude oil in the refinery. The ship docked on 30 April 2016. Due to bad weather conditions, the vessel departed on that same day and remained in the vicinity until it could dock again on 5 May 2016, finalising the operation on 6 May 2016, leaving Zawiya.
13. Upon request from India and non-objection by Libya, the vessel was delisted on 16 May 2016.

Annex 49 Unknown vessel

1. On 4 November 2016, Abdallah Ateiga sent the following communication to the Permanent Mission of Libya, with copy to the Panel, which was then forwarded to Committee:

Dear Sir,

I am the focal point assigned by the Presidency Council of the Government of National Accord pursuant to UNSCR 2259.

I am concerned we may be on the brink of a new oil export crisis in Libya. Despite, signing an agreement to unify NOC earlier this year, the former NOC East chairman Nagi el-Moghrabi issued yesterday instructions to AGOCO, an NOC subsidiary, to load oil to be exported to Egypt (2 million barrels) outside the legal authority of NOC in Tripoli.

El-Moghrabi claims that he has been ordered to organize the shipment by the President of House of Representatives H.E. Mr. Aguilu Saleh, based on a pre-existing memorandum signed by Mr. Saleh. We have yet to see this memorandum, but we contest its legitimacy since it contradicts the Libyan law and the sole authority over oil exports of the GNA under UNSCR 2259.

In this situation, given that Libya and Egypt share a maritime border, the mechanism for interdicting illegal shipments under UNSCRs 2146 (2014) and 2278 (2016), as used in the recent case of the Distya Ameya, may be inadequate. In the case of shipment to Egypt, if a ship docks to load illegally there will probably be no opportunity for interdiction. Our focus, therefore, needs to be on prevention.

I would appreciate any thoughts you may have about how we could prevent such an illegal loading from taking place.

Also Eastern NOC is trying to activate contracts signed by them and all of it with unqualified companies as per NOC criteria and the commercial terms of those contracts not in the interest of Libyan people

Yours sincerely

2. The eastern NOC took care not to mention the name of a vessel³⁴, as can be seen in the following excerpt of one of the compulsory documents that are exchanged among the different entities involved in this kind of operation:

³⁴ In the excerpt it might appear that the name of the vessel is TBN. However, TBN is an abbreviation that means "To Be Named".

Annex 52 The Vienna Agreement

Translation into English of the Vienna Agreement:
Translated from Arabic

In the name of God the Merciful, the Compassionate

The State of Libya

Principles for the agreement to integrate and consolidate the oil sector

On 15 May 2016, with the country's best interests in mind, Naji Husayn al-Maghribi and Mustafa Abdullah San'ullah held their fourth meeting on the situation in the Libyan oil sector.

The participants reviewed with some concern the disturbing ramifications of the current situation in the oil sector. They focused on the importance of reinforcing and consolidating efforts to alleviate the suffering of Libyan citizens as a result of the impact on their livelihoods of the political conflict that has been going on in the country for more than two years. Production levels in the State of Libya, which is a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and has the largest reserves in Africa, are not even adequate for domestic demand.

The crisis does not end there. The country has been forced to use up a significant portion of the Central Bank's reserves in order to increase foreign fuel imports just to keep vital State facilities running. At the same time, the suspension of exports has led to an acute drain of Libyan assets that has had a negative impact on the value of the Libyan dinar and on citizens' quality of life.

It has become more urgent than ever to stop the bleeding, move beyond the painful past, face up to the many challenges, and overcome obstacles on the basis of a thorough understanding of the crisis, keeping in mind the country's best interests and the importance of using oil revenues to achieve genuine and balanced development across all regions of Libya without exception.

That being said, it goes without saying that the agreement should give priority to Benghazi. That city will be the lynchpin of the agreement, both because of the extent of the destruction there and because it has the potential to be an attractive environment. However, that can only happen if we build a strong economy by working together in the oil sector to revive production quickly and restore oil exports to normal levels.

In that spirit, and especially at this important juncture, as the State of Libya faces the most acute crisis in its modern history, these meetings are a test of our resolve and capacity to be on the right side of history. We, the decision-makers in the oil sector, have made a strategic choice to begin integrating and consolidating the National Oil Corporation in the country's best interests. Such a choice requires a deep appreciation for the nature of the crisis. At previous meetings, we discussed the ramifications for the country's present and future of the very real challenges faced by the oil sector. First and foremost, the participants engaged in a conscientious discussion of all pending issues, and laid out solutions for managing and overcoming them, with a view to initiating implementation as soon as the Presidency Council adopts the general framework agreement.

The attendees stressed that, mindful of the regulations in force in the State of Libya and the spirit and letter of the law, the agreement should incorporate, inter alia, the following points that came up during the meeting:

I. Chapter 1

The participants at the meeting agreed that Chapter 1 should address expenditures and salaries during the crisis in accordance with procedures followed by the oil sector in decades past.

II. Chapters 2 and 3

Mustafa Abdullah San'ullah stressed that Chapter 2, which covers current expenditures for operations, maintenance and production operations, and Chapter 3, which covers new projects and investments, should be consistent with guidelines, rules and regulations in force in the oil sector, with the law, and with properly documented data in the Corporation's books.

Naji Husayn al-Maghribi stressed that no new commitments should be undertaken in that regard, with a view to avoiding duplication and protecting the sector from fragmentation.

III. The participants discussed the following in some detail:

The participants appreciated the importance of supporting operating companies with adequate operating budgets to ensure uninterrupted production, and of maintaining exports to ensure the uninterrupted flow of hard currency revenues into the State of Libya.

Summary

In the light of the preceding, the participants agreed that sound legal principles should be adhered to rigorously, out of their conviction that such strict adherence would advance the interests of the homeland and its citizens.

In keeping with our awareness of the uniqueness of this stage, we agreed to hold a meeting within the next few days, with everyone involved undertaking to do their part to mitigate the risks to the oil sector, in particular, and also to the country's vital facilities. The goal will be the following:

Making clear to all the national forces in the State of Libya the dimensions and implications of the suspension of exports from the port of Hariqah, including the negative impact on the State's hard currency revenues; the importance of ensuring that all Libyans benefit from oil revenues; and the implications of the disruption of the regular operation of vital State facilities, including, inter alia, the following:

- Regular operation of electricity plants;
- Regular operation of water purification plants;
- Regular operation of strategic factories;
- Regular operation of hospitals and laboratories;
- Regular distribution of petrol for cars and trucks.

Annex 53 Western NOC efforts to prevent deals

Letter from the western NOC to the International Association of Independent Tanker Owners (INTERTANKO), warning them of the attempts of the eastern NOC:

Date: 3/2/2016

Ref: 59

To: KATHARINA STANZEL -Managing Director Intertanko

STATEMENT TO SHIPPING MARKETS BY THE NATIONAL OIL CORPORATION OF LIBYA

Dear Ms. Stanzel,

The National Oil Corporation of Libya wishes to notify ship-owners that it is aware of attempts by unauthorized individuals to sell Libyan oil. On the basis of contracts signed with these individuals, several companies are looking for vessels to lift oil from Marsa el-Hariga port in eastern Libya in the first half of February.

The companies include:

DSA Consultancy FZC, of Sharjah

Netoil (with offices in Dubai and registered in Panama, variously known as Netoil Inc, Net Oil Enterprises Inc, Netoil Singapore)

Loyd Capital Partners, of Delaware, aka Loyd Capital Limited

Shipping market participants are advised that these contracts and the individuals who signed them have no legal standing. The Libyan individuals involved are the same group behind the theft of oil from Libya in March 2014. In this incident, the tanker on which the oil was stolen, the "Morning Glory", was boarded by US forces off Cyprus and turned over to NOC in Tripoli because of concerns that the sale proceeds would be used to finance terrorist groups.

The United Nations has made very clear in a series of resolutions and statements, including most recently UN Security Council Resolution 2259, that it strongly opposes activities which could damage the integrity and unity of the NOC. UNSCR 2213 provides for sanctions against individuals or entities that support criminal networks through the illicit exploitation of crude oil or any other natural resources in Libya.

Annex 56 Eastern vs. western banknotes

1. This Annex contains a simplified summary of a comparative analysis provided by a banknote printing specialist of samples collected by the Panel. The analysis shows that significant efforts were made to make a copy of the LYD 20 banknote that stays as true as possible to the original note. However, some printer specific features were changed.
2. The CBL in Tripoli has refused to distribute the eastern sourced cash. It reported to the Panel that the new notes were not safe enough because 40% of the security features were sacrificed. This appears to be only partially true. Whereas the original LYD 20 note is assessed by experts to be indeed superior in terms of security features, as reflected in the analysis below, the difference is not great. The cash ordered by the eastern CBL is in fact considered to have good counterfeit resistance as well.
3. It would therefore appear that the CBL in Tripoli's decision to block the distribution of the alternative cash is motivated by other reasons. On the one hand, the distribution of different banknotes is generally considered to be undesirable. On the other hand, the CBL in Tripoli has systematically refused to make any concessions to its eastern rival.

Specialist comparison and analysis

4. The analysis below focuses on the differences between the banknotes. Security features that are very similar, such as the watermarks, are not discussed.

Photograph 1: Front view of banknotes –alternative banknote (top) and original banknote (bottom)

5. Both banknotes are very similar in appearance. The quality of the ‘paper’ (ia cotton-based substrate) is also the same. The printing of both notes is generally of a very high quality and includes intaglio printed features.
6. However, the level 1 and level 2 security features are clearly different:
 - The original note has a more secure demetallised holographic stripe (removal of part of diffractive foil on both edges of the stripe).
 - The original note uses expanding numbering, whereas the new note does not.
 - Around the crescent symbol, the original note uses De La Rue’s SPARK technology, a high security, overt (public) verification feature using magnetic colour shift ink. In the same area the new note features a latent image that can only be viewed in bright light at an acute angle. This is probably the most significant difference between the two notes.

Photograph 2: front side, oblique angle - alternative banknote (top) and original banknote (bottom)

- Under UV light a few differences show. The new note shows an additional orange fluorescent feature whereas on the original note the red UV fibres shine more brightly. However, overall, the UV features offer similar security on the two notes.

- An infrared analysis of both notes did not immediately reveal significant differences.
- The level 3 security features were not tested. The method of authentication for these features is usually exclusive to Central Banks.

2. In 2016, it was reported that Ayad tried to appoint Libyan political dialogue member Muhammad Ibrahim al-Darrat as CEO of LAIP. He relied on support by armed group leader Abd al-Gadir Rweyati aka 'Asfoor' from the Bab al Aziziya/Hay Andalus area, who would later 'host' the Steering Committee of the LIA under Ali Mahmoud.

3. In 2017, Ayad appointed himself as CEO of LAIP. Several sources reported that Ayad, who is originally from the Suq al-Juma area, is well-connected to the SDF, the armed group to date in control of Tripoli tower. He reportedly employed several SDF members at the LAIP.

4. Around the same time, the PC-appointed Steering Committee of the LIA appointed a new board for the LAIP, which allegedly included individuals affiliated to Rweyati and the Nawasi armed group. That decision was later revoked and Rweyati withdrew from the area.

Annex 63 Impounded vessels

A. Captain Khayyam

1. The vessel was impounded on 13 February 2016 by the Libyan coast guard and taken to Tripoli. One million litres of fuel were loaded on board. Details of the vessel are:

IMO number :	8927814
Name of ship :	CAPTAIN KHAYYAM	(since 01/07/2014)

Status of ship :	In Service/Commission	(during 09/2014)

Details regarding the ownership of the ship:

2. The owner, Saygi Denizcilik Ve Elektrik, constructs and mounts electric and electronic equipment on board vessels. The company admitted that the vessel had been transporting marine gasoil but the company stated that it was backed by a bill of lading and a cargo manifest issued by a legitimate company (although none of those documents were shared with the Panel). The following is an excerpt of the e-mail received from the owner:

“It is correct that our vessel was in that area Libya territorial waters and as you know, our vessel all time cooperated by giving you all the information necessary, even helping you giving assistance in rescuing people from sea. All our cargo that we transport (Marine Gasoil 0.1 mx sulphur) is backed by a bill of lading and manifest that is from a legitimate company.”

3. The company condemned the action taken by the Libyan coast guard because the vessel had been in international waters at the time of the impounding. It also condemned the way the impounding had taken place because, according to the company, it had been violent and had prevented the crew from reporting to the owners.

4. The crew was made up of citizens from Ukraine (5), Azerbaijan (3) and Turkey (1).
5. According to the NOC, an analysis of the fuel showed that it had been refined outside of Libya (imported fuel).
6. According to AIS data, the vessel approached Zwara on the following dates since December 2015: 13 December 2015, 1 January, 12 January and 12 February 2016. In addition, the Panel has seen a document found on board which stated the following loadings:

DATE	AMOUNT
31/10/2015	1.631.499 l.
12/02/2016	1.661.499 l.

B. San Gwann

7. The vessel was impounded on 10 May 2016 by the Libyan coast guard at 4.3 nautical miles from Abu Kamash. It was seized with 85,000 litres of fuel. The vessel was taken to Tripoli. Details of the vessel are:

IMO number :	8987515
Name of ship :	SAN GWANN	(since 01/04/2015)

MMSI :	671600000

8. The vessel turned off its AIS tracking on 5 May 2016. Since the beginning of 2015, one approach to Zwara was detected on 30 March 2016, heading to Malta where it appeared again on 1 May 2016.

9. The owners remain unknown, according to databases. The crew was made up of citizens from Syria (1) and Egypt (2).

C. Temeteron

10. The vessel was impounded on 28 June 2016 by the Libyan coast guard in the vicinity of Zwara. It was taken to Tripoli where it was moored on 29 June 2016. Nine persons were found on board: Three Russians, five Ukrainians and one Greek. It was transporting 5,227 Mts of fuel. The details of the vessel are as follows:

IMO number :	8917170
Name of ship :	TEMETERON	(since 01/09/2014)

11. The vessel had been sailing near Malta since February 2016, showing suspicious behaviour due to its erratic AIS signal.

12. The ultimate beneficiary of the loading is hidden behind several other companies with contractual links. The official owners are:

IMO number	Role	Name of company	Address	Date of effect	Details
5813783	Ship manager/Commercial manager	THALASSA SHIPTRADE LTD	14, Oniru Street, Apapa, Lagos, Nigeria.	since 29/09/2014

13. According to the information provided by Panomar Ship Management, the Nigerian company, Thalassa Ship Trade Ltd., had subcontracted the vessel to a charterer. Panomar never disclosed the name of the charterer.

14. However, a Greek inspection³⁵ prior to the vessel being impounded in Libya, showed that the beneficial owner of the vessel was the company Petro Plus Limited, registered in Malta. This company was already mentioned in a previous report by the Panel (see S/2016/209, paragraphs 6-13 of Annex 44).

³⁵ It took place in Thessaloniki (Greece) on 1 April 2016.

15. Petro Plus Limited has been involved on several occasions in fuel smuggling with the following vessels:

MV RUTA	2014
MECHANIK CHEBOTAREV	2015
TEMETERON	2016

16. The 'Ruta' was investigated by the Panel in 2014 due to its involvement in fuel smuggling from Zwara.³⁶ Its links to another impounded vessel in 2015, the 'Mechanik Chebotarev' (IMO 8858697) and to the 'Inzhener Valchuk' (IMO 8711825), also involved in fuel smuggling, were highlighted in the Panel's 2016 report S/2016/209, in Annex 44.

17. The crew of the vessel was released on 2 March 2017,³⁷ while al-Serraj was visiting the Russian Federation.

³⁶ The Libyan focal point reported to the Panel on 6 August 2014 that an oil tanker, the Ruta, (IMO 8711899), sailing under a Ukrainian flag, had been apprehended near Malta for smuggling crude oil from Libya. The vessel had not been carrying crude oil but fuel. Maltese authorities denied that the vessel had been apprehended by them.

بالتالي ... فإن مثل هذا التصرفات تنعكس سلباً على الإقتصاد الوطني نظراً لأن التهريب من العوامل السلبية التي لها تأثير على الدخل القومي والعبث بمقدرات الدولة خاصة وأن الوقود من السلع المدعومة من خزينة الدولة وأن الإتجار فيه أو تهريبه يعد من الجرائم التي يعاقب عليها

7. In order to demonstrate a clear implication of the eastern NOC in this shipment, the Panel shows the following e-mail, sent by the General Manager for International Marketing, Almabruk Sultan, to a Greek broker, on 18 February 2017, referring to a contract allegedly signed in 2016:

8. The western NOC contacted Ateiga, the owners of the tanker and the Maltese authorities in order to prevent the shipment from happening. The owners of the vessel explained that they always believed that the supplier of the heavy oil was the NOC.

9. The loading was finalised in the late hours of 25 February 2017.

10. The captain of the vessel was instructed by the Maltese authorities to remain in port until further notice. Later, the NOC decided that the ship should head to Zawiya to unload the heavy oil. Finally, the captain was given the green light to set sail and on 26 February 2017 the tanker headed to Zawiya where it was expected to proceed to unload.

11. The following document, addressed to the owners of the vessel, includes the instruction to sail to Zawiya and unload there.

فسي ظل غياب مظاهر الامن في الدولة فقد تشكلت عصابات منظمة و مدعومة من ميليشيات مسلحة تقوم بتهريب الوقود المدعوم عبر المنافذ البرية و البحرية قرب الحدود متخذة من خزانات الوقود بمنطقة مصفاة الزاوية مصدر أساسي للتزود ل يتم شحنه عبر ميناء الصيد بمدينة زوارة أو تهريبه بالشاحنات عبر المنافذ البرية مستخدمة أنابيب نقل وطرق تهريب غاية في الخطورة .

وقد تأكد لنا من مصادر موثوقة أن هذه العصابات تقوم بدراسة الشحن من موانئ أخرى وتوسيع نشاطها غير المشروع على حساب مصلحة الوطن والمواطن البسيط.

وفسى هذا الإطار بذلت المؤسسة الوطنية للنفط وشركة البريقة لتسويق النفط جهوداً لمنع هذه الظاهرة وأبلغت كافة الجهات ذات العلاقة بما فيها مكتب النائب العام.

أيضاً تواصلت المؤسسة الوطنية للنفط مع لجنة العقوبات بالأمم المتحدة في السابق ولازالت المساعي مستمرة بالرغم من أن ظاهرة التهريب من مسؤوليات جهات الاختصاص في الدولة إلا أننا نرى أن محاربة هذه الظاهرة مسؤولية وطنية أكثر منها مهنية وبالتالي فأنا مستمرين دون كلل أو ملل.

وفسى هذا الإطار فأنا رأينا أهمية إبلاغكم بهذا الأمر حفاظاً على مقدرات البلاد النفطية وبالتالي نأمل منكم اتخاذ كافة الترتيبات والإجراءات بمخاطبة السفارات الليبية بدول الجوار وخاصة مالطا، تونس، إيطاليا، تركيا ، السودان ، تشاد ، النيجر من ان المؤسسة الوطنية للنفط للجهة الوحيدة المخولة قانوناً بتصدير أو توريد النفط الخام، المنتجات النفطية، المنتجات البتروكيماوية واللدائن وخلاف ذلك فإنه يُحظر على كافة الأطراف والجهات العامة والخاصة تصدير أو توريد النفط والغاز ومشتقاته .

Sir,

With this letter, we hereby inform you that we have received a report from the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Brega Petroleum Marketing Company (No. 476/2016) dated 9 August 2016 regarding the field visit by members of the Oil and Oil Derivatives Oversight Committee to the Ra's Ajdir border post and the port of Zuwarah on 24 July 2016. The report sheds light on some of the ways that oil is smuggled out of Libya, and includes photographs showing tanker trucks in the port of Zuwarah smuggling oil in full view of everyone who works there, including the various security agencies.

Such activities have a negative impact on the national economy. Smuggling is one of the factors that adversely affects national income and wastes State resources. Oil is a commodity subsidized by the State budget, and trafficking and smuggling therein are crimes punishable by law. Anyone taking part in those crimes must therefore be identified. This trend poses a threat to the national economy and must be tackled and eliminated in cooperation with State security and judicial authorities.

We value your efforts and are forwarding this report to you for appropriate measures to be taken and the appropriate parties to be contacted with a view to apprehending and bringing to justice those who engage in this activity, finding ways to put an end to it, and taking urgent measures to prevent its recurrence in order to maintain security and stability and safeguard the resources of the Libyan people. (Please find photocopies of supporting documents attached.)

May peace be upon you.

Sir,

We value your efforts in the service of our beloved country during these trying times.

We hereby submit to you our report in the hope that it will be taken in the spirit of diligence and devotion to the national interest that unites us all.

The increase in oil smuggling that we found during our investigation – notably in the western and southern regions, but also elsewhere – is shocking and forces us to wonder about who is responsible for combating that trend.

In our capacity as a committee invested by the Ministry of Oil and Gas, we have monitored smuggling cases closely in conjunction with some of the security brigades. Some of the smuggled oil has been interdicted, seized and confiscated and some smugglers have been remanded to the judicial authorities.

However, the unfortunate fact is that smuggling continues unabated despite oversight at border points and occasional prosecutions. Smuggling has moved from land to sea. Trawlers and launches are always waiting just off the port of Zuwarah to be loaded with smuggled oil for transport to Malta, Italy, Greece, Turkey and elsewhere.

The following are some of the vessels seized in the act of smuggling oil from the port of Zuwarah:

1. Mekhanik Chebotarev

The vessel was seized 14 miles from the port of Zuwarah. The vessel was not flying a flag to identify itself. When they realized that they had been caught by the Libyan Coast Guard, they raised the Russian flag, according to the testimony of Umar Balras Ali, commander of the Libyan Coast Guard vessel. The name of the company that owns the Russian ship, which we believe is a government company, is Oil Marin Group. It had aboard a cargo of 4,250 tons of oil (4,250,000 litres). Its crew consisted of 10 men and one woman, all of them Russian nationals.

2. Levante

The vessel was seized on 4 April 2014 off the port of Zuwarah with a cargo of 400 tons. Its crew consisted of seven Egyptians and a Maltese. It is based in Malta but flies a Panamanian flag.

3. Sun Oil 1

The vessel was seized on 5 January 2015 off the coast of Zuwarah. It was flying a Maltese flag. Its crew consisted of five persons: two Bulgarians, two Ukrainians and a Romanian. It has been seized more than once.

4. Santa Cruz

The vessel was seized in August 2015 off the port of Zuwarah. Its crew consisted of four persons. Its owner is Maltese national, and it was flying a Tanzanian flag. It was escorted to the port of Misratah.

5. Sovereign

The vessel was seized on 24 August 2015 eight miles from the Mellitah area with a cargo of 600 tons of oil. Its crew consisted of two Egyptians, one Ukrainian, one Croatian and one Syrian. It flies a Togolese flag and belongs to the Maltese company Golden Group.

6. Saint Jean

The vessel was carrying a cargo of approximately 600,000 litres of diesel oil. It flies a Togolese flag.

7. Captain Khayyam

The vessel flies a Sierra Leonean flag. It was carrying a cargo of approximately 1,600,000 litres of diesel oil.

A number of vessels are still floating off the coast of Libya waiting to be loaded with oil for sale to neighbouring States and European States.

We offer you the following proposals for combating and eliminating smuggling:

1. The General Staff and the Ministry of the Interior should be charged with combating and eliminating smuggling.
2. Cooperation and consultation should be solicited from the National Oil Corporation, the Ministry of the Economy, the Brega Petroleum Marketing Company and all other relevant parties to find effective ways of combating smuggling.
3. The media should be used to raise citizen awareness of the dangers of this trend, given that these smuggled resources are Libyans' primary source of livelihood.

Please find annexed photographs from some of the smuggling cases that have been pursued. We look forward to taking part in finding solutions and deterrents to help put a final end to this trend, which has the potential to bring down the Libyan economy if it persists.

We trust that you will give this memorandum due consideration and take such steps as you deem appropriate.

Together for Libya! May God grant success.

May the peace, mercy and blessings of God be upon you.

Sir,

On Sunday, 24 July 2016, members of the Office of Security and Safety and members of the Oil and Oil Derivatives Oversight Committee conducted a field visit to the Ra's Ajdir border post to investigate the smuggling situation there.

The members visited the Jamal al-Gha'ib Brigade, which has been charged by the Ministry of the Interior with combating smuggling and other activities that have a negative impact on the Libyan economy.

In the course of the visit, it became clear that enormous efforts are being made to combat smuggling. On the very first day that the Brigade assumed its tasks at the post, some 60 vehicles were seized in the act of smuggling oil or oil derivatives, and fines have been imposed to curb the rampant smuggling of such products. (Please find annexed to this report several photographs that show the methods used by oil smugglers.) Their men are managing to be on the spot despite limited resources. In that connection, we thank the Brega Oil Marketing Company for providing a 40,000 litre tanker to retrieve the smuggled oil that was seized.

The members who took part in the visit are as follows:

1. Nuri Umar Abu'isa Chairman of the Oil and Oil Derivatives Oversight Committee
2. Abdullah al-Nufathi Member of the Oil and Oil Derivatives Oversight Committee
3. Sami Ammar al-Shabshubi Member of the Oil and Oil Derivatives Oversight Committee

Annex 72 Stolen assets under the control of a listed individual and/or at risk of misappropriation

Physical assets in West Africa

1. The Panel is investigating independent reports on the involvement of a listed individual in storing large amounts of physical assets in several locations in West Africa. It is alleged that the operation to hide large amounts of cash and some gold in West African countries was organised by Abdallah al-Senussi (LYi.018) in 2011. Six sources have alerted the Panel that attempts are being made to move some of these assets back to Libya and to possibly make them available to some of Libya's competing political and military stakeholders.
2. In a first case, four independent sources reported to the Panel that USD 560 million, in USD 100 denomination, is kept by a group of Libyans in Ouagadougou, Burkina Faso. This group has attempted to transfer the assets to a third country through a local company: "Societe Transit Transport Convoi International (STTCI)".

3. Several sources have explained to the Panel that they have travelled to Burkina Faso and inspected the cash, which is stored in metal chests. It is reported that authorities in Tripoli, al-Bayda and Tobruk have attempted to obtain the USD 560 million. Specifically, the involvement of NSG's prime minister al-Ghweil, Libyan 'Interim government' prime minister al-Thinni, HoR speaker Saleh and intelligence head Mustafa Nuh has been reported. Although the transfer of these assets has failed for now, the Panel has seen documentation showing that the logistical preparations were well-advanced. Groups involved in the negotiations expect to receive a commission of 10 or even 35 per cent.

4. However, the Burkinabe authorities have reported to the Panel that no company by the name of STTCI is known at the company register or holds any bank accounts in Burkina Faso. They confirmed that the alleged STTCI post office box in Ouagadougou listed on the documents exists, but that it is owned by an individual. In addition, the box frequently receives mail for addressees unknown to the owner. These include a businessman with well-known links to Libya.⁴¹

5. In a second case, sources told the Panel that physical assets are being kept in Accra, Ghana. At least until February 2016, they were allegedly stored in boxes with an ICRC logo at the premises of an 'international human rights organization', Le Comité International pour la Protection des Droits de l'Homme (CIPDH). The Panel has contacted France where the organization has its headquarters. The Panel has seen a report on the matter filed with the Ghanaian police and has subsequently contacted Ghana to ask for clarification. The Panel's letter, and another reminder, have remained unanswered.

6. The Libyan in charge of the assets in Ghana is reported to be Mohamed Saleh al-Mahmoudi. It appears that agents reporting to the LNA have tried to ‘recover’ the assets. Unrelated to the LNA attempts, some of the assets were allegedly moved to another country.

7. Additional countries in the region have been mentioned in conversations with the Panel but no documentation or details were provided.

Assets in South Africa

8. Previously, the Panel investigated several pieces of documentation alleging that a large quantity of physical assets, potentially belonging to a listed individual, was stored in South Africa (see S/2015/128, Annex 36). However, at that time, the documentation was considered to be unreliable and the investigations could not confirm the allegations.

9. In 2016, the Panel received new information, including documentation. According to this documentation, an attempt was made in 2013 to use the alleged assets as payment for a multi-billion dollar arms deal between several South African defence industry companies and the “Libyan Air Force” and “Air Territory Defense Forces”. The volumes and types of the materiel requested by the Libyan party suggest that a large amount of money was indeed readily available and the negotiations appeared to be relatively advanced. The Panel has interviewed, separately, two people directly involved in the attempted deal. Both claim that the materiel was to be paid for by ‘hidden’ assets from the Qadhafi regime already present in South Africa.

10. In 2013, agents claiming to represent the Libyan government visited South Africa to discuss the delivery of a wide range of materiel including tanks and attack helicopters. Correspondence seen by the Panel shows frequent contacts between the brokers and managers from the Denel company and its subsidiaries.

11. It also appears that officials from the South African Ministry of Defence were informed of the ongoing negotiations. One of the brokers, Mohamed Belgacem Tag reportedly met with a senior military official, to discuss the Libyan military needs. The South African Ministry of Defence also expressed its support to the negotiations in writing on 13 March 2013.

Source: Broker involved in the negotiations

12. The Panel wrote to South Africa to request further information regarding these negotiations and particularly details about the financial sources that would have allowed for such a large transaction. However, no reply was received.

13. The Panel has viewed additional documentation allegedly confirming the presence of Libyan assets in South Africa. None of these documents were convincing. For some documents, the Panel was not allowed to take copies for further investigation. Other documents that were shared contained insufficient information to verify their contents and did not prove the amount, origin or location of the alleged assets.

14. The Panel has reached out to South African officials mentioned in the new documentation to verify their contents. To date, none has responded to the Panel's outreach or requests for information.

15. The Panel has spoken to numerous Libyan politicians and civil servants who confirm that several 'official' delegations have travelled to South Africa to meet with the ANC leadership and discuss the issue of the return of Libyan assets.

Funds in Kenya

16. The Panel has obtained documentation indicating that two large transfers were possibly made in the second half of 2011 on behalf of the Libyan Africa Investment Portfolio (LYe.002, listed since 17 March 2011), between bank accounts in South Africa and Kenya. The total amount transferred to an account at a branch of the CFC Stanbic Bank branch in Kenya was USD 800,000,000. Documentation received by the Panel shows payment authorisation by Bashir Saleh al-Shrkawi from a branch of the Standard Bank South Africa.

17. The management of LAIP has explained to the Panel that it has no knowledge of the beneficiary account. It had received a similar report and conducted its own investigation in 2013, but could not confirm that such a transaction had taken place.

18. If the information in the documents is accurate, these transfers would show that hidden Libyan funds are indeed accessible to members of the former regime in South Africa. Bashir al-Shrkawi currently resides in, or at least frequents South Africa. He has been named by numerous public and private sources as the person who manages funds from the former regime hidden in South Africa and throughout the rest of the continent.⁴² Although he used to head the LAIP until 2009, he had no formal relationship with the fund in 2011.

19. The Panel has interviewed Bashir Saleh al-Shrkawi who denies any knowledge of any assets of the former regime in Africa, other than the ones officially on record at the LIA. He described reports on 'hidden Libyan assets' in Africa as "mirages".

20. The Panel has requested information from Kenya but its letter has remained unanswered.

⁴² see, for example, "Gaddafi aide holds key to missing Libya funds", Financial Times, 8 April 2012, <https://www.ft.com/content/d446ad68-816f-11e1-b39c-00144feab49a>.

Groups tracing 'stolen assets'

21. The Panel has met with two competing groups of brokers that try to recover 'stolen assets' in exchange for a fee or a percentage. Because they are profit-driven, they have not been forthcoming with information. Furthermore, both groups had previously provided the Panel with unreliable or false documentation.
22. Bearing in mind the current political division in Libya, and the need of both the PC and competing governments to obtain access to funds, such secrecy creates a risk for misappropriation. Clearly, the brokers report to various authorities, regardless of whether they support the PC, hoping they can further their case. Therefore, the Panel has urged both groups to share information that would allow it to monitor the issue.
23. Following the Panel's letters, information sharing by both groups has improved but still more transparency is needed. Furthermore, they have tried to increase their national and international legitimacy through interacting with the Panel. However, it is not in the Panel's mandate to confirm the mandate of any broker and certainly not at this stage of the political process.
24. Finally, it is possible that at least some of these cases are, in fact, scams. The Panel has received reports that some individuals have lost money while trying to obtain the alleged assets. Nevertheless, several other cases documented by the Panel show that former regime members still have access to relatively large amounts of funds, including cash.
